As in the Cassowaries, to which it is nearly related, the sitting in the Emu is performed by the male, which is the smaller and weaker bird, and much more timid and less noisy than the female, which often utters a hollow, "pumping" note." He has to sit about a couple of months—tho longest known period in any bird—and does not take any food during all this time. The beautiful granulated-shelled dark green eggs are quite well known through being so often used as ornaments, and are often to be seen beautifully carved. That, and the use of its skin for a rug, and its fat as a lubricant, are tho chief uses civilized man discovers in the Emu, but I hope its noble appearance—it is tho next largest bird to the Ostrich—and pleasant disposition will long secure its preservation in its native land, Australia, and its cultivation in our parks, where it breeds more freely and rears its young more easily than any other flightless bird.

A Foreign Bird-keeper's Early Experiences.

See photograph in the Art Supplement accompanying this issue.

By H. LEWIS.

I havo kept birds (in fact, live stock of almost every description) ever since I was a boy at school. It is about eight or nine years since I purchased my first pair of Budgerigars. These I turned out in a small garden aviary, about 10ft. long, 4ft. wide, and 7ft. high. Although the hen was continually going in and out of the cokernut husk, she never laid.

The following year I thought I would like to purchase some moro foreign birds off some well known fancier, so I sent to Mr. D. Seth Smith for a pair of Cockatiels, a pair of Budgerigars (which bred me four good strong youngsters in the first nest), and a pair of Chinese Painted Quails.

The Painted Quails.

The last-mentioned pair of birds were to me a source of continual pleasure. They keep on tho ground, seldom fly, and never roost on a perch. The cock is very attentive to his mate, calling her to all the dainty morsels, and is seldom, if ever, seen far away from her. They scratch about on the ground and are very fond of a dust bath.

In June (I believe) the hen laid her first egg, and very proud they both seemed. They couldn't leave it alone. They rolled it in, and rolled it out of the nest, which is a shallow hole lined with a few sticks and bits of hay. Each day another dark-brown egg appeared, until she had laid seven in all. Tho hen sat very steadily.

One morning (before I expected them) I was surprised to find six tiuy Quails, the size of a black Spanish nut, running about with the pair of old ones. This is the most interesting sight I have ever seen amongst birds—the old birds, the size of a day-old chicken, with a brood of tiuy chickens, which run through ½in. mesh netting quite easily. There are numerous disappointments in foreign bird-keeping. All my young Quails died.

Buying and Selling.

Shortly after this I went in for foreign bird dealing, buying newly imported birds, which I turned out into my outdoor aviary, and then selling those which did not die, at the same price as most dealers sold newly imported ones. At the end of the year I found that I had been losing money, but I did not mind this much, as by this means many birds had passed through my hands, birds which probably I should never have seen otherwise. Still, I was not prepared to go on losing, so I gave it up for a time.

Of course, like everyone else who has ever had the bird fever, it is sure to break out again, so you see me (in the illustration) here again with larger aviary and more birds than ever.

The Aviary.

The aviary depicted is a fairly large one. The view in the photo is a south one, and is of about 13ft. of the aviary, the total length of it being 35ft., which I am sorry I cannot show. At the far end a small brook runs through the aviary, which ensures a constant supply of fresh water for drinking and bathing purposes.

This aviary contains Budgerigars, Cockatiels, Lovebirds, Rosellas, and several other species of birds, together with a pair of Mandarin Ducks. Although Mandarin Ducks aro not strictly cage birds, it would no doubt interest some to know that I successfully exhibited the drake last year, winning 1st and special at Sanquhar, 2nd at Owestry, 3rd at Birmingham, besides two other thirds, a reservo, and three times was "very highly commended."

My breeding with the foreigners this year has been fairly successful, especially in the cases of the Cockatiels and Budgerigars. I tamed one nest of four young Budgerigars, which were soon disposed of after an advertisement in CAGE BIRDS, so I decided to tame some more, and also some Cockatiels.

Taming Cockatiels and Budgerigars.

If taken in hand as soon as they leave the nest, it is not so very difficult to get them as you see them in the illustration. I find that the Cockatiels get tamo quite as readily as the Budgerigars, and make most charming pets.

The chief thing in the taming of Cockatiels and Budgerigars is to start as soon as they leave the nest. Catch them at once, give them a lesson, and thon put them back to be fed by the old ones. Repeat this every day as often as possible, until they can feed for themselves. Then remove them to a large cage in tho house. If you have a little daughter, you will find your task much easier, that is, if she will play with them, like "Connie" (see illustration). You will find it necessary to cut the bird's wings if you want to take it out of tho house, as the tamest of birds aro easily frightened off your finger in a strange place.

Three Favourite British Finches.

By GEO. G. HENDERSON.

A thoroughly practical article written round our Coloured Plate by one of Scotland's best-known British Bird enthusiasts.

The Greenfinch.

Once the Greenfinch was known as the "poor man's cage-bird," but now he is everybody's favourite. Who does not know him? He will be found in every bird shop of any city, and may be bought for a few coppers. Greenfinches are prolific breeders, therefore are very plentiful. In winter they mix with the Sparrows on the outskirts of towns, and where I live (in the vicinity of Glasgow) they come to my back door every morning to be fed, and are not at all afraid once you gain their confidence.

Cocks are easily to be discerned from hens, being of a much richer colour, the hen being really more of a grey bird than a green. Both are invaluable, from a Hybrid breeder's point of view; the cocks are in great demand for mating with Bullfinch hens, and the hens make grand mothers when once they take to cage life. I have found them make the best of foster mothers; they will sit, hatch, and rear the young right up till they can do for themselves.

In the springtime out in the country it is delightful to watch the cock-bird at the time of pairing, flying from one clump of trees to another, flapping his wings and uttering his peculiar whistle to his mate, leading her on to his own favourite haunts, reminding you of the decoy cock pigeon some unscrupulous persons keep flying single to lure away the hen pigeons from other fanciers' cotes to their own lofts.

Fearless Parents.

Greenfinches build their nests in hedges dividing fields or in any small bushes in gardens. I remember a pair that became domiciled in a small hedge at the side of the main carriage drive at my father's residence, where people were continually going to and fro. This constant traffic did not interfere in any way with their family duties, for they reared a fine nest of youngsters. When they were ready to fly I put them into a small cage and placed the latter in the heart of the bush, wherein the nest had been, and the old birds fed the young through the wires without one moment's hesitation.

After a day or two of this, I removed the cage to another small hedge nearer my bird-house, and still the parents followed their offspring—feeding the long day through. I persisted in this "step by step" method of securing the young Greenies, and before long I had the cage with the youngsters on a table at my bird house door, with the old birds coming and going. To give them every encouragement, I placed "tit-bits" near at hand, to coax them so they should not forsake their nestlings, and so destroy my cherished hopes. Once I saw the young Greenies feeding themselves, I took cage and all into the bird-house, and put the same on a shelf right opposite the open door. Would you believe it, the old birds came in and fed as if they had been located there all their lives! Many may think I should have closed the door and kept the parents in; but I didn't, I let them have their liberty, for I considered they wrought hard for it, and certainly they made me the possessor of a nest of beauties—2 cocks and 1 hen. I also kept in mind the thought that perhaps at some future day they would do me another good turn.

As a Hybrid Breeder.

Hand-reared, or Canary-reared Greenfinches, make the best of pets, and may be trained to sing the song of other birds. I have one myself at present which can imitate the Chaffinch to perfection. To see him in the springtime flying about in my aviary uttering "pink, pink," to the utter bewilderment and loving admiration of his mate (a hen Chaffinch) is quite a treat!

Greenfinches are at times a bit jealous towards, and boisterous with, their mates, so when breeding with them in cages, I prefer to use the double breeder. In this cage you have your Hybrid breeders better under control, and can save your hens from too much attention, as they cannot resist the ardour of your cock Greenie. This keeps them in robust health, and if it is a hen Bullfinch you have up with Master Greenie, you stand a better chance of getting full eggs. No doubt many of you are aware that when once Bullie hens begin to cry for their mate, there is then no end to it, and if the male Finch is continually beside her, in time he goes out of breeding form, and pays her the least attention just at the very time the Bullie hen is coming on to lay, i.e., when he should be in the most forward breeding condition.

When you have paired your birds, separate them with the sliding partition, and the first thing in the morning place a handful of nesting material in the Bullie hen's part of the cage, let her get a mouthful, then pull out the division, and let the Greenie in for a time. Then run him back to his own part. Repeat this in the middle of the day and in the evening. This I consider the best way to procure Hybrids. Others may have their own ideas and ways; but this is mine and is well worthy a trial.

A Great Trencherman.

The Greenfinch has a splendid appetite, and is always ready for his daily supply of food; nothing seems to come amiss to him in this line. There is one thing he will never take except under force, and that is colour-food. He seems to abhor it, and if you don't watch him he lets himself down into such a low condition that nothing will bring him back to his normal self, and the result is you lose him.

If you are inclined to colour-feed one or two, I advise you to mix cold feed with maw seed, linseed meal, crushed hemp, and wild weed-seed mixture. There will always be a certain amount adhere to the soft food, so he is bound to get it, and this should give him all the colour required for show.

Sunflower and Colour.

Sunflower seed is the very best food you can use as a staple diet for your Greenie, and I give it all the year round, except at any time he gets rather fat and lazy. This sunflower seed is the "fountain of colour" in a Greenie, and a bird well moulted on sunflower heads, fresh daily, is enhanced in colour tenfold. You have only to test it to prove what I say is true.

The best of Canary seed give at all times, German and English rape in the spring and summer, and about the end of the moult linseed and hemp, and in cold, wintry weather I add groats and crushed wheat. He will not object to a mealworm at times, although some take no heed of such dainties.

For green food I find they prefer groundsel to anything else, and this is an article which helps greatly to put a sheen on the feather. Dandelion heads, chickweed, shepherd's purse, thistle, and hardheads he will partake of, and all do him good. For a downright delicious morsel offer him some new corn gathered fresh from the field, and watch him devour it. How pleased he is at such a treat!

I give them a bath every other day, as nothing will keep a Greenie in better order and show condition than cold water. It is cheap; so why not make use of it?

Obtaining the Exhibition Article.

In obtaining a Greenfinch for show, I would call on a bird dealer who trades extensively in British birds, and ascertain when he is likely to get some fresh-caught birds in. When that day arrives, select your own by looking out for the largest one or two you can put your eyes on, massive in build, broad and full chested, with large round heads. The colour should be of the richest golden grassy green, all of one shade, no lighter (greyer) parts underneath, but solid all through. The feather must be tight and of fine texture, and as close as that of a Border Fancy Canary. The outer flights of the wings and edging of tail feathers should be of the deepest yellow.

The bird I have described is termed a yellow (or jonque) Greenfinch. Buffs are paler (and greyer) in colour, and do not stand any great chance against a good yellow, except in colour-fed classes. Buffs are generally larger birds and make the best for colour-feeding purposes. Many a good fed buff have I noticed being described in some show report or other as a "yellow." For natural colour or non-fed classes I prefer the South of England birds, these being a much purer and richer colour than their Scottish brethren. For colour-fed classes give me a large one, no matter where caught, and if he "takes it," many blemishes will be hidden by the feed that would have told against the bird had it been in its natural colour.

The show cage should be of the box pattern, and painted inside (wires and all) French grey, pale blue, or silver colour—any will show off your bird to the best possible advantage.

Nests of Birds, Poultry, etc., should be regularly sprinkled with KEATING'S POWDER, especially when hens are sitting. Don't forget to do this just previous to the eggs hatching, to destroy the Red Mite. It kills all insects, harmless to everything else.

A Successful Canary Breeder's Experiences and Methods.

— By A. BROWN. —

(See the photograph on page 555 of this issue.)

It is five years since I started breeding Canaries, which was through buying CAGE BIRDS. I purchased two pairs of birds—one pair of Norwich and a pair of Yorkshires through your advertisement columns. Although I had many disappointments, I finished up with ten good youngsters. The next year I increased my stock, and bred 40 youngsters, and have gone on increasing my stock each year. Last year I bred 100 youngsters, and last year was my first year in showing. I was very pleased with the result.

As early as June last I had nearly 100 youngsters from 15 hens, and about 40 eggs to hatch out on the third round. Now I will say how I prepare for and breed my youngsters.

I keep my hens in a large wire flight (shown in the photograph). I believe in plenty of flight for the hens, as I have proved that it prevents egg-binding, and I have not had an egg-bound hen for 3 years. I feed my hens on best Spanish Canary seed as a staple diet, with a mixture of hemp, best German rape and niger seed twice a week, egg food once a week up to the end of February, after which I increase my egg food to twice a week. I always find my hens ready at the right time.

I keep my cocks in the breeding cages, which are double ones with wire and wood slides. I feed them the same as the hens with the exception of the niger seed.

I never pair up before the first week in April, and I can assure you that experience has taught me not to pair up earlier as the weather is more settled by then. In about two weeks my hens are all down. I like to get my hens all down together as near as possible, so that I can transfer youngsters to other nests if necessary.

About the thirteenth day, I put egg food in the egg pans, prepared as follows: One tea biscuit to the same amount of bread, a teaspoonful of sugar and one egg. I prefer egg and bread, as the egg food is not so dry, nor is it too wet. I also give the hens plenty of hemp seed. I might say that I always give the white of egg with yolk, and when the youngsters are three days old I give watercress, which I always use in plenty. I have tried other green foods, but cannot beat this.

When the youngsters are three weeks old, I find my hens want to go to nest again. I transfer the youngsters to a Yorkshire show cage. I always use these as nursery cages, as I find my Yorkshires get steady and in position sooner in these, and besides, keep cleaner than in the ordinary nursery cages. I am never troubled by bad feeders, and as I have some large Crest and Crest-bred hens, that are always left to feed their own youngsters; and I find they feed quite as well as my Yorkshires and Norwich. But one thing I am convinced of, you can work up a good feeding strain. I always find that youngsters bred from a good mother turn out good feeders. For instance, I made an exchange with a friend of mine; I gave him some small Norwich for feeders in exchange for a Crestbred hen, as he complained of not getting his hens to feed. Now this hen he gave me would not feed, no matter how I tried her. Or you can inbreed a bad feeding strain.

When my youngsters are a month old I transfer them to the flight, giving them egg food, and crushed hemp, Canary and rape seed. I never stop the egg food too soon; I gradually stop it up to the time I start colour-feeding, when they are about eight weeks old.

I have tried different ways of mixing my colour-feed, but I find you get as good results from the following. I make the egg cake, so often mentioned in CAGE BIRDS. I begin by mixing one teaspoonful of pepper to half-a-pint of egg cake, gradually working it up to full strength—four teaspoonfuls of pepper. I always put two ozs. of hot to a pound of cold pepper, and all the fanciers that have seen my stock have remarked what a colour I get, and several have decided to try the same. This egg cake saves a lot of trouble, and you can moisten as much as you require.

I might say that I mix the colour with the cake, and put in tins a few days before use, as by doing this the colour gets into the cake better. My birds eat it without any trouble, and I never remove the seed hoppers. I moult and colour-feed my birds in the flights, as I find they then get on the colour-feed better, and when they are half-way through the moult, I pick out the best youngsters and cage them in twos to finish off. One thing I never miss is to give them a bath. This is one of the best things to put a good finish to one's birds' moult.

Brief particulars of some of "Cage Birds" SPECIAL PUBLICATIONS for keepers of birds, with post free prices.

THE HYGIENE OF BIRD-KEEPING, 1/1. By W. Geo. Creswell, M.D. Thoroughly treats of modern hygiene (the science of health) in bird-keeping.

SEPTIC FEVER OR CANARY PLAGUE, 7d.—By R. H. Clarke, M.D. The only booklet published concerning this dread disease, which Dr. Clarke has given very special study.

THE NORWICH PLAINHEAD CANARY, 1½d.—By J. H. Payne. Pronounced by all experts to be a most valuable pamphlet concerning the breeding of the variety; written by one of our leading judges.

CANARY BREEDING FOR BEGINNERS, 7d.—By Claude St. John. A Practical, up-to-date guide to Canary breeding, designed specially for the use of the beginner. Deals very fully with the choice, sexing, and mating of the birds, feeding for condition, the cages and their fittings, the bird-room, egg-food, nest-building, rearing and moulting the young, colour-feeding, training for show, and all the difficulties likely to confront the breeder.

MEATING-OFF AND FEEDING SOFTBILLS, 6½d.—By John Frostick. No fancier of Insectivorous Birds who wishes to succeed in his hobby can afford to be without a copy. It also contains notes on Bird Trapping, Cages, etc.

SEEDS, FOODS, AND WILD PLANTS FOR CAGE BIRDS, 1/2. — By various leading authors. Full information on the seeds suitable for all cage birds, their food values, uses, etc., with descriptions and illustrations of the wild plants indispensable to the successful keeping of British and other birds.

HOUSE'S CANARY MANUAL, 1/2.—By C. A. House. A thorough, practical guide to the general management and breeding of Canaries, dealing fully with the breeding, etc., of every member of the Canary family, including the Roller (or Singing) Canary. An illustration of each bird, by the master Canary artist, Mr. H. Norman; exhaustive chapters on aviaries and cages, breeding procedure, moulting, exhibiting, diseases, and seeds—a compendium of knowledge.

BUDGERIGARS AND COCKATEELS, 6d.—By C. P. Arthur. The breeding of Budgerigars and Cockateels is recognised as one of the most profitable and pleasure-giving sides of foreign bird-keeping. This eminent authority gives very full details upon how to keep, feed, breed, tame, and teach them to talk.

PET RABBITS, CAVIES, AND MICE, 1/1½.—By George Gardner. Full information on housing, feeding, breeding, exhibiting, and keeping for profit. A complete practical guide, with illustrations from photographs.

FOREIGN BIRDS FOR BEGINNERS, 1/1.—By W. T. Page, F.Z.S., etc., Foreign Bird Expert to "Cage Birds." A highly instructive Manual. It contains a magnificent coloured plate and a number of black and white illustrations. Indispensable to all keepers of Foreign Birds. Replete with useful hints.

BRITISH BIRD MANUAL, 2/3 (cloth bound).—By H. Norman; or may be had in two parts. Part 1: "Hardbills," and Part 2: "Softbills." Either Part, price 1/1, post free. Each part contains a beautiful and life-like coloured plate and numerous illustrations of birds and cages. Up-to-date information on the keeping of British Birds; full of extremely valuable hints.

COLOUR FEEDING OF CANARIES AND OTHER BIRDS, 3½d.—By J. W. Ramsden. Tells you how to mix the colour-food, and how to moult the birds to get the richest possible colour.

THE STOCK BOOK, 7d.—By G. E. Weston. Of our invaluable "Breeding Room Register" a well-known fancier has said:—"It makes bird-breeding easy." No breeder of birds can possibly afford to be without it. It simplifies the operations in the bird-room and makes it possible for everyone, even the veriest novice, to breed his birds as they should be bred. Contains both Pedigree, Breeding, Young Bird, and Show Registers of simple and unique character, in addition to useful account pages, and many invaluable "Hints for Emergencies."

AVIARIES, BIRD-ROOMS, AND CAGES, 2/3 (cloth gilt).—By H. Norman. Contains ten lovely full-page photographic plates. A practical guide which deals thoroughly with the proper Building, Fitting, and Management of Aviaries and Bird-rooms, and the making of Cages.

YORKSHIRE CANARIES, 1/1½.—By H. W. Battye (Past President of the Yorkshire Union). Absolutely the very best Handbook dealing with the Yorkshire and its sub-varieties. Contains complete instructions upon Pairing, Breeding, Moulting, and successful Exhibiting, also how to treat in both health and disease.

NORWICH CANARIES, 1/1.—By C. A. House. Tells the fancier all that he needs to know to enable him to become successful as a breeder, and exhibitor of the Norwich Plainhead. The chapters on "Forming a Stud," and "How to Produce the Ideal" are worth the cost of the whole book many times over.

BIRDS OF THE COUNTRYSIDE, 5/4.—By Frank Finn, B.A., F.Z.S. A handbook to the wild life of all our familiar British birds; their appearance and habits accurately described. With 12 beautiful coloured plates, and 118 photographic illustrations. A charming gift book.

PETS, AND HOW TO KEEP THEM, 5/4.—By Frank Finn, B.A., F.Z.S. Gives the correct method of housing, feeding, and managing every kind of pet; all sorts of animals are dealt with—monkeys, dogs, cats, lizards, tortoises, also gold and other fancy fish, while there is a large section devoted to birds. Contains many coloured plates and illustrations from photographs. Another charming gift book.

A Great Gathering at Gateshead

ANOTHER TYNESIDE RECORD AT THE PALACE SHOW OF THE NORTH.

The tenth annual Gateshead Show, "the Palace of the North," was held on Friday and Saturday, December 10th and 11th, in the Burt-terrace Drill Hall, Bensham-road, and was in every respect the greatest success ever achieved by the society. A grand hall, in close proximity to the railway station, a record entry, a magnificent array of exhibits, a splendid attendance of the public, and real hard work by a most efficient body of fanciers, all contributed their quota towards this great success—great as it was well deserved.

The arrangements, as befits a show of such magnitude, were most complete, and were all in the hands of the secretary, Mr. George Buck, a sterling fancier, very efficient in the performance of the arduous duties that are ever associated with the secretarial position. We have heard much lately about the late entry nuisance, but we doubt if any secretary ever had the same dose inflicted upon him as had Mr. Buck. We learn on good authority that on Wednesday morning (two days before the show), entries did not number 400, yet on counting up the entries in the catalogue we find a grand total of 1,875, an increase on last year of 155, thus constituting a record for the society. It will be seen from this that on the last day possible for taking entries Mr. Buck had nearly 1,000 late ones to deal with, necessitating hard work, day and night, and well calculated to worry and upset any man less efficient, and we heartily congratulate Mr. Buck on coming through with flying colours. His efforts were very ably seconded by the assistant secretary, Mr. H. Johnson, who, like Mr. Buck, we always found very courteous and obliging. The arrangements for the feeding and watering of the exhibits were in the hands of the show manager, Mr. F. F. Hawkins, who performed his duties in a highly creditable manner, and was continually on the move seeing that nothing had been overlooked. He was ably backed up by a band of real fanciers, consisting of the chairman (Mr. T. Almond), vice-chairman (Mr. Shafto Robson), treasurer (Mr. T. Taylor), and the committee, Messrs. W. Mather, E. Wright, W. Longstaff, A. T. Hodgson, J. Moor, W. J. Smith, P. Rule, J. Campbell, G. E. Robson, J. Jonasson, E. B. Hooper, and D. E. Kent.

Perfect Management.

The staging of the exhibits was grandly carried out in five rows, four tiers high, with the Foreign birds in another row at the end of the hall. If we indulged in offering suggestions to societies for their "guidance," we are afraid that we should have to complain because there was nothing to find fault with. "Perfection" describes the arrangements. Although on the Saturday the weather was miserable in the extreme, we are pleased to record a grand attendance of the public, and during the afternoon the hall was crowded. CAGE BIRDS stall, near the doorway, tastefully decorated, and exhibiting the many hooks, plates, etc., calculated to educate the fancier in the art of cage bird keeping, was a source of much attraction, and was well patronised by fanciers and visitors, and did a good business, the attendant in charge not having much time to himself. We noticed the genial chairman, Mr. T. Almond, very busy in charge of the sales office, and from the way he was working, it appeared that many of the exhibits were changing hands. Owing to the many late entries, it was found impossible to get the catalogues out before Saturday morning, but as soon as they arrived they were despatched at once to those requiring them. This was the only blemish in connection with the show, and through no fault of the officials, for the remedy obviously lies in the hands of exhibitors, who should send their entries earlier.

Coming to the exhibits themselves, they made a grand collection, about the best ever seen in the North. Every section contained birds of superlative merit, and, this being the case, it would be invidious to select any section as taking precedence. Norwich were grand, both in numbers and quality, 215 in 12 classes, an average of 18 per class. All the "dons" were here, of true Norwich type, short cobby birds, with plenty of substance, grand colour and short silky feather. It would do some of those who are criticising the winning Norwich of to-day, good to see them. Many well-known winners were put down a bit, notably Mr. Sandiford's variegated buff, which had to be content with 3rd place. The special for best Norwich went to Messrs. J. and J. Hopkins' (Bolton) clear buff.

Once Again Best.

Crests, although grand in quality, were once again poor in numbers, notwithstanding the fact that the show was patronised by both specialist clubs. Only six per class, in nine classes. We are afraid that Crest fanciers will have to "buck up" a bit, and devise some means of keeping the champion birds in a class by themselves if they wish societies to continue the extended classification they are giving to the Crests and Crest-breds. This section again supplied the winner of the challenge cup for best bird in show, Mr. R. Armstrong's champion Dark Crest, "King of Kings," again securing the honour, the second year in succession. Borders came up well, averaging 13 per class in 11 classes, and here again birds of the highest quality were staged, Mr. A. Gilchrist winning the special for best in section with a gem of a yellow hen. The Yorkshires were splendid, 14 per class in nine classes, practically the pick of the country, birds true to standard, and excelling in beauty and grace. The unflighted yellow exhibited by Mr. W. Crahtree is indeed a gem of the first water, and was, we believe, runner-up for the special for best in show. This bird secured special for best Yorkshire, and well deserved it. In Scots Fancies Mr. W. B. Cobh secured the special with a grand yellow hen. The Belgian section special went to Mr. J. Greig's yellow hen, a fine specimen. Other special winners were: Gold medal most points in Crest section, diploma best young Crest, diploma best young C.B., Messrs. Dobson and Son; diploma best old Crest, Mr. Armstrong; diploma best old C.B., Mr. E. G. Piper; Border Fancy medal, Mr. A. Gilchrist.

The Linnets in Force.

The British Hardbills were really one of the features of the show. Seldom has such an array been seen in the North; in fact, it was more in the shape of an International competition than anything else. Some real gems were on view in all the classes. The Bullfinches were a grand lot, with the Greenfinches close up. The Linnets can be said to have been the feature of the show; such a collection has rarely, if ever, been seen before. All types and shades of colour were on view. Goldfinches all over were good, while the variety Finches, although not so strong in numbers, were a very representative lot. Softbills were a shade disappointing in numbers, but some really outstanding birds were present. Mules made a fine collection, in point of quality, Mr. Duncan's Clear Linnet being greatly admired. Unfortunately for its owner, on receiving same from the show, we hear that it had got its tail badly damaged, some of the feathers being broken. Foreigners were a grand array, the "tropical colours" being here, and no mistake. That they were greatly admired by all present goes without saying. Mr. J. F. Dewar (Edinburgh) judged all these sections, and his awards, on the whole, were very well received.

The judges were: Nor. and Cinn., Mr. J. Robson; Crests, Mr. T. Taylor; Yorks., Mr. R. Halliday; Borders, Mr. Dixon; Mules, Brit., and For., Mr. J. F. Dewar; Scots and Belg., Messrs. Robson and Dewar, jointly. The awards of these gentlemen seemed on the whole to give every satisfaction.

The Norwich Plainheads.

NOR. YELL, CL., ETC. WHITBURN, N.B.

Whitburn and Dis. C.B.S. held their fourth annual show on December 11th, in the Town Hall, a nice compact little place for a show. The society are to be congratulated on having such a nice lot of patrons, and with the following office bearers, everything seemed to pass off very smoothly: President, Mr. W. Livingston; Vice-President, Mr. W. Lambie; treasurer, Mr. W. Johnstone; committee, Messrs. Hamilton, Easton, Whitelord, Clelland, M'Laren, Johnstone, and T. Lambie, with Mr. J. Forrest, an able and hard-working secretary. Unfortunately, the weather was bad for judging, this having to be done in gaslight; an attempt was made with the lights out, but in vain. Norwich, although disappointing in numbers, lacked nothing in quality. Borders came out well in numbers, and all the leading lights were here. The British birds, etc., were also a nice collection, and the various winners were very difficult to sort out. The judges (whose awards were evidently well received), were: Mr. A. Chalmers (Kirkintilloch), for Norwich; Mr. A. Hay (Tweedmouth), for Borders; and Mr. S. Ward (Glasgow), for the remainder.

The Critique.

CREST (4): 1, Easton, Buff, marked on back, dark crest, well formed; 2, Whiteford, very similar in col, a wee trifle weak in crest feather; 3, Allan, another buff, grey crest, will improve yet in condition; vhc, spl, Forrest. C.B. (1): Easton. NOR., CL., ETC. YELL. (6): 1, vhc, Simpson, leading with a left wing marked, hot col, grand head and chest; 2, Buglass, cl, nice one, hard lines to meet winner, grand wings and chest, almost as good as 1st; 3, Ferguson, another cl, fails in type only; hc, Crawford; c, King. BUFF (5): 1, 3, Crawford, head ticked, very shapely, well staged, wins well; 3rd, cl, grand head, fails only a trifle in body; 2, Simpson, cl, grand quality, all there; vhc, spl, Ferguson; he, Blackley. A.O.V. COL. FED (5): 1, Simpson, wings and neck mkd, best of head and chest, short, compact wings, easy win; 2, Buglass, left wing mk., good tore end, fails only in wing carriage, otherwise well up; 3, Crawford, marked top of head, and wings, staged in good order; vhc, Saul, nice cinn; he, Blackley. YELL. CK., NON-FED (2): 1, Robb, l. wing mkd, grand head, Bullie breast, wins well; 2, Lambie, fails only in skull to winner, very good one otherwise. HEN (3): 1, 3, Lambie, leading with nice cl, best of beads, grand chest, well staged; 3rd, fails just a bit in head and condition; 2, Wallace, another good bird, presses hard. BUFF CK. (7): 1, 3, Lambie, leading with nice cl, again good in head and chest, compact wings, well filled in behind; 3rd, good one, nice quality; 2, c, Connelly, mkd on back and cheeks, grand type, presses winner hard; vhc, spl, King; hc, Shields. HEN (2): 1, Ferguson, cl, fine head, grand body, well staged; 2, Lambie, varieg, well up, good one. SELL. (12/6) (5): 1, Doig; 2, Ferguson; 3, hc, King; vhc, Dunsmore. BORD. FCY. CY. YELL. CK. (12): 1, Smart, grand type, neat head and chest, tapered well off behind; 2, Boag, not quite so neat in head and wing carriage, good bird otherwise; 3, Christon, another capital Border, but inclined to cross feathers on chest at times; vbc, Forrest; he, Craig; c, Ramsay. HEN (7): 1, 2, Hamilton, two sweet ones, 1st nicely moulded, best of wings and tail, well set down; 2nd, very similar, nice one; 3, Craig, in grand condition; vhc, Taylor; he, Christon; c, Shields. BUFF CK. (9): 1, Bennet, like wax, correct type, faultless; 2, Craig, presses winner hard, nice round head, splendid body, well staged; 3, Hamilton, not quite so shapely as winners; vbc, Brown; he, Shields; c, Lambie. HEN (14): Grand class; 1, B.F.C.C. medal, Voy, perfect gem, wonderful bead and wings, nice pipe tail, shown in spotless condition; 2, Smart, another lovely lady, fails ouly a wee trifle in condition; 3, Gilchrist, grand type, best of head and chest, not quite so well finished bebind; vhc, spl, Rowe, close up; he, Boag; c, Bennet. TKD. YELL. (7): 1, Smart, another nice exhibit, sweetly moulded, wins well; 2, Craig, ticked back of head, good one, well up; 3, Gilchrist, tick on top of head, fails only in chest, nice exhibit; vbc, Dunsmore; hc, Glass; c, Forrest. BUFF (6): 1, Smart, thigh tkd, grand head, best of wings and tail, like wax; 2, Bennet, tkd back of neck, presses hard for 1st; 3, Craig, grizzle cap, good third, nice bird; vhc, spl, Taylor; bc, Sidey; c, Lambie. YELL. GREEN (14): 1, spl for best green or cinn, A. Forrest, sweet hen, best we have seen out this season, direct from Altrincham, where she was 1st, and B.F.C.C. medal, runner-up for medal here, with a little more grass col would be unbeatable; 2, Thomson, rich in col, but lacks type and condition, hard lines; 3, Gordon, sweetly pencilled, beaten to-day, good one; vhc, Clelland; he, Gentleman; c, Murray. BUFF (11): 1, A. Forrest, another of the same, nice type, sound level col throughout; 2, Thompson, nicely moulded, good one; 3, spl, Murray, grand one for type and markings; vbc, Laing; hc, Boag; c, Lambie. FOUL (7): 1, 2, A. Forrest, held same place here last year, 1st a gem, well staged, 2nd fails only lu col and condition, both fine birds; 3, Bennet, good one, close up; vhc, Buglass; hc, Lambie; c, spl, Ramsay. CINN. (4): 1, Buglass, grand, rich col throughout, well staged, wins well; 2, Laing, not quite so shapely, perhaps, but a good one; 3, Lambie, fails only in condition, grand 3rd; vhc, Flood. The nature of the day told greatly against several good greens, the darkness preventing them showing their rich green col. A.O.V. BORD. CK. (7): 1, Saul, variegated, yell, all the way from Lancashire, and well worth his place, an easy win; 2, Voy, nicely marked varieg yell, fails only in condition; 3, Glass, close up; vhc and spl, Gilchrist; he, Boag; c, Peel. HEN (4): 1, Gilchrist, wing marked yell, grand head and body, well put down; 2, Thomson, eye and wing marked yell, good bird, well placed; 3, 4, Lambie; 3rd, eye and neck mkd buff, nice type, presses 2nd hard. WEST STANLEY.

West Stanley and Dis. F. and F.S. held their third annual show on November 27th, in the Albert Hall, Stanley, which is in every way suited to the occasion. Mr. J. Cousins, the hon. sec., was courteous and obliging to all, and everything possible had been done for the comfort of the exhibits, and the exhibitors. The cage bird section, as usual, received every attention, the birds being staged well and away from draughts. Mr. T. Dixon appeared to give every satisfaction as judge.

CARDIGAN.

Thirtieth annual show held in the Market Hall on December 8th. All the arrangements were very carefully carried out by the capable and courteous Secretary, Mr. D. Morgan Jones, and a large staff of committee. The hall is a charming building for an exhibition of this kind. The committee deserve all the support they got. The quality in the majority of the classes was excellent, the competition in the Norwich and Yorks. being very keen. In both classes Mr. Portman put down good teams and annexed the majority of first prizes. Mr. O. E. Hodge judged, and his awards gave general satisfaction.

LUTON.

The fourth annual show of the Luton C.B.S. was held in the Corn Exchange on December 8th, when nearly 600 birds were on view. As there were only 14 entries at the date fixed for closing, it was another case of late entries coming in with a rush, which necessitated the hon. secretary, Mr. E. Cherry, working day and night. When will exhibitors have a little pity upon the hard-working secretaries of shows by sending in their entries at the proper time? Mr. Cherry, who makes an ideal secretary, was ably assisted by his committee, all of whom are enthusiastic fanciers, including Mr. G. Bennett (chairman), Mr. E. Bloomfield (vice-chairman), Mr. L. Titmus (treasurer), and Messrs. Horwood, Brewer, Tiring, Smith, Meadows, Webb, Eling, and Tupwell. There was a very good show of Norwich, while in the Yorkshire, British, Mules, and Foreign classes the competition was very keen indeed. Mr. Hollins won the guinea special with a very fine pair of Blue Mountain Lorrikeets; Sandiford's special was won by W. Morris with his licked yellow Norwich; Hyde's by Mr. Mabey's marked yellow Yorkshire (catalogued at £1,000); while the members' cups were won as follows:—Norwich, Mr. A. Brewer; Yorkshire, Mr. F. Webb; Crest, Mr. G. Bennett; Mules, Mr. E. Cherry; British, Mrs. Vernon, with a grand Black Redstart. The judges were Mr. J. Robson (Canaries) and Mr. A. Silver (remainder).

TAMWORTH.

Third annual show, held in the Town Hall, on December 11th. This hall is a splendid place for a show of this kind, the light being A1, and the hall itself very spacious, lofty, and free from draughts, and capable of staging 800 birds. The birds were grandly staged down each side, and every bird could be seen at a glance. Each exhibit had every care and attention. The entries came up wonderfully well, which made the show a record for this society. The Norwich were a choice lot, and some really fine birds were staged. The quality in the Yorkshire classes was all that could be desired. Competition was very keen here, the pick being shown by L. Dykes. The Border class was a very nice one, and the Mules were also a good class. In the British bird classes some real toppers were shown. Goldfinches were a keen lot, as well as the Bullfinches, Mr. Harrison's noted Bullie again scoring once more. The Hawfinch shown by Mr. W. S. Poole is truly a grand one, and found many admirers. There were also some very cheap birds in the selling classes. The management is all that could be desired. The worthy secretary, Mr. G. Spencer, was ably assisted by Mr. Brown, and these are the right men in the right place, and were always most courteous and obliging. The stewards, though few are true fanciers, and work hard, viz., Messrs. W. Wells, S. Allsopp, J. Clempson, M. Hatton, G. Barber and J. Kitchen. The cards were promptly fixed immediately the slips were handed in. Mr. J. H. Roe judged. Judging was over early, and the public were admitted by 2 p.m.

EGREMONT (Cumberland).

The Egremont (Cumberland) P.P. and Cage Bird Society held their fourteenth annual show in the Market Hall on November 26th and 27th. The cage birds were very nicely staged all round the room over the poultry pens, and seemed to be a great attraction to the visitors. The entries in our section were not over large, perhaps, but some very fine specimens were on view. Mr. Lewthwaite, the capable hon. sec., had all the arrangements well in hand, and with a willing lot of stewards the cards went up after each class was judged by Mr. A. Hirst (Accrington), whose awards were well received.

ENFIELD.

Cage birds were not very strongly represented at the show of the Enfield and Winchmore Hill Society on Dec. 10th, still, several very useful birds were staged, and the section attracted much attention from visitors. The Challenge Shield for the best young bird fell to a very typical variegated yellow Norwich, shown by Mr. Tickner. Messrs. Neve and Edwards, the hon. secs., had all the arrangements in good order, and the show passed off most successfully. Mr. C. A. House judged.

UDDINGSTON (N.B.).

A cage bird show was held at Uddingston on Dec. 11th, and taken all over was a success. The Public Halls presented quite a lively scene, and many well-known faces were to be seen. The birds were staged in two small halls. Scotch and Border Fancies and Norwich were staged in the west hall, Yorkshires, Mules and British occupied the east hall. Scotch Fancies were a well balanced lot, Norwich Fluffheads made a decent show, and Crests and Crestbreds were a good lot, and added tone to the exhibition. Borders, although not numerous, contained some grand specimens, and the Yorkshire classes were well filled. This latter variety is making giant strides in these parts. The Light Mule or Hybrid class was a good one, while that for Dark Mules contained some wonderfully well moulted specimens. British birds made up the show, and some well known winners put in an appearance. The show was well patronised during the day. Judging was got through in good time, and the awards all over were well received. The following gentlemen placed the cards:—For Scotch Fancies, Mr. J. Watson (Glasgow); for Norwich Crests, Borders, and Yorkshires, Mr. A. Mulcolmson (Glasgow); and for Mules and British birds, Mr. J. Goodfellow (Edinburgh). Mr. A. W. Forrester, the hon. secretary, is deserving of every praise for his able and in every way successful management of the show.

WINDHILL & SHIPLEY.

The 23rd annual exhibition of the Windhill, Shipley and Dist. O.S. took place on Dec. 11. The Library (Windhill), in which the specimens were housed, is a capital venue for such a function, lofty and light, spacious and well ventilated, being also centrally situated and very cosy. The patronage of the following specialist clubs was given, viz., Y.C.C., and C.M.Y.C.C., and the show was held under the Y.U. rules. This being a cup show the cream of the Fancy was present, truly a magnificent collection. The Cinnamon marks we thought a decided improvement upon the last season or two. Entries came up well, upwards of 670 birds being staged, and competition was exceedingly keen. Condition decided the issue in many instances. The Committee consists of a band of excellent fanciers, headed by Mr. R. W. Alderson (chairman), and Mr. R. Sutcliffe (vice-chair), and supported by that good old fancier, Matt Broadley. Matt is a most useful, enthusiastic and practical man to be about when work has to be done, and is the right man in the right place. Mr. Ernest Broadley is a "chip off the old block," and the manner in which he worked as secretary reflects much credit on him. He evidently knows the correct workings of an open show. The staging had been well thought out, and every bird could be seen at a glance. As each class was adjudicated upon prize cards were affixed promptly, and the general management throughout was superb. During judging mist and fog prevailed, and we did not envy Mr. J. C. Barnes (Sheffield) his task in the placing of the cards. His awards gave general satisfaction.

CANTERBURY.

The Canterbury F.S. held their annual show on Dec. 8 and 9. The entries came up in grand form. The quality was excellent, many well-known winners having to be satisfied with cards. Norwich and Yorkshires were especially good, and the Hybrid class contained some champions. Mr. Sargeant, the secretary, is a most courteous official, and everything was got ready for judging by 8 a.m. So keen was the competition that the judge in the cage bird section did not finish until 4 p.m.—not a bad day's work. The committee consists of well-known fanciers, Messrs. W. T. Fowler, R. Patterson, D. Easton, C. Collard, G. Harris, E. Hobday, A. J. Brock, A. Attwood, H. E. Taylor, S. Taylor, A. Webb, W. H. Eastman, J. Johnston, C. Fox, H. Slatter, and E. Cook, all of whom worked well with Mr. Sargeant. Mr. W. R. Miles (Chichester) judged, and his awards appeared to give every satisfaction.

THE L.C.B.A. (Horticultural Hall).

Held Nov. 26th, 27, and 29th, in the hall of the Royal Horticultural Society, Vincent Square, Westminster. This hall is undoubtedly the finest in the kingdom for such a purpose, and such an attractive schedule as was here offered would be difficult for any exhibitor to resist. We do not hesitate to say that had the cage bird Fancy at large been made aware of the show's existence, the entry would have been as large as the merits of the prize list undoubtedly called for.

As it was, the entry was officially stated to be a record, 2,011 birds, an increase of 284 over the 1908 total. The new section added for Norwich and Yorkshire Greens accounted for 112 of these extra entries, and the aggregate entry was further increased by the ingenious expedient of including in the "Extra Stock Classes" a large consignment of birds appearing on the stall of a well-known bird dealer (105 altogether). This extra stock class, by the help of other large entries from loyal and open handed members, actually contained 209 birds (a jump of 196 in this class alone on last year's figures!) Thus the "record increase" over the whole show is not difficult to account for.

We would not have felt it necessary to refer to this in itself harmless bit of "swmaking" but for the childish action of the officials in allowing the show to be plastered with posters derogatory to this journal and deriding its influence as an advertising medium. It certainly was laughable to see these truculent posters exhibited in scores on long rows of empty benches. And here, again, we may be pardoned for observing that in our humble opinion any show that so sells itself body and soul to a commercial concern as to allow the whole aspect of its catalogue and hall to be smothered and disfigured with advertisements can certainly not claim to be improving the tone of the hobby. We fearlessly risk the charge of "sour grapes" in making these remarks, knowing that whenever we have advertised this particular exhibition, it has always been with financial loss to ourselves.

We must give our readers this notice: That if the identity and individuality of this show is to continue to be submerged in that of trade advertisers, we shall not consider it our duty to report it, but regard it merely as a trade device.

The arrangements, so far as the feeding and care of the exhibits are concerned, were admirably carried out. In the hall were splendidly arranged stalls of foods and specialities by Messrs. Hyde and Co., Trower and Co., and Fox and Lewis, whilst Messrs. C. Palmer and Sons had a striking display of cages and various fitments appertaining to the hobby. Mr. Dawson, the "Chelsea Naturalist," also had a fine stall of birds, cages, etc.

The judges were Messrs. P. Mason (Yorks.); J. Trengove (Nor.); J. Robson (all other Cans.); F. A. Lester, J. W. Norris, C. Rochl and J. Netherwood (the Roller Contest); J. Frostick (Hybrids and Brit. Softbills); S. H. Mays (Brit. Hardbills); and H. D. Astley (Foreign). We heard very few adverse comments upon their placings.

SILVER (7): 1, 2, vhc, c, Dewsnap, sort to send, full of Liz. qualities; vhc, Rukin, frequent winner, grand one; hc, Hampshire. LONDON FCY. (6) of which Mr. Filby staged 4, and won all the prizes and vhc. These show little advance either in numbers or in approach to the breed points, which is a pity, as they are a beautiful variety; hc, Clegg.

The Roller Canary and Cage Classes.

The Roller Canarles made n magnificent display; in fact, were quite the feature of the show, mustering 142 in the six classes provided. Needless to say, they were a great attraction to the visitors. In the members' young bird class Mr. F. J. Randall repeated his triumph of the previous year, even more emphatically, too, as six money prizes out of seven fell to his exhibits, and all his team secured a mention. In the champion class Mr. Hanbury sprung a surprise by putting down the winner of first and special; the only bird he had in the show, too. We heard it said that some of the best birds "failed to open out" (our informant is a man of note amongst the Rollers), but this, of course, is one of the little ironies connected with the exhibiting of these sweet-voiced birds

CAGE CLASSES: These are always interesting to the fancier, and there was a nice display here, though the section was practically monopolised by one firm, Messrs. C. Palmer and Sons, who "swept the deck" with a choice lot of cages, well made and finished, and very low in price. SHOW OR STOCK (13): 1, 2, 3, 4, vhc, hc, c, Palmer and Son, very practical and ingenious stock cage for Wagtails, etc. took the chief award, followed by two Thrushes (one show, one house), and a Waxwing cage. BREEDER (15): 1, 2, 3, 4, hc, c, Palmer and Son, again a fine display, excellent Crest double breeder leading, grand muling cage, with separate compartment for the Finch; 2, Norwich double breeder and a Yorks. breeder following; vhc, Lindsey and Son, also a splendid breeding cage, very practical and well made; A.O.V. (9): 1, 2, 3, vhc, hc, c, Palmer and Son, three very fine and cheap Parrot cages leading, 1st a beauty in brass, good Chough show cage vhc, then stock cage for Jay, and a travelling case, neat and strong.

OPEN SELLING (30/-) (35): 1, Steed; 2, French; 3, Evins Bros.; 4, Hampshire; vbc, Butterfield, Bellinger, Miller; hc, Maybank, Hawes Bros. Richardson; c, Eade, Helliwell. DITTO (20/-) (35): 1, Steed; 2, Rev. Miller; 3, Mills; 4, Richardson; vbc, Hampshire, Laurence; hc, Eade, Goodwin and Lampkins; c, Butterfield, Dawson. STOCK, CLASS 229: 1, Tyson; 2, Tomsett; 3, Mills; 4, hc, Gibbs; vhc, (2), Crisp, Angenr, Palmer; hc (2), Palmer.

The Hybrid Section.

The Hybrid section, while not so great a failure, perhaps, as that for British birds, was far from what it ought to have been, seeing that this is the N.B.B. & Mule Club's show. There were 89 entries in the 9 classes, and the quality of the exhibits was really good, taken on the whole. Mr. J. Frostick was the judge, a venture into a more or less strange sphere for him. Little fault could be found with the placing of the cards, the merits of the birds being weighed up to a nicety in almost every instance. We have only one grumble. In the Dark Mule classes every money prize was given to a jonque, the buffs (and there were many grand ones present) being ignored. This is placing far too much stress upon colour and bloom (which, we presume, the judge went for); if the buffs get treated like this, then they will soon have as little value as hen Mules. A curious customer turned up in the Clear class, and was awarded 2nd prize, after, we understand, it had been under the inspection of several other judges officiating in the hall. One of the latter, a very well-known judge indeed, said it was undoubtedly a clear Greenfinch-Canary. The owner had it entered as a Linnet-Canary. Its only claim to being a Mule lies in a quick flapping motion of the wings in taking the perches in the head not a trace of Linnet (or any other wild bird) is to be found; it has not the white flight features characteristic of the true light Linnet Mule (seen to perfection in Miss Duncan's exhibit); its colour is purely Canary colour. Judging by its leg action and shape of wing, we should say it is a cross between a Scots Fancy and a Yorks. or bad Norwich.

CL., ETC. (7): 1, Miss Duncan, gem of a cl. Linnet, grand size and shape, fine col., for this cross, like box in plumage; 2, Webster, catalogued as "Linnet-Canary," the bird referred to above, we took to be the 1st prize winner at the recent Glasgow and West of Scotland show; 3, Arrighi, cyo mkd. Goldie, lovely exhibit, grand size, wax-like in feather, very hot in col., in great form; vhc, Goodall; hc, Lamb; c, Mortlock; absent, Archer. VARIEG. GOLDIE (11): 1, Malcolmson, truly a grand yell., enormous size, fine shape nnd style, full of col. and quality, wins hands down; 2, Bond, 5-pointed, grand, big Mule, also very hot in col., rare bloom, stylish; 3, Taylor, mkd. wings and head, good one for build, nice earriage, silky, rich-coloured; vhc, Lamb; hc, Arrighi; c, Mendows. A.O.V. VARIEG. (10): 1, Mrs. Asklnm, very nice Can.Bullic, with n pied tail, n "varieg. Canary Mule," certainly, but we think ought to have gone into class 125, which reads "Any Variety Bullfinch Hybrid," lucky not to have been marked "wrong class"; 2, Bond, the well-known head and neck mkd. Siskin-Can, a beauty, looking very fit; 3, c, Lees, fine, lightly mkd. Linnet leading, grnnd size and shape; vhc, Leighton; hc, Archer; "wrong class," Duncnn, almost cl. Greenfinch, griz. slightly each side of the neck. If "ticked" means one tiny mark (which we thing is a rational interpretation), then this was its correct class. If "ticked" can mean more than one small mark (up to how many?), then the judge was right in marking it "W.C." Hard lines, anyway, for it is a gem of a Mule. DK. GOLDIE CAN. (15): 1, Taylor, Jonque, fine build and shape, nicely mkd., carries a wonderful bloom, and is a remarkable tone of col—"red-hot" hardly describes it; 2, c, Arrighi, jonque, fully equal in size and shape, better markings, not so warm in col., very sleek and fit; 3, Marlin, romping big jonque, rare size and style, good feather, bit "brassy" in blaze; vhc, Malcolmson; hc, Jones; No. 7, Bald, good one. All the bulls "out in the cold." DK. LINNET (13): 1, hc, Dring and Morton, well-known winner of last year, real good Jonque, fine size and shape, silky, rich sound col. jacket; 2, R. W. Jones, fine Jonque, also well-known on the bench, in nice order; 3, Coffey, another Jonque, in a winning record, grand bold well-polished bird; vhc, Cooper; c, Ward; No. 11, Arrighi, a clinking good buff. A.O.V. DARK (12): 1, Coffey, Jonque, Greenie, real topper, big, grand, head and chest, lovely rich sound col., wins well; 2, Crabb, with a very smart Jonque Siskin, full of col., very silky and tight in feather, nicely mkd.; 3, Smith, very big Twite, deep, sound col., well mkd., stylish, in grand form; vhc, Goodall; hc, Ackland; c, Maxwell. A.V. BULLIE (5): 1, Bond, the champion Can.-Bullie, great size, wonderful col. and polish; 2, Colton and Dawn, the champion Redpoll-Bullie, wheezing badly when we saw him, and going wrong in head feather, a pity; 3, Arrighi, real good Greenie-Bullie, splendid size, shape and col., but getting a film over the left eye; vhc, Mrs. Askham; hc, Lamb. A.O.V. (8): 1, vhc, Coffey, noted Chaffinch-Bramble leading, in very nice condition, latter smart Redpoll-Goldie; 2, Taylor, big, finely mkd. Siskin-Greenie, bred from the South American Siskin, we should say, judging from the head; 3, Arrighi, about the smartest thing in Goldie-Greenies we have seen, good shape and style, big, rich face; hc, Marlin, splendid Redpoll-Greenie; c, Lamb. PAIRS (8): 1, Page, Goldie-Bullie, really grand couple, cheap at catalogue price; 2, Ackland, Goldie-Canary, another splendid pair; 3, c, Askew, Bramble-Chaffinch, two beauties; vhc, bc, Watson, Lyle, fine pairs, beaten only in condition.

The British Bird Section.

The British bird section came as a keen disappointment. Although 24 classes were provided, only 194 entries were received (an average of but 8 per class!). This is all the more astonishing when one considers that this was the official club show of the National British Bird and M.C., with all their cups and a generous allowance of medals in competition. No fewer than six classes were cancelled outright, a deplorable happening, and one not calculated to help the British bird Fancy along with show committees. Fancy a class of but eight Goldfinches; it seems incredible. Fortunately there were many grand specimens in the classes that survived, notably the Grasshopper Warbler, shown by Mr. Cocks, which secured the diploma for best British, beating Mr. Maxwell's Black Redstart. Another softbill worthy of special mention is the charming Nightingale owned by the Hon. Mrs. Bourke, who is to be congratulated upon possessing such a gem. This class also provided an attraction in the shape of a Nightingale shown by an artistically inclined owner, who provided its cage with woodland scenery and a pale blue canopy! Mr. S. H. Mays placed the cards in the hardhill classes, and Mr. John Frostick judged the insectivorous birds, and we heard but little criticism of their awards. Some placings at recent London shows got turned topsy-turvy, which interested and not a little amused the metropolitan connoisseurs present.

GREENFINCH (19): 1, Livingstone and Sharp, good shapely Greenie, not the largest, but good sound col., nice head, clear yell. flights, very steady; 2, 4, Howe, both birds we liked much, former rare size, cl. rich col., fine bold head, very shapely, latter also a good bird, very stylish, fine silky texture of feather; 3, Coffey, another good Greenie, rich in col., bold in the head, fine bright wing bars, very steady, nicely shown; vbc, Maxwell; bc, Beaty; 3, Lowne. HAWFINCH (8), a hot lot: 1, Beaty, "Midland Chief" in new hands, wonderful size, very rich head and cheeks, fine breast and back, splendid bib, shows to perfection; 2, vhc, Maxwell former a very tame bird, hot col. head, very broad skull, good wings, warm col. throughout, hardly so large as winner; 3, hc, Ackland, another good bird, slightly smaller head, good bib and wing bars, nice square skull, well up in col.; c, Page. GOLDFINCH (8): 1, Herbert, real bonny Finch, beautifully finished, well tanned, perfect buttons and moons, lovely wing bars, rare skull and underblaze, as steady as could be; 2, Maxwell, another fine Goldie, just beaten for premier honour, clean cut, square blaze, massive skull, capital buttons, well tanned; 3, Murton Gill, big, very square underblaze, fine shapely Finch, perfect flights, good even buttons, might show itself a little better; vhc, Mortlock, well tanned, good face, grand condition; hc, Goodall; c, Dawson. SISKIN, ETC. (16): 1, Francis, good colour-fed Siskin, nice size and shape, wants a little more bib, trifle slack at times; 2, Quantrell, very rich col. Twite, fine size, very shapely and well pencilled, nice whites, in fine bloom, steady, pressed hard; 3, Marley, rare big Lesser Redpoll, nice red cap, and has a wonderful bib, very steady, we do not remember ever seeing a bird of this species before with so large a bib; 4, hc, Howe, bonny Twite, smaller than 2nd, but has good pencillings and nice whites, well polished; vhc, Lowne; c, Coffey, another Twite, not much between this bird and those above. CHAFFINCH (14): 1, Cherry, good size, nice deep breast, very steady, might be a bit clearer in whites, good shape, shows nicely; 2, Marley, trifle smaller, but good col. and stylish, perfect plumage, close up; 3, c, Prior, former rare size and shape, bot colour, good in whites, fine silky plumage, in splendid condition; vhc, Pennels; bc, Coffey. BRAMBLEFINCH (9): 1, Carter, well-known bird, gone up a peg to-day, good shape, deep breast colour, coming well down the flanks, very even spangling, well up in condition; 2, Coffey, deeper col. and larger than winner, very stylish and well spangled, a noted winner, must have pressed very hard for 1st; 3, Howe, neat Bramble, good spangling and wing bars, very steady, shapely bird; vbc, Marley; hc, Prior; c, Beaty. LINNET (11): 1, Maxwell, capital nutty-brown bird, rare shape and quality, good pencillings, plenty of work on the head and cheeks, fine polish, steady as possible; 2, hc, Marley, "Browney," beaten today, but a good bird, splendid col. and pencillings, nice shape, shows well; the latter "[illegible] big winner, in good order; 3, c, Prior, both good specimens, former wonderfully well mkd. throughout, good col., splendid shape and size, shows to perpection, claw off left centre toe, which no doubt put him down; vhc, Coffey, rare pencillings and throat mkd., plenty of bloom good one. BULLFINCH CK. (10): 1, 2, Francis, grand cobby bird, lovely deep breast, cl. back, good wing bars, clear cut cap, shines like ebony, well shown, claimed at catalogue price, 2nd similar type, another beauty; 3, c, Brandon, very typical bird, good round head, cl. back and wing bars, nice pink breast, good size; vhc, Vincent; hc, Howe. BULL., HEN (11): 1, 2, vhc Howe, fine team, leader a clinking hen, nice size, rich chocolate tint of colour grand cap, good wing bars and in splendid order, 2nd similar bird, close up in all points; 3, Bald, fine cobby Bullie, jet black cap, very clean cut, good wings, nice silky plumage; hc, Grahame; c, Cocks. YELLOWBUNTING (5): 1, Marley, large, rich-coloured, grand head and cheek marks, fine bloom, steady as a rock, well shown; 2, Prior, natural col., perfect head marks, beautiful pencillings, wonderful bloom, fine size, nothing between the two except col.; 3, Martin, another rich fed bird, hardly so good in head markings, nice size, perfect feather; vhc, Maxwell; hc, Batting. A.O.S. BUNTING (7): 1, Beaty, gem of a Cornbunting, large, rich body col., beautifully pencilled, rare shape and size, steady, shown to perfection; 2, Lowne, nice white Snow Bunting, good size and feather, will be a topper when steady, some thought should have given way to, 3, c, Francis, really good Lapland Bunting, fine size, good black cap and throat, well shown; vhc, Howe, Reedhunting, coming well up in col; hc, Wynn. HARDBILL, HEN (17): 1, Prior, topping Hawfinch, rare size and col., good bib, shows to perfection, very nice exhibit; 2, Howe, big Yellowhunting, good feather, nicely marked, very steady; 3, Lowne, Crossbill, stead as a rock, good size, in very nice condition; 4, Law, Bramble, nice steady bird, good col.; vhc Francis, somewhat lacky [illegible]; hc, Wynn. THRUSH, ETC. (9): 1, 2, Howe, 1st splendid Blackbird, very shapely, good orango eye, cere and bill, fine size, 2nd very good spotted Thrush, nice shape and size, rich col., a beauty; 3, Maxwell, Blackbird, in capital trim, very shapely, shows well; vhc, Price, Thrush, bonny bird, but wants legs scaling very badly; hc, Dyke; c, Askew. LARK, ETC. (10): 1, P. Walsh, fine Skylark, good size and shape, well mkd., nicely shown; 2, Lowne, Shorelark, very steady case moulted bird, [illegible] pale in yellow markings, perfect feather; 3, vhc, Howe, well-known Treepipit, looking very fit, splendid col. and markings, plenty of bloom, nicely shown, latter nice Rockpipit; hc, Shirley. MAGPIE, ETC. (4): 1, 3, Maxwell, his now well-known pair, Chough and Magpie in order named, former beautiful sheen, fine red legs and beak, latter very cl. in whites, lovely metallic sheen on flights and tail; 2, Dewhurst, capital Magpie, a newcomer, very fine bird, seems a shade longer in tail than third, shows well, beautifully staged; vhc Dawson. RARE FEATHERED (8): 1, P. Walsh, lovely silver-spangled Starling, very taking bird, quite tame, pretty sheen, perfect feather; 2, Wyse, pied Linnet, white head and back, nice size and shape; 3, Smith, very pretty Cinn.-Greenfinch, striking bird, yel.-green all over, very showy; vhc, Swaysland, whitish sky dark, in nice feather; hc, Lamb, Cin.-Redpoll; c, Colton and Dawn, pied Linnet. BLACKCAP, ETC. (8): 1, 2, Hon. Mrs. Bourke, two beautiful specimens, leader perfect champion, rich chestnut coloured back and tail, good bold eye, very shapely bird, latter similar style of bird, not quite as large, perfect feather, beautifully shown; 3, Puck, sweet Blackcap, tight as wax, rare silky plumage, nice cap, very tame, well shown; vhc, Cocks, good 'Gale, paler than winners, soon claimed at catalogue price; hc, Maxwell; c, Lindquist. SMALL INSECTIV. (5): 1, Cocks, Grasshopper Warbler little gem, in splendid feather, nice marking, seemed quite at home and contented, lucky to be so perfect at this time of the year; 2, 3, Maxwell, Black Redstart and Yellow Wagtail, both well-known winners, former a large specimen compared with others, Wagtail a very rich colour; vhc, hc, Lowne, pied Flycatcher, good black and white specimen, but did not appear in the best of condition, or might have gone up. MEMBERS.—BULLFINCH (8): 1, 2, vhc, bc, Howe; 3, c, Maher. LINNET (3): 1, Howe; 2, Askew; 3 Smith. SISKIN, ETC. (3): 1, 2, Howe; 3, Maher. A.O.S. FINCH (9): 1, Howe; 2, 3, vhc, hc, Maher; c, Dewhurst. SMALL INSECTIV. (2): 1 2, Miss Shepherd. LARGE (4): 1, 2, 3, Howe; vhc, Mrs. Cooper.

The Foreign Birds.

This was certainly the best series of Foreign birds gathered together of recent years; there were 120 entries in the eleven open classes and 10 in the classes for members. Rarities were numerous, and several of them were clad in regal splendour. Two Birds of Paradise were present, viz., Mr. Millsum's Hunsteins' Magnificent, and Mr. Maxwell's King, both truly regal birds, and of very opposite types of beauty, the former clad in refulgent gold, bronze, black, scarlet, and very pure pale buff; the latter in glistening carmine, snow-white, buff and metallic green. Hunsteins figures on the show bench for the first time, and carried off premier honours, while the well-known King was a good second and Mr. Maxwell is certainly to be congratulated on the grand condition in which he has kept it. Another rarity, and also a first appearance, was Mrs. K. Leslie Miller's lovely Rainbow Bunting, rivalling in its chaste beauty and pure colouring the gorgeous Tanagers. Other first appearances were Verditer and Great-billed Flycatchers, beautiful and interesting cage birds, as well as most excellent show birds. Yet another first appearance on the London bench was Levaillant's Barbet, a quaint and beautiful species, which bas appeared once before this season in the provinces. Then we had the Golden-shouldered Parrakeet, which I think bas appeared once or twice previously, but many years ago; Red-fronted Lories, elegant Grass Parrakeet, Black-throated Rufous-throated, and Spotted Emerald Tanagers, Indian Nuthatch, and Giant Barbet. It was also delightful to once more renew acquaintance with that old favourite, the Blue-winged Green Bulbul, which we believe we are correct in saying has not been seen on the show bench for many years. Foreign bird keepers are certainly to be congratulated on the strides made in their hobby; the almost uniform excellence of the exhibits amply proves this, and with a still further improved classification Foreign bird keeping and exhibiting is sure to become very popular. Mr. H. D. Astley judged, and though with such an array of talent some disappointment is unavoidable, his awards were, on the whole, well received.

BUDGERIGARS, ETC. (14): 1, S. M. Townsend, Blue-crowned Hanging Parrakeet, one of the finest we have seen, very rich col., tight as wax; 2, hc, Mrs. K. L. Miller, lovely pairs of Peach-faced and Guiana Lovebirds; 3, F. Howe, grand pair of Black-cheeked Lovebirds; vbc, C. T. Maxwell, good Black-checked Lovebirds, and Miss Greeven, very fine Red-faced Lovebird; c, Mrs. Hodgkin; R. J. Watts; also exhibited excellent specimens of Yellow Budgerigars and Grey-headed Lovebirds. PARRAKEETS (15): Containing many rare and beautiful species, a class worth a long journey to see: 1, 2, 4, O. Millsum, a grand team, 1st Red-fronted Lories, a rare and beautiful species, which have been but once previously exhibited; 2nd Brown's Parrakeet, rare, not showy, but the harmony and markings are very beautiful; 4th Golden-shouldered Parrakeet, another great and attractive rarity. A pair of this beautiful species was exhibited by Mr. Maxwell at the Balham Show in November, 1899; 3, Beaty, Pileated Parrakeets, birds very difficult to see, owing to solid top cage, very beautiful birds; vhc, Rev. Raynor, good yell.-vented Blue-bonnet, and W. Oakey, good Crimson-wing; vhc, hc, Maxwell, elegant Grass Parrakeet, very fine, and pair Brown's Parrakeets; hc, Mrs. Miller, good Purple-naped Lory; e (2), Miss Frances, Alexandrine Parrakeet and Cockatiels. PARROTS (9): 1, Beaty, Hawk-headed Parrot, very fine, rare and interesting exhibit; 2, Rev. Raynor, Meyer's Parrot, beautiful, uncommon, and very fit; 3, vhc, Mrs. Miller, fine pair Cuban Amazons, beautiful col., and a Hawk-headed Parrot; vhc, Mrs. Cooper, good pair Black-headed Caiques; c, T. Miller, very fine Grey Parrot; e (3), Miss Frances, Grey Parrot, good and well mkd., Blue-fronted Amazon, Sulphur-crested Cockatoo, very clean and tight. AVADAVATS, ETC. (15): A very pleasing class, fully illustrating how beautiful many of the freely-imported species are, and what a magnificent scene can be quite cheaply obtained: 1, R. J. Watts, Golden-crested Waxbills, grand col. and very tight; 2, 3, c, F. Howe, St. Helena and Golden-crested Waxbills and Green Avadavat in the order given, all in exquisite condition; vhc, Townsend, good Golden-crested Waxbills; hc, c, C. H. Row, Orange-cheeked Waxbills, grand col., very tight, and a very sleek Cutthroat; c (3), Botting, good team; c, Mrs. Maher, and Beaty, a beautiful pair of Cordon Bleus were shown here in their wrong class. WAXBILLS, ETC. (6): 1, 2, Maxwell, 1st Violet-eared Waxbill, very rich col., like silk, 2nd Black-cheeked Waxbills, very uncommon and interesting exhibit, chastely beautiful plumage of subdued hues; 3, H. Willford, Melba Finch, very rich col., tight, quite one of the best we remember to have seen; vhc, Mrs. Miller; c, Miss Greeven. GRASSFINCHES, ETC. (16): Grand class, many very beautiful and still uncommon birds being staged, notably, Painted, Parrot and Bearded Scaly-fronted Finches: 1, Mrs. Miller, Painted Finches, very rich col., like silk; 2, hc, Maxwell, also Painted Finches; 3, c, Row, exquisite pairs of Parrot and Black-headed Gouldian Finches; 4, vhc, Mrs. Galloway, Scaly-fronted Finches, weo bit soft or would have been higher; vhc (2), Meadows, Stoakley; hc (2), Frost, Sladden; c (2), Mrs. Hodgkin, Atlas Weavers, J. J. Rattigan. GROSBEAKS (5): Not so numerous as usual, yet all the five exhibits were uncommon and beautiful, while one, the Rainbow Bunting, is quite unique: 1, 3, Mrs. Miller, 1st Rainbow Bunting, words simply fail to describe this lovely species, for it certainly rivals the most beautiful Tanager for gorgeous tropical plumage, 3rd Hooded Siskin, good, rich col.; 2, Mrs. Galloway, Black-faced Serin, though this has now been known on the bench for two or three seasons, it is still uncommon; vhc, Townsend, well-known Rock Bunting, perfect; hc, Mrs. Hodgkin, Pilcated Finch, very tight and silky. TANAGERS (8): A beautiful crowd, and the resplendent hues of their plumage simply beggar description. Mr. Maxwell's grand team, both for rarity and condition, being easily ahead of all competitors: 1, 2, 3, vhc, Maxwell, Rufous-throated Black-throated, Spotted Emerald, and Maroon Tanagers, these species, beautiful and flawless as they are, have already been described in our pages, and, besides, no pen can paint the refulgent hues of their plumage; vhc (2) Townsend, grand Magpie Tanager, and Mrs. Maher, very sweet Tricolour Tanager; hc, Mrs. Miller, Striated Tanager, an uncommon species, and will make a grand specimen when it has moulted out its tail. SUGAR-BIRDS, ETC. (9): 1, vhc, hc, Townsend, Yellow-winged Sugar Bird, glorious col., perfect condition, never seen one of richer hue or in better conditiou, Red-eared Bulbul, exquisite condition, Black-faced Sugar Bird; 2, Millsum, Blue-winged Green Bulbul, very uncommon, gorgeous plumage, very sleek and lustrous; 3, Maxwell, Black-beaded Sugar Bird, good col., tight; vhc, Mrs. Galloway, fine Blue Sugar Bird, good col., nice and sleek; hc, Rattigan; c, Puck, Malahar Bulbul, this specimen was the ordiuary Gold-fronted Bulbul, I don't think the Malabar bas ever been imported alive to this country, they can easily be distinguished apart; the Malabar has the centre of throat black right up to the base of lower mandible, while the Gold-fronted has this portion blue. A.O.S., SMALL (14): Almost every exhibit in this and next class was a gem: 1, vhc, Millsum, Levaillant's Barbet, beautiful and quaintly mkd. a unique exhibit, and an Indian Nuthatch, somewhat similar to our indigenous species, but smaller and with a very flat crown; 2, 3, Maxwell, White-capped Redstart, beautiful col. and tight as wax, Great-billed Flycatcher, unique and beautiful, in our opinion this should have been 2nd; 4, Dewhurst, well-known Coleys, looking almost better than last season; vhc (4), Miller, Verditer Flycatcher (hen), rare, a first appearance, Mrs. Miller, Ruby-throated Warbler, uncommon and beautiful exhibit, Mrs. Maher, Red-sided Tit, in beautiful feather, Townsend, White-eyebrowed Woodswallow, exquisite plumage, and O. Puck, good Shama; hc, Mrs. Maher. A.S., LARGE (9): Grand class, and a centre of attraction to the visiting public, were the two Birds of Paradise, the gorgeous carmine, red and exquisite condition of the King won for it many admirers, while not one whit behind it was the rarer and equally beautiful Hunstein's Magnificent, though it is beauty of another type, and, of course, also had the advantage of being exhibited for the first time—it certainly merited its position—but both are birds which any exhibitor should be proud to possess: 1, Millsum, Hunstein's Magnificent Bird of Paradise, first time ever exhibited, perfect and grandly beautiful, described in a previous issue; 2, Maxwell, King Bird of Paradise, now well-known, not a feather out of place, without a flaw, gorgeously beautiful; 3, Townsend, Giant Barbet, another grand exhibit, a beautiful and interesting bird, absolutely perfect; vhc, Sandy, fine Mexican Green Jay, grand colour, like silk; hc (2), Rattigan and Dewhurst, glossy and metallic Starlings in the order given; c, Shepherd, very fine Hill Mynah. Also exhibited Lesser Barbet and Long-tailed Glossy Starling. CLASS 171: Cancelled. CLASS 172: Cancelled. INSECTIV. (3): 1, 2, Dewhurst, Bluish and Superb Tanagers in the order given. FOR., SELL. (7): 1, c, Maxwell, Indian Pitta and Chestnut-breasted Finches; 2, 3, vhc, Townsend, Dinca Finch, Archbishop Tanager and another; hc R. J. Watts, Lincolated Parrakeet; c, Easterling, White Javas.

EPSOM.

The annual show of the Epsom F.S., held on Dec. 1, was a grand success all over; in fact, in many respects surpassed the expectations of the officials. the cage bird section in both the open and the members' classes contained birds of excellent merit, and the latter filled very well indeed. The society are to be congratulated on having such a splendid secretary as Mr. A. H. Hicks, to whose energy and tact the success of the venture is chiefly due. Mr. G. Bennett judged the open classes, and Mr. T. B. Mason the members'.

WATFORD.

Held in the Clarendon Hall on Dec. 14th, in connection with annual Fat Stock and West Herts F.A. The Clarendon Hall is a spacious building, and makes a fine venue for a show. The management was in the experienced hands of Mr. Clem Watson, hon. secretary, and the Committee are good fanciers. The entry in many classes was not at all such as the classification deserved, but the quality throughout was very good. Yorkshires were a capital lot, and so were the British birds, the Goldfinches and Chaffinches especially. There were also some capital foreign specimens. Mr. J. Robson judged.

CARSHALTON.

Held in the splendid Public Hall on Dec. 14th. This is a well-lighted building, and the birds were staged on the platform, a most suitable position. The hon. secretary, Mr. P. H. Hudson, with his assistant, Mr. A. J. Hudson, have a splendid grip of the secretarial duties, and their kindliness and courtesy have endeared them to all the members. The Committee, too, worked with a will, and everything passed off satisfactorily. The open classes did not fill, but those for members were well supported, and the quality was of the highest order. Mr. A. J. Kilby won special for best bird in show with a really typical grand quality ticked yellow Norwich. Mr. Geo. Gardner judged, and his awards were well received. Cards were up and catalogues out early, and the attendance of visitors was very good.

NOR. BUFF (8): 1, 2, 3, Kilby, leader chubby, beautifully headed bird, of rattling fine feather; 2, sweetly pretty fine-feathered, short tailed, unflighen, grand back, head and neck; 3, hot col. buff; r, Botell; vhc, hc, Muscutt; c, Saunders. "CAGE BIRDS ANNUAL" for 1910.

We are now engaged in the preparation of this ever invaluable Year Book.

Every advertiser in this standard work of reference reaps a rich reward. Year after year the same breeders and traders are represented in its pages proving its unparalleled value for advertising purposes.

CAGE BIRDS ANNUAL

gives you a whole year's publicity at the smallest possible cost. This will make the eighth year of issue, and every year's production is pronounced to be a long way ahead of its predecessors.

Every prominent breeder and exhibitor should make certain of seeing his name and address in this Annual. How often do you as a breeder want to know another breeder's address, and without the Annual what a trouble it is to find it! The list of fanciers annually advertising themselves in this valuable handbook is no small index to its usefulness. If hitherto your advertisement has not appeared in it, make up your mind at once to place an order right away in it.

The breeding season for 1910 promises to be an exceptionally successful one. Special efforts will be made to extend the sale of the Annual amongst novices and contemplating purchasers.

ALWAYS USE OUR

DEPOSIT SYSTEM.

We are not responsible for the statements made in advertisements, nor of the bona-fides of either buyers or sellers In all transactions the adoption of our Deposit System should be insistedupon.

IMPORTANT.

SEND THE FULL COMMISSION.—If the full commission does not accompany the deposit, the vendor will not be notified of its receipt until the amount deficient, plus the extra postage incurred, has been paid to us.

HOW TO REMIT.—Under no circumstances will Cheques or Post-dated Money Orders be accepted as deposits. Uncrossed Postal Orders must be sent and the numbers taken for safety.

RULES.

1.—PROCEDURE.—The intending purchaser should send to this office the amount of the purchase (our deposit fee included), and at the same time he should communicate with the seller, stating what it is he requires sent on approval. We acknowledge receipt of the deposit to both parties. In all cases the depositor should give his name and address, and also that of the vendor, and must write same clearly and distinctly.

2.—END OF TRANSACTION.—The deposit is retained by us until we hear from both parties that the transaction has been completed. If a sale has been effected, we hand the amount deposited to the seller. If a sale has not been effected, we return the amount to the depositor. The transaction must be conducted by the parties themselves. We merely hold the deposit.

3.—AMOUNT OF COMMISSION.—The fee is 6d. for each £1, or fraction of £1, and it must be sent at same time as the deposit.

4.—IMPORTANT POINTS.—The depositor must decide within forty-eight hours of the receipt of the goods whether he will keep or return the same, unless, that is, some other period of approval (of which we must be advised) is agreed upon by both parties. The depositor must at the same time notify us of the fact that he has returned the goods. If the goods are not returned within the said forty-eight hours, we reserve the right to send the deposit to the seller after the expiration of that period. And should the seller fail within three days to notify us of the receipt of his goods back again, the transaction will be treated as ended, and the deposit be returned to the depositor.

5.—A SATISFACTORY PURCHASE.—When a transaction has been completed to the satisfaction of both depositor and seller, both parties must at once return the deposit receipts as a guarantee of its completion. The depositor must at the same time instruct us to pay over the deposit to the seller.

6.—GOODS ALREADY SOLD.—If the goods are sold before our deposit note reaches the seller, or, if for any other reason he declines to do business, he must at once return the deposit note to us. Failing its receipt, we reserve the right to return the deposit to the sender after the expiration of three days.

7.—FRESH TRANSACTION.—In case no sale be effected, a deposit is available for purposes of a fresh transaction, provided another deposit fee be paid.

8.—GOODS IN TRANSIT.—Goods in transit are at the seller's risk, and any damage or loss sustained on the journey must be borne by the seller. But goods not approved of must be properly packed and returned by the same means as were used in sending the same.

9.—PAYMENT OF CARRIAGE.—The payment of carriage must be a matter for arrangement between the vendor and depositor. We do not undertake to settle disputes affecting questions of carriage. But in the absence of other arrangements the purchaser is liable for the carriage of the goods, and if the goods are sent on approval and returned, each party pays the carriage one way.

10.—DISPUTES.—In case of a dispute, the decision of the Editor is final.

PREPAID ADVERTISEMENTS

UNDISPLAYED.—Three Words a Penny up to eighteen words. One Halfpenny per Word for each word over eighteen. MINIMUM, 12 words, 4d.

IMPORTANT NOTE.—Two or more Advertisements coming from the same advertiser, even if sent in different names, are reckoned together, and, after the first eighteen words, are charged at two words a penny, but no single advertisement, even if accompanied by others, will be charged at less than the minimum price, viz., Fourpence.

Headlines or Footlines 6d., 9d., 1/-, 1/6 according to size.

Small prepaid advertisements of a general nature and not connected in any way with the Cage Bird Trade are inserted at the rate of ½d. per word throughout. Minimum 12 words 6d.

Advertisements must in all cases bear the bona fide name and address of the advertiser, and no advertisement will be inserted if addressed to a receiving office, or similar place of call.

Postal Orders must be sent as far as possible. All moneys should be made payable to F. CARL.

The Proprietor reserves the right to refuse any advertisement, or to cancel any advertisement ordered for a series, at any time, without assigning any reason for so doing.

Advertisements close Tuesdays first post in each week, and should be sent to the Advertisement Manager, CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet Street, London. Terms for Display Advertisements on application.

THE HUMAN LINNET.

Gentlemen,—I am not a self-made Linnet King, but get my title from this paper, "Cage Birds." I have sat judge at hundreds of contests, and have won huudreds of prizes. I take interest in my birds, hence my title. I have a grand lot of big, fine cock Linnets, singing beautifully, 1/- and 1/6 each. Cock Linnets, singing hard, in back cage, and my secret of making Linnets sing with their wings down, 2/- lot; bargain. Look! The pride of the bird world. Beautiful cock Linnets, taught under my well-known champion (quality song), only 2/6 each. with splendid fancy cage and my secret, 3/6 lot. I defy any dealer in the world to supply better quality. They are fit for the finest drawing-room in England. To exhibitors.—I have some extraordinarily good birds for show; cock Linnets, very large, well-pencilled, feathers like silk, and finger tame, 1/- and 1/6. Gems, cannot be beaten, 2/- each. When I say gems I mean it. I don't send out small rubbish. Please read this: "17, Random-st., Alexandria.—Sir,—The Linnet arrived safe. It took 3rd prize at Vale of Leven Show in house-moulted class.—Mr. Murdoch, to F. Allen." All bird fanciers know that field-moulted Linnets are not quite so big as house-moulted ones, but the birds I have at present can hold their own anywhere. I have some real specimen Pear Tree cock Goldfinches, with splendid deep square cut blaze, grand shape, 2/6 and 3/- each; a few specials, 3/6 each. Gems, 5/- each. My gems are winning all before them. It is an impossibility to get better class. I don't care where you send and how much money they cost. The birds I have are first-class. Cock Bullfinches, with deep, rich colour, splendid cap and bars, grand shape, 2/6 and 3/-; gems, 3/6. Massive hens, in fine feather, 1/6 and 2/-. Greenfinches, real toppers for shape, colour, 1/- each. Chaffinches, can win, 1/- and 1/6. Large Redpolls, 1/-. Larks, singing lovely, 1/- and 1/6. House-moulted Siskin, splendid bird, 4/6; bargain. Any of the above can be put in a new show cage for 2/- extra. Please read what others say: "4, Redbrooke-terrace, Camborne.—Sir,—I am more than pleased with the cock Goldfinch; he is a real gem. I thank you very much for the attention you paid me. I shall give you more orders.—Mr. Floyd to F. Allen." "Callendar Stables, Falkirk, Scotland.—Sir,—Enclosed P.O. for another Linnet. The last one is doing well.—Mr. Mitchell to F. Allen." If you once try me, you will deal with no other. "Caledonia-terrace, Bonnybridge.—Sir,—The Linnet I got from you is worth double the money. I enclose P.O. for secret.—Mr. Cooper, to F. Allen." I could fill a page with testimonials. I give seven days' approval, cash or deposit, and send all birds out in neat little boxes. Please give me a trial order, and I guarantee you will be delighted, no matter how hard you are to please. I have a few contest Linnets for disposal. Send stamp for particulars. Write at once to the leading British bird dealer, Fred Allen, Bird Specialist, Porter-st. Aviaries, Hull

NOTICE TO READERS

Champion, amateur, and novice, requiring their breeding stock, should not hesitate where to send, although it must seem somewhat difficult amongst so many advertisers. My strain of Norwich has stood the test for years, and many of the leading winners this season come from my rooms. I do not keep or supply cheap rubbish, which is useless. I have some fine yellow hens, 15/-, 20/- upwards; splendid buff hens, 12/6 to 30/-; specially matched pairs, 40/-, 50/- and 60/- per pair; yellow and buff cocks, 15/- to 40/-, the best money can buy. Read the following: December 6th. Dear Sir,—I showed the bird Saturday, he took 2nd prize. I think myself he should have had 1st. I have bought a lot of birds this last 20 years, but I think he is the best I have had; will patronise you again. Yours faithfully —. December 8th. Dear Sir, Bird to hand, am pleased with him. I showed him Saturday, and he stood 2nd. Yours faithfully, —. Name and full address sent on receipt of post card; approval.—A. E. Silk, Norwich Specialist, Whitstable.

Seifert Rollers of the highest excellence, bred from my silver cup winner, schoolmasters' and contest singers, 20/- to 60/- each; hens 10/- each; every bird guaranteed bred by myself and wearing closed club ring, not imported hot-house plants that die off when you have had them a week or two.—Foulds, 213, Brunswick-st., near Owen's College, Manchester.

RARE OPPORTUNITY.

Have bought the entire stock of birds, consisting of the breeding results of the original founder and trainer of the Seifert bird. I now offer the same for sale, and also my own never beaten original Seifert strain, cocks from £1 to £4; hens, 5/- each. Original birds are stamped with Heinrich Seiferts name.—Adolph Hermeking, Berlin O Warschauer-Strasse, 67 1. Germany.

14 DAYS' TRIAL, MY RISK.

are the terms we send our celebrated contest Rollers, and they can win in any competition. The price, 15/- only, and you can deposit your money with Editor for 14 days' trial, at my risk, and don't buy from anyone except on these terms. Send deposit at once, also send to one of the other dealers, and get one, any price up to 30/-, and you will decide to have my 15/- contest Roller, the real champion Rollers, which are only imported by me. Remember the price, 15/- only, and 14 days' trial, my risk, no fancy prices; sterling value only from me. Hartz Roller Canaries, cocks in full song, 4/6, 5/6, 6/6, and 7/6 each; St. Andreasberg Rollers, 8/6, 10/6 and 12/6; hens of best strains, 1/3, 1/9, 2/6, and 3/6 each. Give your orders at the Fountain Head, if you want satisfaction; largest dealers and importers in North of England; send for catalogue, post free; anything alive bought, sold or exchanged.—Northern Aviaries, Preston.

St. Andreasberg Roller Canaries.

St. Andreasberg Rollers.

Just arrived, another lot of these famous musical-boxes, specially trained under Nightingale, Woodlark, and bell notes with those long, wonderful trills; fit for any mansion, price 6/6, 7/6 8/6; real Schoolmasters, 10/6 and 12/-; hens, 2/; proper Roller singing cages, 2/-, with shutters, 2/9; also not common Belgian, guaranteed pure Hartz, price 5/6 and 6/- each, two 11/-, hens 1/9, two 3/-. These are imported direct from the Hartz Mountains, and properly trained. Note—We have thousands of testimonials, and are patronised by all the Crystal Palace Judges, including Judges Bexson, Payne, Battye, Roe, Barnes, Vardy, etc., etc. Send for new catalogue and testimonials for proof.

Just read these testimonials. All come over 200 and 300 miles away, and £20 given anyone if not real. Can be seen any time. "Mr. Patterson, Cork, Ireland.—Sir.—Glad to tell you Roller you sent me won the All-Ireland Roller singing contest here." "Mr. W. Burl, London, October 25th.—Sir, Hartz cock arrived safe, and started singing directly unpacked, and sang ever since." "Mr. Bagot, Glenny, Dublin.—Sir,—I am well pleased with Roller. He has sang continually ever since he came, day and night." "Mr. J. Campbell, Dublin.—Thanks for promptitude ing sending Roller and cage within a couple of days from sending you the order. The bird was in Dublin singing for all he was worth." "Mr. D. McCorquadall, Greenock, Scotland.—Received Roller and cage all safe. He was singing half an hour after he arrived, and best singer I ever had, cage is a suitable one, and cheap." "Mr. Knight, Kilmarnock, October,—Hartz cock arrived all right, and a beautiful bird, and a champion singer. I got a Goldfinch from you which lived 11 years." These are only a few I have picked from long-distances, have thousands others. I guarantee to give you every satisfaction; so order at once.

If you want some testimonials, send to me, and I will send you some just as received this week.

BOOKLET FREE.

Finest Talking Parrots. I only deal in Parrots that will make first-class talkers; no rubbish. I am willing at all time to send my Parrots on four week's trial and three months' talking guarantee. Why? Because all my Parrots are young, strong, and reliable. My lifetime has been spent among Grey Parrots, both at home and abroad. I guarantee every customer every satisfaction. Grey Parrots are my special fancy. I have trained them, know their wants, and can give every purchaser a bird that will please him in every way. I can supply grey talkers, not thinkers, that will say almost anything, at reasonable prices. Before you purchase a grey or green Parrot, send for my Booklet, entitled "Talking Parrots." All my birds are sent on four weeks' trial, at my risk. Send postcard for catalogue.—Mrs. Forster, Princes Park Aviaries, Violet Street, Liverpool.

PARROT PROBLEM

solved. For full proofs send postcard at once for my large book, "Parrot Prattle," now containing 168 pages. This is the most wonderful book ever offered free of all charge to all Parrot fanciers. (This "Parrot Prattle" is registered copyright, and all infringers and imitators will be proceeded against). It contains hundreds of testimonials from all parts with full names and addresses, many interesting facts, and gives valuable advice and hints to all Parrot buyers. Full details of our original system of selling Parrots on four weeks' trial, at our risk, which we were the first to introduce. We sell Parrots of all descriptions on four weeks' trial, at our risk, before settlement. Cheapest and best in the Kingdom, and any Parrot sold by us and not giving full satisfaction, will be exchanged any time within twelve months. Remember we lead and others try to follow. Write to other dealers as well as us, and judge for yourselves. Lists of Parrots for sale and above book post free on receipt of postcard. Telephone No. 40 Morecambe.

The Shows.

HALIFAX.

All Yorkshire Union Records Broken.

The Halifax O.S. held their annual open show on Dec. 17th and 18th, in the large hall of the Mechanics' Institute, Crossley Street. The room is a grand one, very lofty and free from draughts, is within very easy reach of both trams and trams, in fact, as central as possible. This, coupled with good tram services, helped, no doubt, to make the show a great success. The show was held under the rules of the Yorkshire Union and the patronages of the Y.C.C., C.M.Y.C.C., O.N.P.C., N.G.M.Y.C.C., Y.C.B.H. and M.C., and the gentry of Halifax. A very liberal classification was given, one catering for all, and the society had the very gratifying response of 809 entries in the 42 classes provided—an average of over 19 per class throughout. Open Yorkshires came up well, totalling 109 in the six classes, and, strange to say, this was exactly equalled in the six classes of the Norwich section, these also containing 109 birds. Green marks were not so strong, hens in particular being weak. Cinnamon marks were a good lot; the four classes held 64 birds, as also did the live British, etc., classes. Two of the latter classes came up badly, and only half prize money was paid. The two classes for Green Yorkshires were very strong, with 43 entries, whilst the two for the Novices of this variety contained 29 birds. Cinnamon marked (Novice) birds mustered 28 birds, but without doubt the strength of the show was in the Yorkshire Union Novice classes. The society had given an extra class to the Novice Yorkshires, and they were well repaid, as the seven classes received an entry of 184—an average of over 26 per class. The Novice Norwich exhibitors completely annihilated all records in their section by staging 64 birds in the two classes. In Open Yorkshires Mr. W. H. Shackletou secured special for most points, Messrs. Ogden Bros. and J. Bailey being on level terms for second place, and Mr. F. Clayton in fourth position. Mr. Waters took premier position in the Norwich section, with Messrs. J. Haigh and Son in close attendance; Mr. H. W. Axe proved the winner of special for British, etc., Mr. D. Duncan, jun. securing that for second place. In open Novice classes (Cinnamon marks and Green Yorks), Mrs. Nimmo took special with a good team of Greens, and in Yorkshire Union Novice Yorkshires Mr. J. Thomas held premier position, Mr. A. Whitley coming in for second special. In Norwich Novice Mr. Ball secured most points, and took special. Mr. J. Sandiford's cup for the best coloured bird was won by Mr. L. C. Casey, and Hyde's teapot by Mr. A. Ross. The management is in excellent hands. Mr. J. F. Thackray makes a courteous and efficient secretary, and is well understudied by his assistant, Mr. H. Whitaker. These excellent officials were well backed up by a large and enthusiastic committee, amongst whom we noticed Messrs. Walsh, Ball, Cundall, Robertshaw, Jeffreys, etc. On the Saturday afternoon there appeared to be a very good attendance, many fanciers attending from a distance, and the room presented a very animated appearance. Also all who had prize money to draw, and were in attendance, were paid out during the afteruoon. Messrs. W. A. Cowgill (Bradford) and W. Vardy (Hucknall Huthwaite) judged, the first-named taking Yorkshires, Mules, and Hybrids, and the latter Norwich and British classes, the awards of both leaving little if any room for adverse comment.

HILLFOOTS.

Annual show under the auspices of the Hillfoots O.A. was held in the Town Hall, Tillicoultry, on Dec. 18th. The weather was bitterly cold, but the day was dry and bright. It was a treat to get into the cosy hall to view the cage birds. The president (Mr. Baxton), vice-president (Mr. Whitehead), treasurer (Mr. Morrison), secretary (Mr. Sommerville), and the hard-working committee deserve great credit for the way the show was managed. All were imbued with that energy which ensures success. The entry was satisfactory, and the quality excellent. The judge, Mr. Moreland (Falkirk) gave satisfaction.

SLIGO.

The Sligo C.B.S. held their ninth annual show in the Gillooly Memorial Hall, on December 15th and 16th. This fine hall is second to none for the purposes of a cage bird show, it being lofty, well lighted (day and night), and beautifully warmed. The show is run by a small body of enthusiasts. Mr. C. J. Mulligan, the secretary, is to be congratulated on his very successful management. The other leading officers are Messrs. E. J. Tighe, C. Mulligan, J. Devins, J. Osborne, and a few more of the "bhoys," who were always ready to lend a hand when required. The management was perfect in every way, and although it was late on the second day before the hall was closed, all the birds were dispatched by the early morning mail, and the majority would reach home by mid-day. Mr. H. Norman, from Surrey, judged, and had the finest entry ever seen in Sligo, and a record number for Ireland this season. The Yorkshires and British birds were both well represented, many fine birds being staged in both sections. A few birds came through from Dublin, but quite a fine collection was sent up from Cork. But the Sligo men well held their own, some grand birds being put down by Messrs. J. Devins, C. Mulligan, and E. J. Tighe. In the Plainhead section the principal winners were Messrs. J. Thompson, C. J. Mulligan, E. J. Tighe, and J. Stewart, of Belfast, who staged a fine buff, which secured for the second time the special for best bird in show. The hall, so kindly lent for the occasion, was well packed with visitors on both days, many well-known residents taking a keen interest in the exhibits. During the evening a small string band played a nice selection of charming old Irish melodies, much to the delight of everybody. One of the features of this show is that the birds are railed off as soon as judging is over, and visitors are not allowed to handle any exhibit. A Goldfinch exhibited by Mr. P. Mulcahy, of Dublin, was disqualified for alleged staining. The winners of the principal specials were Messrs. Lavery, Dawson, Stewart, and Tighe.

NARBERTH.

Held on Dec. 15th at the Victoria Hall, a very suitably lighted place, and in other ways most adaptable for a cage bird show. The Goldfinch class was the feature of the show, the Greypates making a very nice show. In the Canary classes both Yorkshires and Norwich were extra good. The hon. secretaries, Messrs. J. Owen and J. Harris, conducted their business in a very methodical manner, and proved themselves valuable officers to the society. Mr. T. W. Richards, the noted Goldfinch specialist, put down a lovely team, winning all the cards in the old bird class. Mr. Trevor Gamage judged, and appeared to give general satisfaction.

ALLOA, N.B.

The Clackmannanshire and Dis. C.B. Show was held in the Co-operative Hall, on December 4th, and it proved a success. President, Mr. P. Arnott; Vice-President, Mr. F. Love; secretary and treasurer, Mr. J. H. Boocock. The committee are composed of fanciers of the proper stamp, and everything passed off in a way highly creditable to the officials. Mr. P. Arnott is to be complimented on the manner in which he marshalled his men, and Mr. J. H. Boocock makes an ideal secretary. The Co-operative Hall is quite a nice place for a bird show. The Scotch Fancies, Crest and Crest-Breds and Norwich were well to the fore; the Borders were also well represented. British birds, Mules and Hybrids were very interesting, while the Foreign class was quite an eye-opener, but the most interesting class in the show was the one provided for the school children, mustering the grand total of 17 good birds. The show was well patronised by visitors, and judging was got through in good time. Judges: for Canaries, Mr. C. Campbell (Glasgow), Mules, British and Foreign, and school children's class, Mr. J. H. Adam (Glasgow).

KILSYTH.

Kilsyth and Dis. F.A. (founded in 1879) held their annual open show on Dec. 18th, in the Drill Halls. President, Mr. Alexander Hardie; vice-president, Mr. W. Irvine; treasurer, Mr. W. Morton, hon. sec., Mr. Andrew D. Duncan; executive, Messrs. J. Pollock, J. Barrie, A. Methben, T. M. Aulay, W. McGreachan, J. Nash, W. Ingles, A. Loudon, W. Russell, R. Reid, John Aitken, G. Roberts, J. Bunell, and W. Menzies. Secretary Mr. A. D. Duncan, as usual, had all his arrangements made to perfection, and was ably backed up by a hard-working committee of true fanciers. The entries in the cage bird section were barely up to last year's numbers, owing to the fact that no less than seven or eight shows were being held on the same date. Norwich and Borders mustered well, and British were a splendid lot. Sec. Duncan has worked hard to bring this section to the front, and on this occasion his efforts met with much success. The Foreign section was also a good turn-out. The principal winners were as follows: Silver cup for best in British section, Mr. A. D. Duncan (this is his fifth year as winner in succession); for best Mule or Hybrid, Mr. A. H. McWatt; Bullie Allison's handsome special, Mr. G. Shillinglaw: Hyde's, Mr. R. Martin. Mr. W. McGreachan carried off the two specials for best Yell. ck. and best clear or ticked Yellow in the open, also special for best clear or ticked Buff hen. Norwich and Border classes were judged by Mr. A. Chalmers (Kirkintilloch), and Brit., etc., by Mr. J. L. Burnett (Govan); and not a single discordant note was heard as to the judges' selections. There was a large turn-out of visitors and fanciers from a distance, and the day's proceedings ought to total out satisfactorily, considering the counter-attractions elsewhere.

WEATHERBY.

The Weatherby F.S. held their 15th annual open shown in the Town Hall recently. The room allotted for the cage birds was an ideal one, having plenty of light, and being free from draughts. Mr. Raine makes an ideal secretary, and had his work well under his control. He received capital assistance from his brother fanciers. Entries did not come up to expectations, but the society should have advertised the show in CAGE BIRDS; perhaps another year they may be able to do so. Mr. Robinson won the medal for most points gained in the cage bird section. The awards were placed by Mr. Hewson (York).

CARMARTHEN.

This show was held on Dec. 16, at the Provision Market. The weather was very wintry, and no doubt affected the attendance to a marked extent. Unfortunately the printer who had the contract for the catalogues of show had a mishap—his machine smashing, the result being that no catalogues were available up to close of show. This means a dead loss to the society, and the officials are to be sympathised with on this account. Mr. F. King (assisted by Messrs. Thomas and Jenkins) makes a capital and hard-working secretary. The classes in most cases contained some good quality specimens, and the winning birds gave the judges difficulty in separating from other good ones. Many leading fanciers attended the show. The cards were placed by Messrs. C. A. House and T. Gamage, both of whom gave satisfaction.

The Canary Classes.

AYR.

The forty-eighth exhibition was held in the Volunteer's Hall on December 18th. The hall was well lighted from the top, and the exhibits were well staged, and could be seen without handling. Owing to the cold weather, many of the exhibits were a little humpy, and would not pull themselves together in time. Mr. Colin W. Paterson, the hon. secretary, worked remarkably well, and had the birds nicely staged, and the cards placed as soon as the award slips were handed in. The hall was packed during the afternoon and evening with visitors, and we had the pleasure of meeting many old fanciers from the surrounding districts. In the Norwich section Mr. Muir won 1st and spl for best Nor., also taking 1st in the hens. Mr. Rhodes and Mr. Walsh staged some fine Yorkshires, Mr. Rhodes' cl. yell. won spl for best Yorks., and Mr. Walsh took spl for hens. The Borders were a fine lot, but this section had suffered most from the cold Mr. Massie secured spl for best Border, with his buff cock, a lovely bird. Some grand Mules and Hybrids were benched. Mr. W. McQuiston staged some toppers, and won in both classes. His Lin.-Can. cl. body, even wings won the spl for best Mule or Hybrid. The British birds were in strong force. The Goldfinches and Linnets were a treat to see, and Mr. Hanney's Goldie is a gem with good blaze and beautiful buttons, and of grand condition. Mr. McQuiston benched a pair of clinking Greenies, taking 1st and 2nd with them. Some beautiful Twites, Siskins and Redpolls were to be seen amongst the exhibits, and it took the judge, Mr. W. Mundell, of Bradford, well into the afternoon before he sent in his awards. The competition was very keen throughout.

WOOD GREEN AND DISTRICT F.A.

First annual members' sbow held in the Alexandra Council Schools, Dec. 4. This society, wbich has not been so very long established, bas made a rapid advance in point of membership and of interest. Dr. Corner is the president, and the Association bas influential support. Mr. T. Callegari is tbe bon. secretary, and he bas laboured hard to bring about the success which bas attended the society's career. Tbe entry of cage birds was a good one, and the quality was of a high standard in some sections, even better than that seen at many members' shows of much longer standing. Norwich were a really fine collection. Crests also were good, and to a bird in tbis section, owned by Mr. E. J. Gill, was awarded special for best in sbow, as well as two otbers. Yorksbires were a very fair collection. The birds were comfortably staged, the room being cosy and free from draught. There was a nice attendance of visitors during the evening. Tbe society had got together a nice list of specials for a first event. The other special winners were Messrs. J. Pettitt (3), P. Brooks (2), G. T. Green, H. Clay, J. Griffin, B. Hanson (2), W. Penney, and Pledger. Mr. G. Gardner judged.

Club Reports.

PAISLEY AND DISTRICT O.A.

General meeting held on Dec. 18th, in Mrs. Adam Kelly's, 2, St. James' Street, Mr. James Allison presiding. The Treasurer submitted balance-sheet for last show, which, after being criticised as regards certain items, was passed. The members were sorry to see a deficit on the year's working. The meeting agreed to the levy of 1s. on each member to clear off the deficit, the same to be remitted to the secretary, who will acknowledge receipt of same.—JOHN KELLY, sec., 7, Underwood Lane, Paisley.

LLANELLY AND DISTRICT C.B.S.

Meeting held at headquarters Dec. 18th, with a very fair attendance, Mr. D. R. Jones in the chair. The hostess of our headquarters (Mrs. Williams) has presented to the society a handsome silver cup, to be won tbree times (open to the County of Carmarthen). A most hearty vote of thanks was unanimously given to the donor. As the time for our annual show is drawing near, it was passed that no more specials can be allotted in schedule after the next meeting. Exhibitors should note that all our classes are open at our show, and we trust they will give us their hearty support.—D. JOHN, secretary.

NORTHERN B.B.M. AND F.B.C.

Meeting held recently at Lockhart's Cafe, 65, Grainger Street, Newcastle. It was proposed by Mr. Taylor, seconded by Mr. McKenzie, and agreed, tbat Dr. Henry become a member. Mr. Taylor proposed that Mr. Shepherd give a few remarks on Light Mule breeding. The speaker related some very interesting incidents, which opened a long discussion. Messrs. Robson and McKenzie also gave their views. Proposed by Mr. Taylor, and seconded by Mr. Atkinson, that we hold a table show at our next meeting, and that it be held in conjunction witb the Northern Y.C.C.; which was agreed to, the following classes to be provided: Linnet, Greenfinch, Hen Finch or Bunting, fieldmoulted, Foreign, and A.S. that has never won a money prize, Mr. J. Maddison, judge. A hearty vote of thanks to our worthy chairman, Mr. Shepherd, brought a very interesting meeting to a close.—J. BERTRAM, sec.

LANCASHIRE AND LIZARD F.A.

Meeting held on Dec. 4th at the Old Boar's Head, Middleton. Only a moderate attendance of members put in an appearance, Mr. John Swalwell in the chair. A fair amount of correspondence was gone through. It was decided to leave the allotting of tbe Toronto silver medals over till next season, as most of our cup shows are completed; that special given by Mr. Vickers for best Lancashire be given to Mr. Adams, Mr. Hardy not being a member. Mr. Dewsnap wins Ramsden's special at Horticultural Hall, and also silver medal given by Mr. J. Rukin, for best bird shown by a novice. Next meeting will be at Manchester on Jan. 8th, to thoroughly tbrash a question out relating to one of the members. A bearty vote of thanks to Mr. Swalwell for so ably presiding brought the meeting to a close. Challenge cup and medals, points to date: Lancashires: Champions: W. Adams 111, W. Lee 67, J. Vickers 40, J. Oldbam 33 points. Novice: A. Hordern 41, and W. Ridgard, 11 points. Lizards: Champions: J. Dewsnap 170, J. Rukin 154, J. Hampshire 113, and W. R. Barnes 81 points. Novice: W. Dewsnap 61, A. Martin 31, J. Lee 30, A. Bosworth 3, W. Bacon 2, and B. Salway 2 points.—J. RUKIN, hon. sec.

NORWICH PLAINHEAD CLUB.

The specials offered by tbe club have been won as follows:—N.P.C. cup and medal, J. E. Davies, 85 points; medal for runner-up, T. Seed, 73 points; tea urn, presented by J. E. Davies, Esq., J. and J. Hopkins, 74 points; J. Trengove 56, S. Cook, 56; Ramsden's 32s. tea pot, T. Seed, 67 points; J. Trengove, 56 points; Mr. Aitchinson's special, H. F. Marsh, 38 points; W. Crimes, Hayburst, Trengove, Seed, and Sandiford; gold medal for best bird in champion section at Pendleton Club Show, Messrs. Cleminson and Taylor; Toronto medal for best bird opposite colour, T. Sandiford; money specials for best birds at club show, Messrs. Cleminson and Taylor, J. E. Davies, H. F. Marsh, S. Cook, R. W. Mercer, and J. Trengove. Amateur prizes: Tea pot, coffee pot, and cream jug for first, second, and tbird most points gained by an amateur at cup shows, C. Sutton, 41 points; W. Cundiff, 33; and J. Oliver, 26; bound volume for most points gained by an amateur in hen classes at club sbow, presented by Mr. F. Carl, proprietor of "Cage Birds," G. Deveril; gold medal for best bird shown by an amateur at club show, Mr. H. Peak; money prizes for best birds at club show in amateur section, Messrs. H. Peak, W. Cundiff, C. Oliver, G. T. Fletcher, and E. Sutton (2). On behalf of the committee, I beg to give the best thanks of tbe club to all donors to the special prize fund, and the donors of special prizes. I should be much obliged if those members who have not yet paid their subscriptions would do so before December 31st, as I want to get revised list of members out as soon as possible after, and bave books, etc., audited.—JNO. HOPKINS, bon. sec.

CITY AND SUBURBAN A.C.B.

The gratifying number of 45 members attended the meeting held Dec. 13th at the Church Institute, Paddington Street, to do honour to that brilliant and accomplished fancier, Mr. J. S. Clarke. Although the Crest and crest-bred breeders are at the present time in the minority, there were no less than 25 of tbat variety staged for a judging competition, and for tbe purpose of welcoming Mr. Clarke as the final judge. With Mr. A. C. Burn in the chair, letters were read from Mr. F. W. Thorpe (tendering his resignation), Mrs. Barker (giving an intensely interesting account of her feathered pets), and Mr. J. Radford (giving an explanation of a special prize). A resolution was moved by Mr. P. Adamthwaite, seconded by Mr. Prance, and supported by Mr. G. Pile, that the secretary be directed to interview Mr. Thorpe, with a view to inducing him to reconsider his decision. The Hon. Mrs. Bourke, Mr. B. Pankhurst, and Mr. B. Thrower were elected members, and Mr. W. Clark was nominated for membership, and prize money won at the recent show was awarded, also special prizes. Twelve diplomas and six silver and plated cups were presented by the chairman. There being ties for three splendid prizes, it was decided to draw for tho same, viz.: Mrs. Weston and Mr. W. Francis (Wyse Cup), Messrs. W. Shepherd and E. C. Offord (2s. 6d.), Mrs. Morrison and Mrs. J. Buckman (2s. 6d.). Silver and plated cups were promised by Messrs. R. L. Crisp, R. J. Watts, A. J. A. Marley, and V. Wynn, the same being enthusiastically thanked. The nomination of officers for 1910 was then taken, also judges for the pair show on Jan. 29th, viz., Messrs. R. L. Crisp, T. Heath, J. S. Clarke, G. E. Weston, J. Robson, and C. A. House. Upon a vote being taken, Mr. J. Robson (with 20 votes) and Mr. J. S. Clarke (with (19) were elected to be submitted to the members. A collection was made on behalf of Mr. Gardner's "Old Folks' Fund," which realised £1. A vote of thanks was accorded to Mr. W. Shepherd for the use of the Council Chamber for the year, and also to Mr. H. Dickinson for defraying the cost of filling in the diplomas. The Crest and crest-bred competition then took place, with three champions, nine amateurs, and twenty novices taking part. There were two classes, viz., 13 Crests and 12 crest-breds. The closing time having been reached, Mr. Clarke, unfortunately, was prevented from making any general remarks, but confined himself to explaining his reasons for placing his awards, and answering questions, which he did with consummate skill. For making the most entries Messrs. H. W. Dickinson and E. C. Offord were each presented with half a peck of canary seed. A hearty vote of thanks was enthusiastically accorded to Mr. Clarke for his kind services, which was acknowledged in generous terms, including the splendid classes before him and the number of members present. A vote of thanks to the chairman closed the meeting.—VICTOR WYNN, hon. sec.

LEITH O.S.

Monthly meeting held in Liberal Club Hall, Hope Street, on Dec. 11, the president, Mr. J. Hendry, in the chair. The financial report was considered highly satisfactory, and showed the society to be in a flourishing condition. The retiring officebearers were all re-elected, with the addition of Mr. J. Lumsden as vice-president. It was agreed to hold a table show and judging competitions on Feb. 11. A motion was also carried that the society be open to fanciers residing within a radius of 12 miles. Eleven new members were proposed and admitted, bringing the total up to 53, with the promise of a good many more. Fanciers are invited to become members, as this is the only society in Leith which provides classes for all the different varieties. Anyone desirous of joining may obtain full particulars if they communicate with me.—GEORGE BROWN, I, Coalhill, Leith.

LEYTON AND DISTRICT C.B.A.

A highly successful dinner (incidentally the first) was held at the Constitutional Club on Dec. 14th, when between 40 and 50 fanciers of both sexes gathered, and it was decided to make it an annual event. Amongst those present were Mr. and the Misses Mallett, Mr. and Miss Hale, Mr. and Mrs. Williamson, Mr. and Mrs. Horsup, Mr. and Mrs. Morris, Mr. and Mrs. Skinner, Mr. and Mrs. Cooper, Mr. and Mrs. Roberts, Mr. and Mrs. Shankley, and Messrs. B. F. Forse, A. B. Forse, Rhodes, Carr, White, Wallace, Stevens, Tringham, Billingsley, Marley, Teasdale, and many others whose names I did not get. It had been arranged that Mr. Robson should preside, but to the regret of all a wire was received from him announcing his inability to keep the engagement. At the suggestion of the Hon. Secretary (Mr. B. F. Forse), and readily acclaimed by all, Mr. J. S. Clarke was elected to take the chair, and a good start was made. The viands soon spoilt the appetites of the diners, but nothing could have spoilt the harmony that prevailed from start to finisb; it might have been one big family party, and a happy family, too. The room in which it was held measured some 60ft. by 30ft. (originally the dining room of a grand old mansion). Only one man could sit for any length of time at the end of the table nearest tbe fire, namely the hon. secretary (Mr. B. F. Forse), who did justice to his dinner, and seemingly revelled in a scorch at tbe same time. Five minutes' interval sufficed to clear the tables, and as if by magic a well-appointed stage and piano made its appearance. "Where is the programme?" quotb the Chairman. "Make it yourself," said the "forceful" bon. sec. Mr. J. S. C., who was in his very best form, rose to the occasion, and having tbe reins he never permitted the pace to slacken from start to finish. Mr. Councillor Smitb, a vice-president and a generous patron of the Association, having to leave immediately after the dinner to attend a Council meeting, expressed his delight at having been able to attend, and promised continued and hearty support. The Chairman announced that all the gentlemen must sing one song and all the ladies two songs. And they did it, and what's more gaily doubled the quantity asked for. During the evening the toasts of the "Fancy Press," "The Ladies," "The Leyton and Dis. C.B.A. and Kindred Societies" were ably proposed and replied to. Mr. Rhodes proposed a hearty vote of thanks to the chairman, who suitably replied, and to the strains of "Auld Lang Syne," a thoroughly enjoyable evening came to a close.—J. A. BARTLETT.

CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C.

Under the White Rose.

HALIFAX Show, held on Friday and Saturday last, was a great success. The members had gone in for a good, generous classification, and had the very gratifying experience of breaking all records for Yorkshire Union shows. They had secured the patronage of all the specialist clubs of the West Riding, and therefore absolutely the cream of the Fancy was on view. It is rare indeed that fanciers have the opportunity of visiting such a show within a reasonable distance, and they turned up in full force to take the chance whilst there.

UNFORTUNATELY, on the Friday the weather-clerk was in a bad mood, and withheld as much daylight as possible, which made judging very difficult. But on the Saturday it was somewhat pleasanter, in the evening turning to a crisp frost, making the carrying home of cases (especially those that held winners), a light task.

BY the time these lines appear we shall be within a few hours of Christmas, and fanciers will be preparing for their members' shows. A great many are to be held on Monday (Boxing Day), amongst others Leeds, Keighley, Gt. Horton, Wibsey and Skelmanthorpe. So fanciers will not miss their weekly "day out" (there being no open show during the week-end). I wish all a merry Christmas.

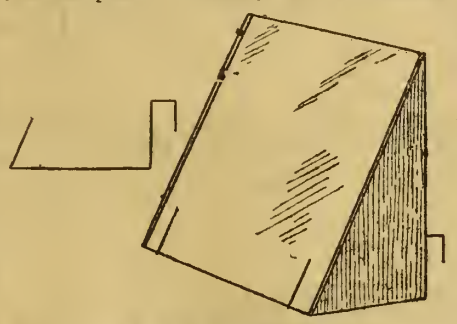
No. 372.
A Pad For Travelling Cases.
Sent by Mr. W. M. Thomson, Eastgate. Moffat.

I forward you an idea, which I have on my travelling cases, and which saves the birds many a bump and shock on their way to shows, and also has the advantage of saving the case from chipping. First, cut a piece of cloth one and a quarter inches wide, from any old garment. Cut enough to go round bottom of case.



A "Buffer" for Travelling Cases.

Now double the material over, so that one is a quarter of an inch narrower, and stitch it to keep it in place. The double piece of cloth is brought to the edge of case—a little over the edge is better, with the narrow part underneath. Put a tack here and there, till you have been round the case, then glue the single part of cloth to case, and the pad is complete. The sketch will help anyone to understand.—W. M. THOMSON.

No. 373.
A Handy Seed-box Fastener.
Sent by Mr. W. H. Symes, 28, Back Lane, Bradford.

Below I give a sketch of a fastener for a seed-box, which I hope will be of use to many of your readers. All you have to do is to secure two pieces or ordinary wire, long enough to bend round bottom of seed-box, and on to the front of the cage as illustrated. I find this very easily made, and one is not afraid of cracking the wood of which the box is made, as with the ordinary screw hooks; and it therefore finds one place less for the detested red mite to croop into.—W. H. SYMES.

The Young Naturalist.

Prizes of 1s. and two of 6d. each will be given weekly for the best three anecdotes about birds written on postcards. Competitors must be under sixteen years of age, and state whence stories are taken. Two stars indicate the Winning Contribution; one star the runners up.

*The Tame Canary.

There was an elderly lady who had a Canary. At first it was very wild, but she was kind to it till it got quite tame, and would come out of its cage. When she was having her dinner it would come on the table to have something to eat. Then it would hop back again into its cage.—Sent by Frank Kilner (age 8), 387, Revidge Road, Blackburn.

Found, Fed and Freed.

One day in the springtime I went for a walk up a lane in Oxford, and I found a nest with five eggs in it. I went up every two days after. In a fortnight I found a young bird in it. It was feathered four days after. We brought it up on soaked bread and seed. It feeds itself now, and I like it very much. It is still alive, but it is in a wild state of nature now. It is a Hedge Sparrow.—Sent by Henry Handy (age 9), 58, Helen Road, Oxford.

*The Fate of the Greenfinch.

One day, while taking a walk through the fields I espied a pair of large Hawks circling in the air, when all of a sudden they both shot down in the high hedge where some Greenfinches had perched. One of them mounted into the air with a yellow cock in his claws, the other Hawk following, and then a terrible battle ensued in midair, the feathers flying in all directions, the Hawks finally parting with a piece each.—Sent by Alfred Arthur Darby (age 11), 149, Lyng Lane, West Bromwich.

The Bird in Legend, Lore and Reality.

By REGINA M. BLOCH.

Shakespeare makes mention of the Phœnix on several occasions. Possibly the immortal bard also credited the story with veracity, as not alone the Phœnix, but the griffin and the unicorn, too, were regarded as actually living creatures by Elizabethan naturalists.

An old Greek King named Picus was changed into a Woodpecker by Circe, according to myth, and from the flames of Ardea, a burning town, the Heron is said to have arisen, which melancholy bird haunts the "Song of Hiawatha."

The birds known to lore as Memnonides were believed to have been created from the ashes of Aurora's son, Memnon, whom Homer mentions in "The Iliad." The daughters of Anius were transformed into Doves and Periclymenus, the brother of the Argive hero, Kestor, became an Eagle, which bird was dedicated to Jupiter, because it could fly higher than any other feathered creature, was supposed to be unharmed by lightning, and could look into the sun without blinking.

The mention of an Eagle evermore reminds me of the weird fairy-child in W. B. Yeats' poignant little play, "The Land of Heart's Desire," who declared herself to be "older than the Eagle, that blinks and blinks on Ballygawley Hill, and he is the oldest thing under the moon." Coyx, the monarch of Claros, having been drowned, his wife Halcyone was so grieved at his death that the pitying deities metamorphosed them both into Kingfishers, and they were again united in that form. The sea was always believed to be calm when the female Kingfisher was sitting, from which the superstition the popular phrase of "Halcyon days" has its rise.

Among other Greek fables Cæneus was changed into a bird, Daedalion into a Hawk, Æsacus into a Sea-bird, known as the "Didapper," Skylla and her purple-locked father King Nisus into birds, Perdix into a Partridge, Ascalaphus into an Owl, and the Sirens into half-birds.

The Nightingale and the Swallow were once two sisters named respectively Philomela and Progne, and were changed into these birds for slaying Progue's child, Itys, a fable to which Æschylus refers in "Agammemnon, and which Swinburne has adorned with some exquisite stanzas.

A Vulture devours the liver of Prometheus, and the Raven was originally white according to the Greek story. This latter bird seems to have possessed an unusual fascination for the poets, and not alone did Edgar Allan Poe write his divinely melodious poem, "The Raven," concerning it, but Heinrich Heine also embodied it in a part of one or two poems. Heine besides this produced some verses on a Seagull, whilst Tennyson glorified both the Owl and the Blackbird. The Greeks believed the Magpies to have originally been some presumptuous maidens who dared to compare themselves with the Muses, and were changed by them in punishment.

Geese were venerated by the Romans since their startled flocks once aroused the sleeping guardians of the Capitol by their chattering when it was beset by the Gauls. The Goose is really a far more intelligent bird than it is vulgarly thought to be, and I have often seen a Geese-herd in a Bohemian village, go off with a boon companion, and leave the Geese to their own devices, upon which the birds would wheel round like a regiment of soldiers and go home all by themselves amid much clamour and tribulation; although they never seemed to dream of going in at any other door but the right one, before which they would stop and plead admittance in an unmelodious chorus.

King Solomon who, like the Anglo-Saxon Singurth, understood the language of birds said that every bird-cry was either a praise to the Creator or an adjunction to remember Him. That wise King was also credited with always keeping a Peewit with him, as this bird was supposedly able to look through the earth as through a sheet of glass, and could therefore tell the sovereign where treasures and springs were hidden within our mother earth's breast.

According to the Assyrians, the chiefs of Hell were like birds, and covered with feathers.

The Indians love the Persian Bulbul and the Kokali, and the Egyptians once worshipped the grey and very filthy Ibis, a bird suggestive of tombs and pyramids, whilst their sun-god Ra, was pictured with the head and beak of a Parrot.

The Peacock, as before remarked upon, was the sacred bird of Juno, who is fabled to have placed the hundred eyes of the watchful Argus in its tail, after he was slain by Mercury. Curiously enough, the Peacock's beautiful feathers are ever regarded as unlucky by the superstitious. Buddha caressed a wild Swan when it was wounded by his cousin Devadatta whom Professor Rhys Davids calls the Judas Iscariot of Buddhism and in Sir Thomas Malory's "Noble History of the Court of King Arthur," Merlin once appeared in a magic guise with a brace of wild Geese in his hand.

The Arabs cherish the odd fable that the Ostrich hatches its eggs by merely looking at them. These people also have a bird they call the Abmelee or eater of locusts. This Abmelee only appears (according to tradition) when it is cajoled in the following fashion: When the locust plague distresses the agriculturists, it may be stopped by fetching a pitcher of water from a certain fountain near the city of Cuerch in Persia, whose water possesses miraculous properties. This pitcher, if carried in the open air, without passing through house or vault appears to prove a Pied Piper of Hamelin to the birds, for it will be followed by feathered creatures "in great flocks of a red and black colour," which fly and cry after the men who carry the water from the fountain and come to the place whereon it is fixed, which is usually one of the spots which the locusts are beleaguering, when the birds will destroy them all. If the water, however, be lost or spilt, the birds will disappear immediately.

The Emperor Charles of Spain once left his tent standing in the camping-place because a Swallow had built its nest upon it, and the great German statesman Bismarck was fond of the Plover, of whose eggs he received whole parcels on his birthdays, whilst the late Pope Leo loved the feathered inhabitants of his Vatican garden. The Red Indians called the Seagulls "Kavoshk," or "the Noble Scratchers," since they clawed an opening for the legendary hero, Hiawatha, to escape by, when he was swallowed like a second sort of Jonah, by a giant sturgeon. Seagulls, according to the ancient Scandinavians, were the souls of the dead sea-kings, which I think a truly lovely poetical superstition.

Penguins always strike me as being most weird birds, and whenever I have seen them on Arctic photographs, stalking upright in long processions amid the snow, it invariably seems to me as if they were a strange race of half-men, wrapped in dark mantles and full of the mysteries of the great unexplored Northlands, which probably lie beyond the farthest and frozen Arctic chains.

TWO CHRISTMAS COMPETITIONS.

OUR FRONTISPIECE.

A Prize for Birdie Artists.

Our Front Page last week was designed to be coloured. We offer a cash prize of half-a-guinea (10/6) for the best attempt at colouring the same which reaches us from one of our readers on or before Monday, January 3rd next. The medium to be employed is left to the discretion of the competitor. The finished attempt should be packed flat, or rolled in a tube, wherever possible, and have the sender's name and address written on the back. The whole of the front page should be coloured, not merely the frontispiece alone.

OUR CONUNDRUMS.

For all to Answer.

Half-a-crown will be paid to the reader who sends us the best answer on a postcard to any of the appended questions (that is, four half-crowns in all).

We ask competitors to adhere strictly to the following simple rules:—

1.—Answers must be written clearly on post cards only, with name and address at bottom and number of query at top.

2.—Each answer must be written on a separate post card.

3.—Answers must be written on one side of the post card only.

4.—All answers must be received by Thursday's post, December 30 next.

We should like competitors to understand that length of answer of itself will not count; nor will mere brevity. The point and pithiness of the answer and its general helpfulness (where possible) to novices are the main things to be considered.

The Questions.

1. What new variety of Canary ought breeders to strive for?
2. What British bird is best for the beginner—and why?
3. Is cage or aviary the best for Hybrid breeding purposes—and why?
4. What foreign bird makes the best ladies' pet—and why?

In both competitions entries are accepted only on the understanding that the Editor's decision shall be final.

The Crested Canary Club.

Will C.C.C. members bear in mind that the "Roberts" Silver Challenge Cup is offered for competition at the Scottish National,—J. S. CLARKE, hon. sec.

Canaries Set Free.

It is reported by the daily Press that a large case containing over a hundred Canaries was smashed by falling from a cart outside the railway station at Stettin (Germany), and all the birds escaped.

Utrecht Show.

The two photographs of Utrecht Show which appeared in our last issue were the work of that talented and versatile artist, Mr. F. J. S. Chatterton, whose skill in brush and pencil has on so many past occasions given pleasure to our readers.

Liverpool to Edinburgh.

A few Liverpool fanciers are running a saloon to the Scottish National Show, writes Mr. V. H. Deacon (21a, Exchange Station, Liverpool). Will anyone in Lancashire or Cheshire who would care to join the party please communicate with me?

Was it a Cuckoo Clock?

I should like to ask lovers of bird life if they have ever known the Cuckoo to have been heard at this time of the year, writes Mr. J. Day (Swanage) to the "Dorset County Chronicle," on December 7th last. I heard it quite distinctly about quarter to eight on Thursday morning. I was riding my bicycle along the Ulwell Road when I heard the Cuckoo in a tree in the field on my left calling "Cuckoo" quite twenty times. No doubt some of your readers will laugh, but I can assure them my statement is quite correct. The notes were not quite so clear as one hears in the spring, being rather more hoarse, but they came from a Cuckoo right enough.

A Correction.

The letter in our last issue headed "Alleged Mix-up of Awards at Margate Show," should in reality have been entitled (as the context clearly indicates) "at Ramsgate Show." We have to tender our apologies to the officials of the Margate Show for this regrettable confusion of names by our printer. The secretary of the Isle of Thanet F.S. (Mr. S. C. Boncey), who promotes the Margate Show, to be held on Jan. 26 and 27 next, writes: "My society has always held a name for straightforward dealing, and testimonials in my possession will answer for same." We may point out, however, that no question of "straightforward dealing" was involved, and so far as Margate Show is concerned, we have never heard any reflection cast upon its good name.

Our Xmas Competitions.

We have received one or two answers in our Query Competition of last week, which do not conform to the rules by being written on a postcard. Competitors must adhere strictly to the rules; replies sent other than on the back of a postcard cannot compete. Remember that the closing date is Thursday next, December 30th.—In the Painting Competition all efforts must reach us by Monday, January 3rd.—Our Literary Competition promises to be a highly popular one, and we hope all our readers will put part of their holiday leisure to profitable use by penning their experiences in the hobby, and endeavouring to help young beginners; also to annex a prize. There is no limit—a reader with the essential all-round knowledge can send in an article for all five sections. Then there is the handsome original painting of birds, value £4 4s., which awaits the writer of the essay adjudged the best over all those sent in. This competition remains open until January 24th next. Full particulars of all three competition will be found on another page.

Twitterings.

This year more than ever we have received a huge number of seasonable messages from readers conveying in the kindliest terms their appreciation of CAGE BIRDS and its efforts to cater for their hobby. We take this opportunity to most heartily reciprocate the good wishes expressed towards our journal and its staff. The continued growth of CAGE BIRDS, with its ever-widening circle of readers—the past year has been one of gratifying progress in every direction—we are keenly sensible is due to its many old and valued friends, with their good-will towards and affectionate regard for their journal, and the tolerant eye turned upon any shortcomings of ours. We wish readers the world over

A Merry Christmas and a Happy and Prosperous New Year.

Leeds Cage Bird Society.—See Club Notices column.—(ADVT.)

Mr. Bullough, we hear, won special for most points at the recent Southport Show, and not Mr. Walsh, as reported.

Our annual show, writes Mr. C. W. Law, hon. secretary of the Highgate, Hampstead and Dis. C.B.S., was financially a great success.

Mr. W. P. Barnes, the well-known cage bird judge, has, we hear, removed from Launder Terrace to 23a, London Road, Grantham.

Uddingston report credits McQuiston with 4th prize in the Linnet class, whereas I won that honour.—S. WILLIAMS (Burnbank).

Guisborough Show, January 1st. Splendid prize list and specials. Entries close December 25th, to R. Mays, 58, Bolchow Street.—(ADVT.)

Class 38 in our schedule should read: "Variegated or Dark Mulo or Hybrid," writes Mr. W. H. Wright, hon. secretary of the Carlisle and District C.B.S.

Entries for Dunfermline Show close on December 27th. Lose no time, but send your entries to the secretary, J. Templeman, 61, Maitland Street.—(ADVT.)

OBITUARY.

Mr. J. NORTH (Reading).

It is with the deepest regret that we learn from his daughter of the demise, after a very short but painful illness, of that old and widely-esteemed fancier Mr. J. North (Reading). Only some few days ago Mr. North was officiating as judge at one of our shows, and the absence of any knowledge concerning his illness serves to deepen the shock occasioned by the suddenness of his passing away. Mr. North has been connected with CAGE BIRDS from its very earliest days, and his work in its pages, and also his work for the Fancy at large, redounded infinitely to his credit, and made for him a host of friends, even though to many of them he was known only by name. Our "Post-Mortem" column has been under Mr. North's charge, and he discharged this task with ability. In our next issue we shall hope to give a more adequate sketch of Mr. North's long and interesting career in the Fancy. He was in his fifty-ninth year, and passed away on the evening of Dec. 19th last. Our heartfelt sympathy goes out to his family and relatives.

The 2nd bird in the Green or Cinnamon Border Class, at Gateshead Show, should read in the report Millington and not Milligan.—JOHN W. MILLINGTON (Cockermouth).

The Border City (Carlisle) O.S. are holding a members' show at headquarters on December 27th, when 21 classes are being provided, and Messrs. Dolan and G. Davidson will judge.

The Guisborough and District "Priory" C.B.S. entry forms arrived too late from the printers, so will fanciers send their entries on, and we will classify them all right.—R. MAYS, hon. secretary.

Our entries are practically nil, and we are bound to extend to Thursday, December 30th; so that all bearing that date will be in time.—J. WALTERS, hon. secretary, Waunarlwydd P.P. and Cage Bird Society.

I have received a communication from Mr. J. Fletcher, with no further address (but post mark Wolverhampton), writes Mr. E. E. Pass (Hucknall). If he will send his address I shall be pleased to attend to his requirements.

Exhibitors should not overlook the annual show of the Wishow O.S., to be held on January 1st, in the Factory Buildings. Twenty-three classes are provided for cage birds, and Messrs. A. S. Nisbet and J. M'Lay are the judges appointed.

Of the many rarities in the Foreign bird classes at the recent Horticultural Hall (L.C.B.A.) Show, we are informed that the majority were originally imported by that well-known firm, Messrs. De Von and Co., Ltd. (Bethnal Green Road, London, E.).

Line 46 of my letter, on page 565 last week, should read, "I prefer biscuit and bread" (not egg and bread), writes Mr. A. Brown (Wood Green). This is to stop the egg food being too wet, and, besides, it is not too dry, as when made with all biscuit.

I have moulted 24 British birds this year, including 12 Goldies, and have not lost a feather, as the saying goes. Needless to say CAGE BIRDS had something to do with this, as I used to lose birds in considerable numbers, and more quickly than I could buy them. I never miss "C.B." on a Friday night.—J. SCOTT (Gateshead-on-Tyne).

We have again extended our classification in some of the sections, writes Mr. Jas. Winter, secretary, Scottish National Show, notably the Foreign Birds Section, in which the awards will be placed by that well-known expert, Mr. C. T. Maxwell (London). Preparations for the show are completed, and we now appeal to all fanciers to second our efforts by sending us a record entry.

I am sorry to say that I shall have to discontinue my advertisements for a few weeks, writes Mr. H. Orford, bird cage manufacturer (Eccles, Manchester). I have had a fire in my workshop which has done a good deal of damage, but fortunately it has not touched my boards. I hope customers who see this will kindly excuse any delay in the delivery of orders. I hope to be able to get in working order in a week or two.

The "Ever-ready Movable Bracket" (as advertised in our columns) is, we hear, meeting with great success, and quite superseding the old-fashioned method of hanging up cages by means of nails, chains, and the like. It is certainly a most ingenious appliance, and simple and thoroughly satisfactory in use, while an improvement, which obviates all possibility of friction on the suspending wire, has now been made, giving practically ever-lasting wear.

To Advertisers and Readers.

We have been regretfully compelled to hold over a large number of small prepaid advertisements from the present issue, owing to the senders' neglecting, or overlooking, our notices in the last issue that all matter for this week must reach us on the Monday (owing to the holidays necessitating publication one day earlier than usual). All these advertisements will duly appear next week, and we ask those who find their announcements omitted from the current number to kindly accept this explanation of their non-appearance.

Many letters, show and club reports have also had to be held over a week for the same reason.

Our entries closing date is January 3rd and not as stated in our schedule, writes Mr. W. Pawley, hon. secretary of the Plumstead and Woolwich C.B.S. Also classes 5, 6, 7, 12, 13, and 14 are for 1909 birds only. We are giving good classes for British and foreign birds, and are hoping exhibitors of these birds will support us. The Mayor of Woolwich has consented to open the show on the first day, and several extra specials are coming to hand.

I notice in your excellent report of the L.C.B.A. show, several inaccuracies, owing, I fancy, to mistakes in placing prize slips on cages, viz., Class 96 (any age Lizards except 1909) should read, 1st and 2nd, Rukin, and not J. Dewsnap, as given, as I was awarded those prizes, and have received prize money for them; also Class 97, I win 3rd prize, and not vhc, as given, I also having received prize money for this.—JOHN RUKIN, (Rawtenstall).

At Felinfoel third annual show, held December 18th, writes Mr. T. J. Davies, the secretary, the day was beautifully fine, and we were glad to see so many prominent exhibitors present, and we beg to thank all the fanciers who supported us. The show, as a whole, was a great success, and some very fine specimens were staged. Messrs. Hammacott and Card (Swansea) won the open cup for most points. Mr. Longden and Mr. Edwards were the runners up. Mr. Jones (Llanelly) won the members' cup for most points.

I was greatly pleased, and also surprised, on opening my CAGE BIRDS at 8 a.m. on Friday last to find a splendid reproduction of the picture of myself and birdroom. I thank you heartily for same, and hope personally to see the time when CAGE BIRDS will appear each week twice the size and price. I might say that, after clearing all my stock some time back, I had decided to have a rest, but, oh! I soon missed my birds, and I have got together again a fine stock. I must say that I greatly enjoyed Mr. Chirgwin's letter in your supplement. Many a laugh have I had at this gentleman's expense, and may this good-hearted comedian live long to make others laugh.—A. BROWN (London, N.).

Sutton-in-Ashfield O.S., a very old society which had, unfortunately, been allowed to fall in popularity, is now making a fresh start, we are informed, a new secretary in Mr. E. Parnell (2, Station Street), and a president in Mr. Jesse Briggs (a well-known local and Notts. county fancier), having been appointed, and the society bids fair to be its old self once again. It has become affiliated to the C.B.U. The membership at present is upwards of 20, including Mr. W. Vardy (Huthwaite), Messrs. Norwood Bros. (Sutton), and other widely-known fanciers; headquarters, the Railway Inn. They propose holding their annual show on January 8th, 1910, particulars of which will be found in our advertising columns.

The coloured plate of the Hawfinch was really splendid. I am having it framed.—S. ANNETT (Wareham).

We have received from Mr. F. Parkinson (Grosvenor Street West, Birmingham), a sample of the 12 by 12 punched bar wire front he is offering at 2½d. through our advertisement columns, and we must say that it seems remarkable value for the money, very strong and serviceable.

The Golden Plover.

In the poulterers' shops and markets may now be seen strings of waders and wildfowl. Plovers are generally numerous, as the Lapwing is probably as plentiful as any of our larger wild birds. Among these may frequently be seen a few Golden Plovers. These are easily identified by the golden-speckled plumage of the back. They are more highly prized for the table than the more common Lapwing, and more difficult to obtain.

Scotland's National Show.

The prize list of the forthcoming great Scottish National (Edinburgh) Show reaches us from the secretary, Mr. J. Winter (11, Parkside Street, Edinburgh), and will be found reviewed in this issue. The classification is magnificent, and the prizes and specials of a very generous description, our Scottish friends being evidently set upon breaking all records north of the border. We anticipate fanciers will respond with a great entry, such as the endeavours of the officials merit. The express train service is unequalled from all parts, and the show-room is very comfortable and nicely heated. Entries close this week-end; be in time.

More Convincing Proof.

Allow me through the columns of "Cage Birds" to thank those who answered my advert. Having had so many letters and cards, it is impossible for me to reply to any except those who enclosed stamp. Wishing "Cage Birds" the success in the future it has had in the past—and more.—W. RAND (Middlesbrough).

Through my advertisement I have sold upwards of £30 worth of birds, and have several more transactions in progress.—H. WILLFORD (Havenstreet, I.O.W.).

Kindly thank all who answered my advert. in "Cage Birds" re Monster Buff Norwich cock. I have had so many replies I cannot answer all. This speaks volumes for your valuable paper.—JAMES NELSON (Oldham).

Please thank all who answered my small advert. in your valuable paper, "Cage Birds," re Lady's Cycle. I may say I received dozens of replies from all parts, and that I had quite a task to decide upon the best offer. I disposed of it satisfactorily to both parties within a short time, thanks to "Cage Birds."—H. PRIEST (Henley-on-Thames).

I find "Cage Birds" a splendid advertising medium, having received orders from all parts, and one from Ireland; which speaks well for its circulation.—ERNEST G. KEW (Margate).

Last week, through my advertisement in your paper, "Cage Birds," I received no less than 73 orders for my Rollers, from all parts of England, and I can say that "Cage Birds" is the best, and really the only paper to do one any service.—WHOLESALE CANARY CO. (London, N.E.).

I wish to thank all who answered my advertisement in "Cage Birds," re Cinnamon Borders. I have not been able to answer half the enquiries, or to supply half the demand; which says a lot for your valuable paper, "Cage Birds."—ROBT. YOUNG (Newcastle-upon-Tyne).

I called last week on a person in our locality, in answer to an advertisement of his in "Cage Birds," but he was already suited, and quite proud of the transaction. I saw a drawer full of correspondence in reply to the "ad."—about 100, I was told. Well done, "Cage Birds."—M. W. MORGAN (Aberdare).

I am sorry I could not possibly answer all the applicants for Gold bangle which I advertised in "Cage Birds." I have been a reader for 4½ years.—S. H. CANTER (Aberdare).

"Cage Birds" Grand Xmas Literary Competition.

£9 9s. IN PRIZES.

We have decided to again hold a Christmas Literary Competition, to meet the wishes of readers, and the Editor offers five One Guinea Cash Prizes under the following conditions:—

One Guinea Cash for the best original essay on any topic relating to Canaries. Competitors may deal with any one variety (such as the Norwich), or more than one variety (such as the Norwich and the Crest together), and questions relating thereto, or may take the general management, breeding, etc., of Canaries from either the domestic or exhibition side.

One Guinea Cash for the best ance and management, etc., of any one original essay on any topic relating to British Birds. The habits, appear- particular species may be discussed, or they may be dealt with collectively, or in groups, as may suit the desire or knowledge of the essayist.

One Guinea Cash for the best original essay on the art of Mule or Hybrid Breeding, whether in cage or aviary, and between any species of bird (either British or Foreign).

One Guinea Cash for the best original essay on any topic relating to Foreign Birds. The habits, appearance and management, etc., of any one particular species may be discussed, or they may be dealt with collectively, or in groups, as may suit the desire or knowledge of the essayist.

One Guinea Cash for the best original essay written from the aviarist's point of view, embracing the fitting up, stocking, and general management of an aviary, whether of Canaries, British Birds, or Foreign Birds, or a suitable combination.

An original Painting of birds, Value Four Guineas, will be awarded to the best essay, in the opinion of the judges, out of all the sections.

Cash in Exchange for your Experiences.

There must be thousands among the readers of CAGE BIRDS with much knowledge stored away in their heads upon the above subjects. Utilise the Christmas holidays to put that knowledge on paper for the benefit of your fellow bird-keepers, and in exchange for your experiences there may be a cash prize waiting that will help you to buy some bird or other acceptable item you are a-wanting. Turn your spare moments to profitable account. Remember that all articles published by us will be paid for (note rules), also that photographs and drawings may accompany articles.

The Closing Date, remember, is January 24th next.

RULES.

(Read these very carefully.)

Each essay must be clearly written (or typed), on one side of the paper only.

The length is left to competitors, but essays should not contain less than 1,000 words wherever possible.

Faults of spelling and grammar will not be counted against any essay, practical utility, interest, and simplicity being the chief essentials.

No name or address must be put on any essay, but each must be signed with a nom-de-plume, the sender's name and address being attached on a separate sheet of paper.

The Editor's decision will be final. Competent assistance will be called in to aid him in arriving at his decision.

All essays sent in (and any accompanying sketches or photographs) become the property of CAGE BIRDS, but all which are published (over and above the winning essay) will be duly paid for according to their worth to us.

All entries must reach CAGE BIRDS office, 154, Fleet-street, London, E.C., on or before Monday, January 24th next. Write "Essay Competition," on top left-hand corner of envelope or package.

Questions and Answers.

DOUBTS AND DIFFICULTIES SOLVED BY SPECIALISTS.

Queries will be answered under the following Conditions;—

(1)—All questions must be clearly written in ink (or typewritten) on one side only of paper, and must conclude with either the correct name of querist, or a pseudonym, or initials

(2)—The proper name and address in full of querist must always be written on a separate sheet of paper and enclosed with the query. In no case must the address appear on the query.

(3)—Queries intended for different specialists must not be written on the same sheet of paper.

(4)—Queries must not include or be included in orders for books, instructions re advertisements, or any other matter for publication.

(5)—The department to which the queries refer must be stated in bold letters on the left-hand corner of the query.

(6)—If an answer in the same week's issue is desired, queries must be posted to reach us by Monday's first post at latest. Queries will be dealt with in the order in which they are received, and only as space permits. The earlier queries are received the better attention they are likely to have.

(7)—Queries relating to illnesses of birds, except enquiries as to cause of death (for which see Post Mortems) will be answered by return of post on receipt of a postal order for sixpence and an addressed stamped envelope. Queries of an ordinary nature will be answered by post, if desired, on receipt of a postal order for one shilling and a stamped addressed envelope.

(8)—All who require letters of complaints written to advertisers must state grounds for doing so clearly and fully, and enclose a fee of sixpence, otherwise their letters will not receive attention. All the fees received from this source will be handed over in full to the "Referee's" Poor Children's Dinner Fund (London).

(9)—All queries must be addressed the Editor. "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C. Only queries so sent will be answered. Postcards are not admissible.

THE following gentlemen represent CAGE BIRDS staff of ADVISORY EXPERTS. Queries must in no case be addressed to any of them individually, but to the Editor.

NOTE.—If an answer is required concerning the proper mating, etc. of Norwich, Yorkshires, Crests, Cinnamons, Greens, Borders, Lizards, Scotch or any other variety of the Canary family, we shall, should the querist desire us to do so, be pleased to submit his question for answer to some leading specialist of the day on the variety concerned

CANARY QUERIES.

Answered by CLAUDE ST. JOHN.

Crest-bred Mopy.

Duffer.—I suspect this bird is troubled somewhat with a constipated condition. There is nothing wrong with the diet, but you might cut down the mixed seed by one half for a few weeks, and give only half a teaspoonful twice a week. Also stop the egg food entirely for a month, and give instead a small piece of bread (about equivalent in size to the amount of egg food you have been giving) soaked in milk, pressed slightly, and sprinkled with a little soft sugar. Three or four times a week give a small spray of watercress when obtainable in good condition, at other times give a morsel of ripe banana or a grape with the skin broken as a substitute. In the drinking water give six drops of syrup of rhubarb, and as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence, two days in every three for a week. After that give six drops of tincture of gentian, and four of aromatic sulphuric acid every second day for a week.

Moult Out of Season.

A.A.—You should have said how you have been feeding the bird, and where it is kept. Remove the cover from cage, and keep the latter in a fairly comfortable place, not necessarily overheated, but where the temperature is fairly equable night and day. Do not hang it high up near the ceiling, nor in the vicinity of burning lights in the evenings. Let it have plenty of fresh, pure air, but no draught of any kind. See that the cage is quite free from insect pests. Feed on a mixture of three parts Canary to one part summer rape, as a staple. Give separately half a teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake with four drops of sherry, and two of cod-liver oil emulsion mixed in it every second day, and on the alternate days a few grains of hemp, and a bit of ripe banana. Let the bird bathe as often as it desires to do so, provided it is not badly affected afterwards, and dries itself quickly. In the drinking water give six drops of syrup of rhubarb, and a pinch of Epsom salts for two days, and after this give six drops of tincture of gentian, and four of aromatic sulphuric acid for another four or five days. Finally, give six drops of tincture of steel and four of tincture of quinine in the water every second day for a fortnight. Continue this treatment for three weeks, and if the moulting is not quite stopped by that time, omit the last named medicine for a week, and then give it again for a fortnight, continuing the above dietary meantime.

Diarrhœa and Feather-Eating.

Emily Helps.—Stop giving the seed mixture you are using as staple diet, for a time at least, and feed on a more simple mixture, composed of two parts Canary seed to one part summer rape. See that the latter is the proper mild, nutty flavoured seed, and not the acrid stuff sometimes sold as summer rape. In addition, give separately, a few grains of hemp twice a week, on two other days, a small piece of bread scalded with milk, pressed nearly dry, and sprinkled with a pinch of maw seed. On each of the remaining days, give a morsel of ripe banana, but no other fruit, and no green food. Continue this treatment for a month. Keep the cage floor strewn with pine sawdust until the diarrhœa is quite stopped, and clean it out daily, and burn it at once. Also see that the perches are kept as clean as possible. In the drinking water give six drops of syrup of rhubarb, and as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence, for one day only, and after this give six drops of tincture of gentian, and four each of aromatic sulphuric acid, and tincture of opium for two days. Then omit the opium, and continue giving the gentian and acid every second day for a week. Once formed the feather-eating habit is extremely difficult to break. Examine the bird and cage very carefully to see if insects are the cause of irritation, and, if so, exterminate them thoroughly. Let the bird bathe freely, and occasionally add a few quassia chips to its bathing water overnight. If you can get the bird to eat them give a mealworm a day for a week or two. Also tie a bit of coarse string to its cage wires for it to unravel, and thus divert its attention from its plumage.

Crest-bred Hen Unwell.

C. Spry.—The bird probably contracted a chill at the end of the moulting season, and has not sufficient stamina to shake it off. Move its cage to a comfortably warm place—not too much so, but just away from any sense of chilliness—where there are no draughts, and the temperature is unvarying. Give plain canary seed only as staple diet, and give half a teaspoonful of summer rape separately every second day. On the alternate days twice each week give a pinch of the mixed seed, and on the remaining two days give once a half teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake with three drops of cod liver oil emulsion mixed in it, and once a small piece of bread soaked in cold milk, slightly pressed, and sprinkled with a little soft sugar and a pinch of gold of pleasure seed. In the drinking water give six drops of syrup of rhubarb and a pinch of Epsom salts for two days, and afterwards give twenty drops of whisky, ten of glycerine, and two of eucalyptus oil, well shaken together, two days in every three for a week, and every second day afterwards for another week. You might also stick a morsel of fat boiled bacon in the wire for it to peck at occasionally.

Protracted Moulting.

C. Collins, Sheffield.—If there really are no draughts to which the bird is exposed, then I am inclined to think you either keep it in a kitchen which is frequently overheated, near a light that burns in the evenings, or some similar unhealthy situation where there are extreme fluctuations of heat. Hang its cage now in a place where the temperature, whatever the average is, remains fairly equable, and which is subject to no violent fluctuations. Do not keep it too warm, nor yet quite on the cold side. Try to strike the happy medium. Feed on a mixture of three parts canary to one part summer rape as a staple. Twice a week give half a teaspoonful of hemp, on two other days a small piece of ripe banana, and every second day give a small teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake, with four drops of sherry and two of cod liver oil emulsion well mixed in it, and sprinkled with a pinch of gold of pleasure seed. Give all these extras on different days in rotation, so that a different one is given each day. Keep the cage strewn with clean, gritty sand, and if the bird will eat them, give a mealworm each day for a week or two. Continue this dietary for a month. In the drinking water give a pinch of Epsom salts for two or three days, and after that give six drops of tincture of gentian, and four of tincture of steel every second day for a fortnight. If the wheezing does not disappear as the moult ceases follow up this treatment with twenty drops of whisky, five each of oxymel of squills and ipecacuanha wine, and two of eucalyptus oil, well shaken together, in each two tablespoonfuls of drinking water, two days in every three for a week, and every second day for another week.

Brevities.

Wasteful Feeding (J. H. L.).—In this reply last week I find I accidentally omitted the word millet in saying what the seed mixture sent consisted of. The sample contained a fairly large proportion of white millet and a sprinkling of brown millet, in addition to the seeds named in reply last week.

A Suitable Mate (J. A. C.).—You are undoubtedly on the right track in seeking a mate for the Yorkshire hen you describe. The suggested mate you describe would in all probability be a half or three-quarter Belgian, and should produce some good useful birds for future work; but you may not get any quite up to show form the first year. This, however, would depend to a certain extent upon the breeding of the hen. Still, if you want to try for winners from the first cross, you would do better to get a good bold up-standing cock, with plenty of leg, and nerve, but one cross further removed from the Belgian. See that your cages allow plenty of head room for the birds. The price you name is certainly very moderate for such a bird as you require. You may perhaps get one for it, but from a breeder who knows the value of his birds—well, I ha' ma doots. Sorry I cannot recommend any particular person. I know nothing against the one you name.

Four in Brief (P. S. A.).—(1) At three months old a Yorkshire should be as big in bulk of body as it ever will be. The end of the first moult will add a very slight increase in length of feather, and if not tailed and flighted the second moult will give a similar increase of length in these feathers. But the actual difference in size is trivial. (2) If these hens have not been tailed and flighted they will show a slight increase in length after next moult. (3) Yes, June hatched birds will breed successfully if mated at the end of next March. Do not try to force them into condition, however, as they will be none the worse for waiting until the first or second week in April. (4) This should have been on a separate sheet for our British Bird expert. If the birds bathe freely and are not exposed to a dirty, smoky atmosphere no washing should be required.

Voracious Canary (C. H. C.).—Except saying the bird is much constipated you do not mention whether his continual feeding is responsible for any other apparent lapse from health. If it shows no other bad symptoms there can be nothing seriously wrong with it. Reduce its diet to plain canary seed only for staple for a fortnight, and give separately half a teaspoonful of summer rape three times a week. Every day give a spray of watercress when it is to be had in good condition; at other times give a sweet grape with the skin broken, but stop these latter as soon as the droppings begin to get watery. In each two tablespoonfuls of drinking water give six drops each of syrup of rhubarb and syrup of buckthorn every second day until the constipation is removed, after which the above diet should be all that is needed to prevent its recurrence.

Owing to the holidays, many queries have necessarily had to wait an answer until next week.

BRITISH BIRDS, MULES AND HYBRIDS.

Exhibition Crossbills.

Hardbill.—The chief asset of the exhibition Crossbill is size—not mere length, but length combined with bulk of body and a wide, bold skull. A bird lacking in these characteristics is badly handicapped. You see some whopping big birds at times, while other Crossbills are by comparison quite small. The colour varies. If in field plumage the bird should be a bright red all over (which, by-the-bye, shows that it is a fully adult bird), but when house-moulted this red colour is lost, and the bird becomes a golden-green. The hen is always greyish-green, and built on less powerful lines than the average male bird. Yes; they will live in a large cage (singly) in an outdoor birdroom. A heated room is very undesirable. The privet berries will not harm the colour of your Greenfinch; rather the contrary, I should think. The food of the Crossbill I dealt with at length in CAGE BIRDS dated December 11th; however, it is given briefly this week in reply to "Novice."

A Bullfinch Ailing.

Bullfinch.—I should be inclined to change the bird's diet, so far as possible, allowing plenty of teazle and maw seeds, and giving ripe fruit freely; while some Bullies enjoy a little "egg-bread" (you can buy this now, ready prepared, through our advertising columns), or even made insectivorous food, such as is given small softbills. A change would be sure to benefit your bird. On alternate days for a week or ten days stir a half-teaspoonful of syrup of buckthorn into two tablespoonfuls of drinking water; plain water, of course, in between. Wash the vent once daily with fairly hot water coloured a deep red by the addition of Condy's Fluid; use a smallish camel-hair brush, and let the point penetrate and cleanse the orifice of the vent.

A Linnet Problem.

Hilda.—It seems to me that your Linnet's curious songless state is easy of explanation. In short, I think you have a hen, and not a cock bird. Has it ever occurred to you to question the bird's sex? The disjointed, intermittent singing in the summertime is just the kind of music one gets from a healthy, vigorous hen; in the winter, silence. Song in a Linnet is not a question of price; it is possible any day in the week to buy for sixpence a bird that will become a charming singer. He will want taming, etc., of course. No method of feeding (as, I suppose, I need hardly tell you) can bring a hen into song such as one gets from the male Linnet. Has your bird a very streaky looking (thickly pencilled) breast? If so, that is a sign of the gentler sex. I should certainly say that the average healthy British Finch is a bigger eater than the average Canary. Glad you liked our Christmas Number.

More Crossbills & Snow Buntings

Novice.—You do not seem to have read your CAGE BIRDS very diligently of recent weeks, for only last week, in the Christmas Number, I told "Bert" how to feed and cage Snow Buntings. Kindly look up that answer. The hen is always very dingy looking, compared with the cock, and also is quite appreciably smaller. A good male is a beautiful snow white over the major portion of his plumage; the hen is a dingy ashen white, with a more or less brown tinge. A good Snow Bunting stands an excellent chance on the show bench; one was in the money at the last Crystal Palace Show. Respecting the Crossbill, note the reply given "Hardbill" this week. The adult cock Crossbill, when in wild plumage, has more or less scarlet coat (according to age), whereas the hen is an ashen-green, with a yellowish tinge here and there; she is the smaller bird. For food your Crossbill may be given sunflower, hemp and canary seed, and for animal food three or four mealworms daily, with any other live insects you can get, according to season. A few berries (haw, privet, black, and so on), also the core and pips of apples, smashed nuts of various kinds (walnuts, crack nuts, etc.), and fruit are relished. Offer him any of the other seeds or seed mixtures in general use now and again; also small maize, dari, wheat, oats, and the like. Sometimes he will eat a little, and variety is good.

British Bird Querists should purchase our "British Bird Manual," published in two parts, "Hardbills" and "Softbills," price 1/- each, or in cloth cover together, 2/3 post free.

Brevities.

A Snow Bunting (Bert).—You make a very shrewd hit when you say that you have come to the conclusion that the Snow Bunting is "both softbill and hardbill." Strictly speaking, it is a seed-eater or "hardbill"; but, like all the Buntings, it is very fond of soft foods and live foods.

A Watery Eye (No Nom-de-plume).—Bathe the Bullfinch's "watery" eye twice daily (morning and evening) with fairly hot water, made a deep red colour by the addition of some Condy's Fluid. That will soon end the trouble. A small camel-hair pencil-brush is a useful implement for the purpose; or a piece of surgical lint (from the chemist), or soft old silk handkerchief.

Two Seed Samples (Warbler).—Your seed samples did not reach me. Have enquired about them, but they seem to have gone astray. Am sorry. Could you post on two more samples? Pleased then to give you an opinion. I may say that mixtures of the seeds of wild weeds can be given to all British seed-eaters to be picked over (except, of course, such birds as the Crossbill). Linnets, Greenies, Siskins, Redpoles, and Twites are those most fond of them; but Bullies and Goldies also appreciate a little.

Wild Seeds (B. A. C.).—In all "wild seed mixtures" that are formed of the residue from threshing machines, there is always a percentage left untouched by the birds. But they are so cheap that this waste is of little moment. I don't quite see why you want to "litter their sand-trays with it like using sawdust." What's the matter with giving it in a dish? A shallow cigar-box (you may, I hope, become the possessor of a few this Christmas) will make an excellent receptacle. This residue is quite safe to offer to British seed-eaters; and some Canaries are fond of "having a go" at it.

A Peathroat Goldfinch (Goldie).—(1) You must have patience. A Goldfinch cannot be got steady in a few days, or weeks. Some, in fact, never get really steady until they have moulted in captivity. Hang him up breast high in a room wherein people are constantly passing to and fro, and use a box cage (wired at front only). (2) There is no reason why a fairly steady black-legged Finch should not breed; some even go so far as to say they prefer such to house-moulted birds. (3) A "pea-throat" Goldie is of no use for the show bench; in the ordinary Goldie class, that is, for he might get a prize in a rare-feathered class if extra good.

A Trio (Ignoramus).—(1) The cock Bullie would no doubt be sociable enough, but cock Goldie Mules can be very vicious towards other birds. (2) A cock Linnet, Canary, and Goldfinch might agree with the Bullie very well. A "2ft. aviary" sounds very small, however, though it is not easy to grasp its size from this description. They would do very well on the same food. (3) To learn to pipe tunes, Bullies must be hand-reared (from the nest) old ones are of no use. We published an article three or four weeks ago entitled "The Beautiful but Persecuted Bullfinch." In this full and excellent information on the feeding and management was given; also information on teaching to pipe. Did you miss this article?

Linnets and Finches (Noviss).—Facing a hot (presumably) kitchen fire is not a good position for Finches, whether newly caught or otherwise. I should also think, from your sketch, that it is possible the spot is not very well lighted. For newly caught birds cracked seeds, especially the hemp, is desirable for the first week or two, and it should be put inside the cage in a flat, shallow dish; water inside too. Are your birds very thin when they die? If so, it looks as though they do not pick up sufficient nourishment. It is necessary to cut the claws of British birds from time to time. Your letter does not give any real clue to the cause of death.

FOREIGN BIRDS.

Answered by WESLEY T. PAGE, F.Z.S. M.B.N.H.S., etc.

Blue-fronted Amazon with Cold.

J. F. Beal.—Much of the trouble has resulted, I expect, from the varied atmosphere of the kitchen, very hot during the day, very cold at night, etc. It would be far better in a cold room, with the cage covered up at nights—that is, all round the sides, a space at the top, 6ins. in diameter, being left open for ventilation. Continue the treatment already advised, and if we have already advised it, get a box of honey and borax, and with a feather or camel hair brush put a little on its tongue and the inside of its mouth once or twice a day, and continue to use the diluted glyco-thymoline to cleanse its nostrils, several times daily if this should be necessary. Diet: A seed mixture of canary, millet, oats, wheat, dari, maize, hemp and sunflower seeds in about equal parts; ripe fruit, plain buiscuits and nuts. Keep a piece of clean cuttlefish hanging in the cage, and do not give slops, table scraps, or any kind of animal food. I fear the bird has been subjected to draughts, and this, coupled with the variable atmosphere of the kitchen, has brought about a state of things that will not be easily remedied—you must persevere with the treatment advised above and in our previous reply.

Young Blue-fronted Amazon.

K.M.D.—Probably a bird of the year. The wing Very probably it is a bird of the year. The wing feathers will moult out in due course and be reproduced of normal size. Am afraid there is not much remedy for the frayed tail, but as these feathers will, after the bird has become acclimatised, be shed accurately, the bird should not at any time present a really shabby appearance. Your diet is about correct, though I prefer the following: Canary, millet, paddy rice, dari, oats, maize, hemp, and sunflower seeds, in about equal parts. As it is young and has to develop, I should put it on a rather lengthy course of Parrish's Chemical Food, well staining the drinking water with same, at the same time keeping the bowels well regulated with occasional doses of Dinneford's Magnesia, one teaspoonful to each ounce of the drinking water. A few chillies in the seed mixture will probably check the sneezing. In the case of any running at the nostrils, keep same well cleansed with diluted glyco-thymoline. Keep a piece of clean cuttlefish hanging in the cage.

Parrot with Cold.

J. M. F.—Get the following mixture from your chemist: Ipecacuanha wine, oxymel of squills, and glycerine in equal parts. Mix a small quantity, one part mixture, two parts water. See that the bird has a good drink of this twice daily; you can easily secure this by withholding the ordinary drinking water. Cleanse the nostrils daily with diluted glyco-thymoline. I should also put a little honey and borax on its tongue once or twice a day. This will assist in clearing the mouth. Soak a small piece of plain biscuit in Dinneford's Magnesia, letting it become partially dry before supplying to the bird. Give this as often as may be necessary to keep the bowels moving freely. As your bird is weak, let it have a few sips several times during the day of very weak brandy and water (chilled), as well as the mixture. You give no details as to diet, but do not give slops, table scraps, or animal food.

Aviary for Foreign Finches.

Beginner.—Your little aviary should give good results, and with the proposed addition should accommodate ten to twelve pairs comfortably, some of which would undoubtedly breed. Re the suggested flight, I should certainly make this the whole length of aviary, viz., 5ft., and I should also advise you to make it 4½ to 5ft. high. It is of no consequence at all that it stands above the eaves of existing structure. I should also advise you to plant the flight with, say, a clump of bamboo and box, eunonyous, fir and privet, say a bush of each, and sow the ground with meadow grass, canary, rape, millet, etc. You should then get good breeding results. I would recommend you to start with, say, pairs each of Long-tailed and Rufous-tailed Grass Finches, Zebra, Ribbon, Spice, and Saffron Finches, White Java Sparrows, Zebra, Grey and St. Helena Waxbills, Bronze and Magpie Mannikins, with a pair each of Diamond Doves and Chinese Painted Quails—the two latter species make good ground birds, and are very interesting, making a pleasing variety by contrast with the Finches and Waxbills.

Amazon in Poor Plumage.

J. D. (New Zealand).—This bird is in an unsatisfactory condition of health, hence the improperly-developed plumage. When sending a query of this nature, full details of diet and treatment should be given. This lacking, it is impossible for me to give a satisfactory reply, as improper diet is probably the source of the trouble. However, keep the bird's bowels well regulated with occasional doses (one teaspoonful to each ounce of the drinking water) of Dinneford's magnesia; also, when not giving the magnesia, well colour the drinking water with Parrish's Chemical Food, and continue this indefinitely. Diet: Seed mixture (see reply to "K. M. D." in this issue), ripe fruit, plain biscuit, nuts, and if procurable, a cob of fresh-gathered maize when in season will be very wholesome. Keep a piece of clean cuttlefish hanging in the cage, and mingle a little grit with its seed mixture. If you have been dieting wrongly, do not make a sudden change, let this be gradual; from ten to fourteen days should be sufficient for you to change the dietary without risk.

Brevities.

Amazon Parrot with Cold (C. Spray).—Please write the Editor per return, enclosing a stamped and addressed envelope, giving me full particulars as to how you are dieting the bird; also describe the affection it is suffering from as fully as possible, and I will send you a reply per post to save time. In the meantime, stop the cough mixture and keep its bowels well regulated with occasional doses of Dinneford's Magnesia, and put it on a course of Parrish's Chemical Food. For directions see other replies in this issue. You will also find correct diet in several replies relating to Amazon Parrots, which you cannot do better than follow. At the same time, changes of diet should not be suddenly made, but gradually brought about.

Diet for Hanging Parrot (J.H.S.).—I gather the bird is doing well, but it is certainly not getting a suitable diet for this group. Are you sure you have a Hanging Parrot? If so, take away the water over-night, and give it a supply of milk sop (sloppy), also try it with grapes and any ripe soft fruit obtainable. Try the above regimen for a few days. I have heard of similar cases, but it is unnatural, and if persisted in I much fear it presages a rather short life for your bird, i.e., providing it is the species you suppose. Can you give me any further details? Give me as full a description of its plumage as you can, and I can possibly help you further. It would be well to ascertain how it had been fed before coming into your possession.

Hybridizing (H. M. H.).—(1) I am very doubtful of any attempt to breed hybrids from British and Indian species being successful; I have known odd birds (Foreign and British species) being kept together, but so far only know of English and foreign Sparrows, Blackbirds, and Serins having been successfully crossed. (2) The species which are most likely to be successful would be the Indian Goldfinch, Siskin, Greenfinch, and any species of Sparrows or Blackbirds your brother was able to procure—he would have no difficulty in obtaining some, or all, of the species named from the local catchers, or they would obtain or capture them for him. I should advise only cocks to be brought over, and to turn in with them an equal number of hens of our indigenous species, into as large an aviary as you can give them; the flight being planted with such evergreens (fir, box, heather, etc.) as flourish in your locality; a little wildness should be aimed at.

Cockatoo with Hard Growths (Constant Reader).—It is always better in such cases to consult a local vet., and to let him decide where the growths are better cut away or otherwise treated. However, it should be safe for you to try the following, viz., lightly painting the centres of the growths with tincture of iodine; and let me know the result later. Also keep the bird's bowels well regulated with Dinneford's Magnesia, and put it on a course of Parrish's Chemical Food (see other replies). As regards the wheezing, I do not think this is serious, but is more the result of the other trouble than a cold, but if it should become more pronounced, write again at once, giving fullest details. In case of there being any exusion from the nostrils keep these well cleansed with diluted glyco-thymoline.

What Parrot? (R. Long).—It is a Roseate or Rose-breasted Cockatoo, an Australian species, hardy and robust, and only requires to be protected from draught. This species enjoys a good reputation as a talker in Australia. But in this country this is not the case; the majority of specimens, though accomplished acrobats, good mimics, droll and companionable birds, do not make great talkers. But I have come across and heard of some that were quite talented talkers. Keep yours where it will hear plenty of conversation; kiss and pet it, talk to it when it is quiet and restful, afterwards giving it some tit-bit, and there is no reason why it should not become quite a talented bird.

What Parrot Is it? ("Seedley"): Parrots mature slowly, and it is rather difficult to state definitely the species while a bird is in immature plumage, as yours evidently is. From your description I believe it to be a Blue-fronted Amazon, and if so, it should certainly make a good talker and mimic, though, as a rule, they are not so teachable as a Grey, nor yet quite so clear in enunciation. As a rule, Parrots do not commence talking till they have lost all fear and become quite settled and contented. If you repeat query after the bird has been through its next moult, I may be able to confirm or otherwise its species as above.

White Javas and Breeding (Jarrow).—Both male and female sing, but the male is much the noisier and energetic. The beak of the female is narrower at the base and more pointed than that of the male; this is readily observed if the birds are viewed in profile. I should say that you have a true pair, and that the probability is they will breed for you in the spring. I should also put a nest box in—say a cube about 6in. square—with a round hole in one side for entrance, supplying them with hay and coarse grass of good length for nesting material. They are probably young birds, and not yet in breeding fettle. In many instances dealers do not wilfully err in sexing the birds they send out; there is, with only too many species, so little distinction between the sexes that not to err is very difficult. However, with this species if you will carefully observe the beaks in profile, and you have a true pair, you will soon see and become expert in noticing the distinction I have pointed out above.

Grey with Irritated Skin (Anxious).—Paint the part with compound tincture of benzoin, and rub in among its plumage pyrethrum powder to get rid of possible parasites. Keep bowels well regulated with Dinneford's Magnesia, and as a tonic give it, say, Parrish's Chemical Food several times a week, as directed to others. The seed mixture should consist of canary, millet, small maize, wheat, dari, hemp, paddy rice, and sunflower seeds in equal parts. I should only give the boiled maize twice a week if it is eating heartily of the seed mixture, then reducing it to once a week a little later, and finally drop it altogether. In addition to the seed mixture supply ripe fruit, plain biscuit, nuts, and keep a piece of clean cuttlefish continually hanging in the cage. Do not give tea, coffee, or milk slops, table scraps, or any kind of animal food.

GENERAL.

Answered by the Editor.

A Netting Needle (F. Hawes).—Thanks for your letter, which we will publish next week.

Do Unto Others, etc. (M. Jones).—Your letter is of too personal a tone to find a place in our columns.

Dead on Arrival (Fairplay).—Your letter comes too late to be dealt with this week If the birds were "on approval," then they remain the property of the sender until you notify him that you approve of them (subject to the expiration of the approval term, of course).

Whose Should the Prize Card be?

SIR,—In answer to the letter in your issue of December 4th, by S. Stephens, I venture to express my opinion on the above-named conundrum as follows:—When birds are exhibited in open or gift classes, the card should go to the exhibitor. When birds are exhibited in selling classes, I consider the cards should go with the purchase. My reason for the latter course is that exhibitors invariably enter in selling classes with a view to effecting a sale, whereas this is not the case with open class entries.

J. ISHERWOOD.

The Scottish British Bird and Mule Club's Patronage.

I desire to draw the attention of my readers to a letter which appeared under the above heading in CAGE BIRDS for October 9th, 1909, and to state that that letter was published without my personal knowledge, and to further say that if anything in the said letter can be construed as reflecting in any way upon Mr. A. W. Watson, the hon. sec. of the above club, his character or conduct, I unreservedly withdraw and retract the same, there being no ground therefor, and I express my sincere regret for the occurrence.

F. CARL.

A Sex Problem at Egremont Show.

SIR,—I wish to clear myself concerning the treatment I received at Egremont (Cumb.) Show. In class 81 (Yellow hen), I entered a bird, which (per the secretary's letter) was disqualified as being a cock by the judge, Mr. A. Hirst (Accrington). Now this is a vast error, for the bird is a hen. I bred from it this season, and it won (as a hen) 1st Harrington (under Mr. Patterson), 3rd Whitehaven (Mr. Wilson), 4th Liverpool (Mr. Barnes), 2nd Millom (Mr. Roe). Surely this is sufficient proof that it is a hen, and I am also willing to forward bird to you for examination. As such treatment as this will do me no good, I trust you will publish this letter.

WILLIAM POOLE.

How to Arm Nets.

SIR,—In reply to "Amateur," as to how to catch the sharped Goldies, I wish I was there. Get a set of iron staves about ¼in. thick. Cover four end pegs with a tuft of grass. Get two small call cages, all wire except bottom. let them into the ground a little, and cover up a little with thistles (open the tops of the thistles well). Do not leave any thistle standing anywhere near nets (except in the nets). The best call birds are hen Finches, because the birds will always follow hens, and hens do not "quark." I expect you have got a "quarking" cock bird, which frightens them like an "ipping" Linnet. NOVICE.

SIR,—In reply to "Learner" as to the mending of a rent in his nets (I presume he can net, as, if not, I am afraid my instructions will be of no avail), take the lines off and then take one corner (the corner that is square, as this is made from corner to corner, and two of the four corners have a round appearance), and put a string in and tie to a peg. Then pull the net, and the rows of knots will be in lines. Then with a pair of scissors cut out the rent just behind the knots, and knit to and from you, and when you get to the last line slip the needle in the mesh behind each line. You will then have your net sound as before. It will not show in the least if you do it correctly.

NETTER.

Rebellion in the North.

Trouble about a Special.

SIR,—I had no intention of entering into correspondence with Mr. Lister when I wrote my first letter in support of the Newcastle Society's action, but as Mr. Lister still claims that his bird was the best, I would like to ask him, first, how it was that Mr. Taylor's bird was awarded the Northern Crest Club's medal; second, how he controverts the fact that the judge in his letter to the Newcastle secretaries, states, "that if the young bird was entitled to compete, he undoubtedly won the special"; third, that if the awards in the members' class remain as when judged, why he accepted second prize money for his bird which through an error was not placed; fourth, that having accepted the prize money thus acknowledging the right of a judge to revise an error, why is he not man enough to accept the same principle when it is against him? I still adhere to my statement that in other competition the young Crest was placed first and in that I am supported by Mr. Thos. Robson's letter, which Mr. Lister ignores. I never stated that Mr. Lister's bird was in competition for the challenge bowl, but during the discussion Mr. Heath, the judge, to emphasise the merits of the young Crest showed its superiority over the old bird as he could not understand why the bowl should be given to a Mule which was beaten by an old bird when his young Crest beat his old Crest. This Mule was awarded the bowl by a majority of the judges after a prolonged and very heated discussion, not so much on account of its merits as an exhibition specimen, but on account of its rarity, being the first almost clear Siskin Canary to be exhibited. If Mr. Lister did not make the remark I was told he had done, as stated in my last, I will willingly withdraw it as the Newcastle Society's case is good enough without it; but I may say that such has been freely stated both in open meeting and amongst members when discussing the case. I have no desire to injure Mr. Lister nor to detract from the value of his bird, which was undoubtedly a good one, and well worth its place in its class, but still only second (in the judge's opinion) in the section. All I want is to see the Newcastle Society's position vindicated in the eyes of the public, and when such a strong supporter of the Cage Bird Union as Mr. Thos. Robson states that the C.B.U. executive have made an error, and when Mr. McPartling urges the Newcastle Society to acknowledge their ruling on grounds of prudence, stating that, "might is not always right, but might is law"—I think their stand for right is worthy of all praise, and the Newcastle Society will flourish when the last dirge has been played at the funeral of the Cage Bird Union.

CANNY TOON.

The New Selston and District Fanciers' Society.

SIR,—A meeting was held in the Schoolroom, Selston, on December 18th, when a goodly number of members were present. It was decided to hold a table show of cage birds, etc., at our next meeting on January 8th, 1910, entry fee 6d., all over six entries in each class to go towards the society's funds. A working committee was also elected, consisting of 20 members, which should augur well for the society. We shall be pleased to make the acquaintance of any fancier in the radius of our society (5 miles), entrance fee, 1s., and subscription, 2s. 6d.

Alleged Unfair Treatment at Shows.

SIR,—Seeing such a lot of lamentable complaints in CAGE BIRDS, I would like to have my little say. I sent two Borders to the contest at Altrincham, despatched from here per 2.17 p.m. on December 2nd, with instructions to be kept over the week-end. On the Monday night I called at the station to get my exhibits, but they were not there. They arrived on the Tuesday, per 8.55 a.m. train, and inside the box was a postcard, and written thereon: "Left Altrincham 9.15 a.m., hope they arrive safe." Yes, they arrived safe, and nearly dead. The box had been overturned as the oat husks and seed were in the bottom of same. Now I believe Mr. Harrison's postcard to be right, and put it down to either carelessness or weakness on the part of the railway company. I don't wonder at some fanciers being afraid to send birds a distance to shows.

A. BRYDEN.

SIR,—It is not very often I am drawn into a paper controversy; however, I feel it is my duty to enlighten Mrs. Sunderland on the points of show management, especially regarding the dispatch of birds from different shows. I often wonder if these exhibitors who from time to time rush into print over every petty grievance it is their misfortune to endure, ever regard or think of the sometimes stupendous work thrown on to a secretary's shoulders during the show days? These gentlemen give their time, and sometimes money, free, even working into the small hours of the morning, doing their best to further the interests of their society and the Fancy at large, and at all times under most trying circumstances are most courteous. It has been my pleasure to be connected with most of the societies in this neighbourhood, of which West Bromwich is amongst the number, and I may say the quick manner in which the birds are packed up ready for the Railway Co., leaves nothing to be desired. At West Bromwich I was in the show room until 10.15, and at that time nearly all the birds were packed up; again, at Wolverhampton I assisted in the packing of the birds, and every bird was ready for the railway company by 10.30 p.m.—480 in number. Now, Mrs. Sunderland, I think you are entirely to blame, running so head-long into print, and such letters are not only damaging to struggling societies, but also discourage the ambition of budding fanciers. However, readers of this letter will see that the societies and secretaries are not the parties to blame, but the railway companies; and if this lady wishes to further the interest of shows and exhibitors, she will make full inquiries before charging secretaries and societies with neglect. J. A. TONKS.

Entries Returned from Stonehouse Show.

SIR, Having sent on two entries to the above show, namely, Goldfinch, class 30, and Bullfinch, class 32, I received cage numbers back two days before the show, both full classes, 30, No. 13 and 32, No. 8. Judge of my surprise when about to despatch birds on the Friday morning to receive a note cancelling class 32, No. 8. I see by show report in your paper there were 7 in the class. Now I had no other plan to adopt but to keep the other exhibit at home, having no single case by me, and no time to get one. I have asked an explanation from secretary, but have got none, and I think in fairness to exhibitors in the Bullfinch class, it should be made public. I have enclosed also cage numbers and label for putting on case as I received them from the secretary, and I may say their schedule read: Unless more than 7 entries, first prize withheld.

MACKIE.

Alleged Mix-up of Awards at Ramsgate Show.

SIR,—Referring to the letter in your last issue, re an alleged mix-up of awards, at Ramsgate; in the first place I should be glad if you would make a correction, as your headline states Margate Show, instead of Ramsgate, and I should not like our neighbours to suffer for any apparent mistake of ours. In the first place I do not know Mr. Lewis, never having met him, although he writes that he interviewed me personally. The gentleman, I take it, is Mr. Adams (manager for Mr. Lewis), who has written, and who has seen me on the subject. The letter, I admit, is fairly correct, although with one or two mis-statements, which are immaterial and which, to save further controversy, I will not refer to. But the most important item of all has been left out. Mr. Adams came to me in the committee room on the day of the show saying the award was wrong. I found there were two numbers the same (8861), and said that owing to the error, to save further trouble, we should pay out two thirds in this class. Upon this he, Mr. Adams, stated that being a member of the society, he would willingly forego his claim; and so the third was sent to the other exhibitor, who, we consider, was the correct winner. I notice in the letter that Mr. Adams styles himself a judge, yet he entered a bird bred 1907 in the unflighted class, and when I pointed out this to him, his reply was that he thought birds were unflighted all the while they were maidens! Further comment is useless.

ALBERT E. ALLEN, Hon. Sec.

New Cage Bird Society for Falkirk and District.

SIR,—I have seen in your columns that there is to be another society formed in Falkirk; also I have read the letter signed "Well Wisher." He, I may say, hits the nail on the head when he says this is the outcome of a member (or shall I put it members?) who, being in the minority, and refusing to be ruled by the majority, "take the huff," with the result that a new society is being formed. There are two already, as "Well Wisher" informs you. Now, I would like to put the question before your readers (especially those of the Falkirk district), if these men who are forming this society are doing so to benefit the Fancy? They seem to be a lot of dissatisfied men, whom nothing seems to please unless they are getting all their own way. Instead of having three cage bird societies in Falkirk, we as fanciers should combine and form one strong society, and do as "Well Wisher" says, hold an open show instead of a few small confined shows—an open show that would be second to none in Scotland. When I tell you, Mr. Editor, that we have such men as Dougal Maxwell, Jamie Carlow, Michael Smith, Hugie Moreland (hon. president of the Crest Club of Scotland, and who holds the same position in the Falkirk and District Cage Bird Society), and a host of others, who are among the leading exhibitors of Scotland, why, sir, it is deplorable that we have not an open show. I say that instead of forming another society and causing division, we should become one, and hold an open show, and make Falkirk prominent in the cage bird world.

The Show-Cages of Norwich Plainheads.

SIR,—I think it is about time there was a standard show-cage for Norwich Plainheads, as at present their cages are a very mixed lot, most fanciers having their own special make. I always understood the Norwich P.H. show-cage was square, and painted Hedge Sparrow Blue inside. But when you visit a show, you find all colours, all shapes and all sizes, and you don't require to visit many shows before it becomes possible to know without the aid of a catalogue who is exhibiting. The cages will tell you. The Border and Yorkshire show cages are all alike, at least, all one pattern. Could the Norwich P.H. fanciers not take a copy?

Cage Bird Union, District No. 1.

The Wallsend Sensation.

SIR,—In your last week's issue there appears a short, summary account in connection with the protest laid against my spars at the late show, held at Wallsend, and inserted by instruction of C.B.U. District Committee No. 1. If the C.B.U. mean to give fair treatment to all fanciers alike, then I consider it only fair and just that they should cause to be published all my explanation sent them in regard to this protest. By so doing, fanciers and readers of your valuable paper will then see for themselves how far this so-called "sensation" has been proven against me, as this short notice sent out by C.B.U. committee would seem to indicate. The explanation I sent to them clearly states, without fear, what marks were on my perches and what they were for. If this is placed before your readers, they can see what there was in this sensational case to lodge a protest against. It will clear the air a great deal for every one connected with the protest; also it will enlighten well-wishers and otherwise.

Will Owls Breed in Captivity?

SIR,—I have brought up a Tawny Owl from the nest. He was about three weeks old. For the first few months he had the company of his sister, who grew into a very large, magnificent bird, with the richest reddy-brown plumage. She was unfortunately attacked by a party of Carrion Crows when four months old, and, we fear, was killed. Both Owls were excessively tame, and the remaining one ist still so. I have never clipped their wings, and they have had full liberty, and would always come back to me when I called. I always liked to have them in at night. This male bird has caught mice and brought them to me, and also a toad. He loves staring up at the sun, and will sit for hours in the hottest, sunshiny place he can find. The other day he was staying away with me in a strange locality, and a boy accidentally let him loose from the cage he was temporaily confined in. I must say I felt very nervous about getting him back. There were about one hundred birds after him, and he had nine acres of tempting fir woods to hide in. He did this, but late in the evening I went out and gave my special call for him, and though it was quite dark I presently heard a "pluff," and he landed on the grass at my feet. We have now come to live not far from Newcastle, and on the high road, and I much fear letting him loose, although we have a very good garden. So I have had a wire house put up for him—dimensions about 6ft. square. The situation is very good, in the angle of a warm wall heavily overgrown with ivy. Some of this is included in the run, and better still, as there used to be a greenhouse there, the old ivied chimney is still standing. I am going to have a hole knocked through into this, and just wire netting put on the top of the chimney. Can any of your readers say if there is any chance of my being able to get Owls to breed if I obtained a hen bird? Also, would it be possible to mate him with a Barn Owl? I should be most grateful for any hints. Should I get a hen now, and let both fly together in the aviary, or wait till the spring? This Owl got h.c. card at Laskeard show in October, as reported in CAGE BIRDS, which I regularly take in.

THE OWL'S MISTRESS.

The Recent Carmarthen Show

SIR,—I am very sorry that owing to some accident at the printers, there was no catalogue issued for our recent show. This was a very serious loss to us, and a great inconvenience to the visitors. After months of hard work, it is a pity that a most successful show should be spoilt through no fault of the officials. One thing I know, it will mean hours and hours of hard work for me to make up for it. I am having special particulars printed of all awards, and a copy of this I will forward you. Will you oblige me by mentioning in your next issue that full particulars of Carmarthen Show will be published next week, and I thank you in anticipation.

A Suggestion to Bromsgrove and Birmingham Fanciers.

SIR,—A few cage bird fanciers in Bromsgrove have joined the City of Birmingham C.B.S. during the last few months, but find the travelling expenses to and from the meetings rather high, and in consequence would like to have a cage bird society in Bromsgrove. According to the correspondence now running in the Fancy Press, there are already too many societies, and Mr. de Maillet, of the Birmingham Society, suggests that the best way out of the difficulty would be to form a branch of their society here. Mr. de Maillet points out that his suggestion must not be taken as representing the views of his society, but that he has no doubt if a dozen fanciers at Bromsgrove will join the movement, his society will favourably consider the question. I feel sure fanciers here will appreciate his remarks, and I hope the matter will be brought to a successful issue. E. EDWARDS.

The Modern Norwich Plainhead.

SIR,—I see another gentleman, Mr Harry Moore, has stepped in and does not approve of Mr. Worthington's advice to me. Also I see Mr. J. Bertie has replied to Mr. Worthington, giving him some very stiff "blows" on their little controversy. Anyone reading Mr. Bertie's letter of December 4th, I think, could not but come to the decision that he was about on the right side of the matter. As regards shows, I can honestly say they will always be left out by me, even if it were a fact that I had some real good "cattle," as there is no doubt it is an uphill business. I have not the slightest desire for fame; in the usual old-fashioned phrase, "winner of over 50 firsts and 30 seconds." No. I honestly love the bird and the Fancy in general, and when I have every hole at breeding season sparkling with from three to five young ones, hammer and tongue dogging at their mother for another lunch, I am happy among it all, and when they have left their parents, and are showing each other how they can crack away at seed, I usually say to them, "Well done." In conclusion, I say, keep on with your birds (it is a grand hobby, in my opinion), and be content with reading about the leading stars with 50 firsts and 30 seconds. You might possess some of equal quality and up to standard, that are a pleasure for yourself and friends to look at. When some other revised mode of showing is instituted, and with less expense for exhibitors to contend with, then I may be induced to be among the rank and file, and rise bit by bit.

Are Slow-Coach Members to Blame?

A Word for Society Officials.

SIR,—A thing that has struck me very much during the time I have read your valuable paper is the dearth of appreciation recorded to the many secretaries and committees for the arduous and worrying work they perform solely for the benefit of the respective membership. Who can say the societies of to-day are in a flourishing condition? True, one or two are, but the majority are not! To whatever cause it may be attributed by the reader, not many will lay it at the door of their own inactivity. The reasons I venture to put forward are several. The first and largest is the deeply-rooted idea that a man's obligations are fulfilled by the payment of his subscriptions. Some, of course, do not even do that. Another reason is that there are too many societies. Other evils are that persons belong to more societies than they can afford, and consequently neglect the birds and the home, to the general discomfort ot all. Districts, generally speaking, are not large enough to run a society, hence the membership is scattered and is detrimental to the interest and attendance. How many societies would like an average attendance of 20 throughout the year? A great many, I say, especially when I remember an instance of the secretary only putting in an appearance, and another a grand muster of two. Are not some monthly meetings but a repetition of the committee night? What fair-minded man can say this is fair and ought to be tolerated? I know only with deep sorrow that the rank and file expect these gentlemen to provide them with special prizes. No doubt it is a mistake, however praiseworthy, of the "workers" dipping their hands deeply into their pockets to prolong the lives of the societies and tide over the difficulties of the year. The memberships want educating to the fact that their attendance is necessary to the well-being of their society in addition to their subscription. It is a crying evil, and grossly unfair to allow the secretaries and committees to pay the wages of their own labour. They work as an honour to the club, and they certainly ought not to pay for that which is clearly the duty of the membership to provide. It should be remembered always that a good attendance is a ray of sunshine to those who give their services gratis, and a great encouragement. I also know that a notice in the "Press" brings an inflated attendance, and you can listen to the nice nothings and smoothings to induce them to continue in office. Far, far better to let them shift for themselves, and so let the idlers find to their cost that it is their own unconcern that has brought them to task. Let the members dip their hands in the future as deep down in their pockets as the secretaries and committees have done in the past, attend the meetings as regularly as they have done, and I predict, there will not be a society that is not in a flourishing condition, and with a balance to their credit in the bank.

IPSO FACTO.

The Crystal Palace Show.

Splendid Specials for Frill Canaries.

SIR,—Baron du Thiel, of France, has sent £2 to be awarded as a special prize for best Frill, £1 for 2nd best Frill, and £1 for third best Frill exhibited at the Crystal Palace Show, and he asks that the same shall be acknowledged in CAGE BIRDS.

The Kent County C.B.A.'s "Bowl and Cup" Competitions.

SIR,—Your report of our "Bowls and Cups" Competition in the Christmas number contains an error for which I am myself responsible. The grand totals in the Yorkshire section credits Mr. Lockett with 24 points, whereas it should be 36. Dr. J. A. Bowes and Dr. J. Bowes should read Dr. T. A. Bowes, of Herne Bay, in each instance.

GEO. SANDERSON, Hon. Sec., Kent County C.B.A.

What is an Even-marked Border?

SIR,—May I ask you, Mr. Editor, to please alter the heading of this discussion, and name it, "What is an even-marked bird?" I am very glad to see friend Patterson entering into this, and have noted his remarks concerning the "uneven" bird, and as the meeting of the B.F.C.C. Club is to be held at Carlisle on Jan. 1st, I think this discussion a very timely one, and it may help the motion he is about to bring on. Now, although we strive to attain the ideal as the goal of our ambitions, we must not forget that there are a great many fanciers who think that if a bird has not got perfect markings it cannot be shown as an even-mark. I have come across two concrete cases in my own experience, where two well-known exhibitors did not know what an even-mark was. One of them had an even-mark in his room and did not know it, he thinking that because the eye-marks were not evenly balanced it could not be shown as such. Now to my way of thinking there are three kinds of eye-marks. There are the "anterior," or in front of the eye; the "posterior," or behind the eye, and the "entire," which covers the eye, making a lovely mark connecting back and front. We may have a bird with an "anterior" mark one side and a posterior mark the other side; still, it is perfectly eligible to compete as an even-mark, but if, as friend Patterson says, there is a break with light feathers disconnecting the "entire" marking, then, of course, the eye-mark is broken, and there are five marks instead of four. But I should not call that bird five-pointed. As I said in my last letter, I have always taken it that there are only six places on a bird's body that we can count for points, viz., the eyes, wings, and each side of the tail. If that bird is marked on the body in any way, then it is a variegated bird. Now I know that these birds are shown in the uneven class, and of course they cannot be wrong-classed, simply because the class reads thus, "uneven or variegated," and I said in my last letter that they ought not to be in a class that was purely uneven. What do we want the word uneven there for? We could call them all variegated, and I say this, that there is as much science required to breed a good uneven bird as to breed his more fortunate brother, the even-mark, and I hope that the time will soon come when we shall have the uneven class by itself, where only birds that are marked on their eyes, wings and tail, or in other words, the "pointed" birds, will count, be it one, three or five-

His Majesty the Lancashire.

Advice to those about to begin in the Lancashire Canary Fancy.

By H. KEMPSTER.

The Lancashire by name is no doubt a Lancashire bird, at any rate up to the present the North is its home. In general characteristics the Lancashire is essentially a large, strong, massive bird, which has been so bred for some time past, but, nevertheless, like all other varieties, it must have some time or other been bred and inbred from the original little drab green wild Canary. Old fanciers can well remember the monster Lancashire with a coppy like a michaelmas daisy. Now, though size still predominates, the coppy is different to the daisy shape.

The Ideal Specimen.

The coppy of the present up-to-date ideal show bird must be round and neat, and should be close to the back of the neck, without the slightest trace of roughness (horse-shoe in shape), with feathers well packed in, and with not even the shadow of a split in its formation. The back must be long, well filled in (not hollow), the tail long to correspond with back, and feather of the very best quality. The bird must have a chest bold and wide. Its legs should be long and strong, but when standing up, its tail should droop somewhat, so as to give the bird the appearance of being slightly curved. It should move with ease and elegance.

Coming now to the Plainhead Lancashire, the properties should correspond somewhat to the coppy, but not in the head, as the head of the Plainhead should be broad and long, with eyebrows overhanging, with plenty of feather, good in quality—giving it the appearance of a sulky bird—but it must not be tucked in behind, and when the bird is perching it should not stand across the perch, but well up, as much as to say, "I am the King of Canaries."

On the Show Bench.

It is difficult to say why so few shows (especially in the South) provide classes for Lancashires, unless it is the doubt whether the classes will be filled; but I think the day is not far distant when the majority of shows will specify Lancashire classes in their schedules.

As it is, at present, should one wish to give the public a view of his majesty the Lancashire, he must enter him in the A.O.V. class, there to compete against Border Fancies, Cinnamons, Greens, etc., but nevertheless, when ever he is exalted to his high position in the show cage he generally commands the respect and admiration to which he is entitled, no matter what other varieties he may have to compete against.

The Lancashire and Lizard Fanciers' Association have tried very hard to bring this magnificent bird to the front during the past few seasons (may their efforts be well rewarded), and if fanciers in the South were to encourage the breeding of the Lancashire equally as well as their brother fanciers in the North, it would not be long ere we had a Southern Lancashire Association.

When Starting with Lancashires.

Should any young fanciers contemplate interesting themselves in the Lancashire variety, let me advise them to procure the best birds they can possibly get, subject to the depth of their pocket. Go to a reliable breeder (and there are many advertising in CAGE BIRDS every week), tell him what you want, and leave the rest to him; you will not then go home disappointed.

Some fanciers have a pronounced objection to breeding Lancashires on the ground that they are bad feeders, but my experience has been that they are like all other varieties of Canaries—you will find good and bad amongst them. Some will feed and some won't; others will feed when the cock bird is left in with the hen, and others will not feed if the cock bird is taken out. But I find the best and surest way is to have a few proved feeders of any variety of Canary you fancy, then if there are one or two Lancashires who are not well disposed towards their young—well, hand them over to the tender mercies of their foster mother.

Always mate your coppy hen to a Plainhead cock, or vice versa, except in exceptional cases. There are times when it is advisable to pair two coppies together; for instance, for strengthening the coppy blood, etc. But it is only in cases of extreme necessity that this method should be resorted to, and only then with the most judicious care.

How to Feed the Young.

For the feeding of the young birds I find nothing better than the egg and biscuit, or egg and bread-crumbs, with hemp seed ad lib, giving a spray of watercress, dandelion, lettuce, or chickweed, fresh daily. I don't think it matters much which of the above-named green-foods you give, providing it is fresh; if it is not, you will soon see the effects in your young birds—inflammation, etc., will be the regrettable result. As to giving the young birds water when taken from the old ones, some fanciers say it is necessary, whilst others say not, as they do not need it until you have weaned them off the soft-food, there being enough moisture in the soft food to supply them.

Cleanliness.

In conclusion, let me impress on all beginners the necessity of thorough cleanliness. Keep your birds clean; they will be healthier, stronger, and better birds than if you neglected this most vital point. If at any time the red mite pest should make itself known (which is not at all improbable), extinguish them at once by cleaning out all cages, using any kind of disinfectant you like. Personally, I use Condy's or Sanitas. Well clean out all cracks and crevices, and after well drying them, sprinkle insect powder well in same. Also give your birds a bath, into which has been put a little infusion of quassia. The red mite will then disappear as quickly as they made their appearance.

Should your birds at any time show signs of illness in any form whatever, see to them at once, and for treatment you cannot do better than turn to the pages of CAGE BIRDS ANNUAL, as there you will find remedies for all ills that bird flesh is heir to. No fancier, young or old, should be without a copy of this "sixpenny," as for valuable information in regard to anything concerning birds, this book is invaluable. Before concluding I must ask if my views do not exactly coincide with those of older fanciers, that they will let their criticisms fall lightly.

YORK C.B.S.

Annual Distribution of Prizes.

Annual general meeting held on Dec. 13th at headquarters, All Saints' Church Rooms, North Street. The chairman (Mr. A. Richardson) presided, and was supported by Messrs. D. Hunter (treasurer), T. Boyle (assistant-secretary), and the following members of committee: Messrs. H. Thompson, H. Warriner, T. Wright, J. Pickering, S. Campling, H. Shorney, H. J. Chittenden, and J. Davison. The Secretary read the annual report and balance-sheet, which showed that the finances of the society are in a good, sound condition. The election of officers for 1910 resulted as follows:—President, Rev. P. J. Shaw; chairman, Mr. A. Richardson; treasurer, Mr. D. Hunter; assistant-secretary, Mr. T. Boyle; committee, Messrs. T. Wright, J. Pickering, H. Shorney, A. Humphries, F. B. Sissons, J. White, S. Campling, H. Chittenden, and A. Simeson. At the close of the usual business, Mrs. Richardson (wife of our esteemed chairman), in a few well chosen remarks, distributed the prizes to the successful winners of most points gained at the shows held during the year. The following were the principal prize-winners: Most points throughout year—1, S. Campling, Riley-Smith's cup and 10s. 6d.; 2, T. Boyle, silver butter cooler; 3, A. Humphries, leg of mutton; 4, T. Wright, two stone of canary seed. Norwich section: 1, A. Humphries, beautifully bound volume of "Cage Birds"; 2, T. Wright, 2s. 6d.; 3, F. B. Sissons, 3s. bottle of pectorine. Yorkshire section: 1, S. Campling, beautifully bound volume; 2, A. Simeson, one stone of canary seed; 3, H. Warriner, show cage. Mule or Hyb. section: 1, H. Shorney, 2s. 6d. worth of Fox's food. British bird section: 1, T. Boyle, 2s. 6d.; 2, D. Hunter, 2s 6d.; 3, H. J. Chittenden, 3s. bottle of pectorine. For most new members proposed during the year, T. Boyle, silver-mounted pipe. Gold-centred medal given by T. Sandiford, T. Wright. The president's challenge cup offered for best young bird bred by a member, Mr. A. Humphries. Mr. F. B. Sissons proposed a hearty vote of thanks to Mrs. Richardson for her kindness in presenting the prizes, which was carried unanimously. Mr. O. Rielly moved a hearty vote of thanks to the retiring officials. He said that a good deal of the success of the society depended upon their secretary, Mr. A. Waud, who had been unanimously elected for another year, and the society ought to feel proud that they had such a hard-working official. Mr. Richardson replied on behalf of himself and Mrs. Richardson. He hoped the society would prosper for years to come; he felt sure it would, with such a body of good fanciers. He wished them all a happy Christmas and a prosperous New Year. This brought to a close one of the best meetings ever held by the society.—A. WAUD, hon. secretary.

ORNITHOLOGICAL ODDMENTS.

By Frank Finn, B.A., F.Z.S.

Author of "The World's Birds."

The Black-winged Mynah.

This very handsome Starling, of which there is a specimen at the Zoo at present, comes from Java, and is remarkable for its strongly contrasted colour, which is pure white, except for the black wings and tail quills, while the bill, feet, and a bare patch round the eye are yellow. Altogether the bird looks extraordinarily like a partial Albino of the common brown Indian House Mynah (Acridotheres tristis), and at first sight one can hardly realise it is a true species. In Java, I am told, it is found commonly, and near houses, so that it evidently takes the place in that country which the other does in India. I have only seen four specimens of it here, however; the bird now in the Zoo, one they had there some time ago, and a pair in the aviary of a well-known aviculturist in the country.

(The Black-winged Mynah.

A Friendly Bird.

The last-mentioned birds were exquisitely clean and in tight condition, while the Zoo bird still looks a bit loose in feather—he was only imported this year—and is decidedly grubby. But he is one of the jolliest and tamest birds they have ever had in the Western Aviary to my knowledge. He will perch cheerfully on your finger, if you put it through the bars; so would "George," the late lamented Brazilian Troupial. But then George would also poke his sharp bill under your finger-nail to see what you would do then, which showed tameness, but not a kind disposition. There is no such malice about this Mynah, though he is not above mischief; the other day I saw him extract a keeper's collar-stud and fly off with it to a lofty ledge, where he left it after deciding upon examination that it was not fit to eat. I ought to mention that when he came over he was still quite a young bird, and had the upper parts shaded with grey, as this shows what is the young plumage in this rare species.

What is a Grackle?

This bird has been called the Black-winged "Grackle," and this name of Grackle has been applied to several other birds not bearing any great resemblance to each other; thus the talking Hill Mynahs are sometimes called Grackles, and so are some of the American "Blackbirds"—black, ground feeding Troupials. The fact is, that there is no such thing as a Grackle, and the name is merely a book-name, which never got into real popular language. It is a clumsy adaptation of the Latin Graculus, which means a Jackdaw, and was applied by the old ornithologists to a lot of big "soft-bills," which seemed to them to have something of the Crow about them. The birds included under the name have long been seen to belong to quite different groups, and the name "Grackle" is now practically dropped.

A similar case was the application of the word "Grosbeak" to any Finch with a very thick bill, from a Hawfinch to a Mannikin; it has practically been dropped for all birds except some near relatives of the Hawfinch, to which the name best applies, as the Hawfinch was no doubt the first Finch with a big "gross" beak which was noticed.

When to Use Meat.

As long as birds are kept there will be differences of opinion as to what is suitable food, everyone swearing by what in his own observation he has found to be successful or otherwise. Meat, bread and milk, and egg, are all abused by someone or other; all can be abused, and all used with benefit in certain cases. As far as I can observe, a good rule for the use of meat is as follows: If a bird is a coarse feeder, i.e., if it devours large creatures, such as lob worms, fish, mice, young of other birds, etc.—anything with red blood in it, in fact—you can give it meat with safety, provided, of course, that you do not overdo the thing; i.e., don't give too much, or in big lumps. Such birds, it will be observed, are usually of a fair size; but meat is liable to disagree with the small soft-bills, except a few gross feeders like the Robin, who makes enormous meals off lob-worms as big in proportion to him as a six-foot conger-eel would be to ourselves.

Wild Bird Life.

Hard Times for Finches.

The comparatively mild open weather is keeping wild birds to the fields and woods; even the Sparrows have not yet returned in their usual numbers to the gardens, farm yards and poultry runs. We have had no weather sufficiently severe to drive them to seek food and shelter round the houses. Just a Blackbird or two, a Song Thrush and Robin are our only visitors, but these we should see under almost any conditions during the winter. Certain forms of insect life have no doubt thrived during the past summer. So much moisture and wet must have been suitable to something, and possibly our resident Softbills are still having a good time. But are the Finches faring as well? During the autumn months we generally get a certain period of dry sunny weather, when the sappy shoots of brambles, trees and shrubs dry up and harden, so that they may withstand the cold of the coming winter. The seed buds of weeds and wayside plants fill up and ripen, but this year the crop has been bad. If we pick a seeding stalk of plaintain or thistle, we find it soft and musty, and even the common dock has failed to ripen as usual.

How then do the Finches fare? Their usual food has been considerably reduced. There cannot possibly be the abundance of former years. And it is just possible that when the severer weather comes, wild birds will feel the want of constant food and be so reduced in condition that many will perish before another spring. It is just possible, too, that all districts have not had quite the same weather conditions as we have had in Surrey, and wild creatures have a habit of migrating to lands more favourably situated. The food supply undoubtedly regulates the birdy population, and ours is not so plentiful as in former years. A good long tramp over fields and downs and along woods and hedgerows does not reveal the huge flocks of wild birds of former winters. The Linnets are in scattered companies, or in pairs. Some half-dozen green birds and a few Buntings form another gathering. Some of the flocks of Sparrows in former years numbered many thousands. Now one can almost count them. The ever-busy Starlings are still plentiful, and the conservative Rook haunts the elms and fields in the district as usual, but the Finches are certainly scarce.

Where Jays are Found.

Safety for Large Sea Birds.

Among the birds benefiting by the Protection Act are the larger ones of the sea-shore, such as Cormorants, Guillemots, Puffins, Razorbills, and Gulls. Their close season is extended to the autumn, when they gradually leave the rocky breeding haunts, to fly out to sea, where they are practically safe from the along-shore shooter.

Pugnacious French Partridge.

The Red-legged Partridge was imported into this country from France many years ago, as additional game for sportsmen, but being larger and more pugnacious than the English bird it has in some places completely exterminated the little plump ones. The French bird is now severely dealt with, and on many estates efforts are made to keep it under.

Proof of Migration.

The Central Bureau for Ornithology in Hungary marked about one thousand birds last year. One of these (a Stork) was shot in Natal, the bird having travelled five thousand miles on migration. When Slatin Pasha was a prisoner with the Mahdi, a Stork was killed with a letter attached to it. This was brought to him to read, and it stated that the bird was reared in southern Russia. Upon his release Slatin communicated with the Russian naturalist.

The Perky Redpoll

It is said the Lesser Redpoll has nested in nearly every country in England, but, as may be expected, more often in the North and in Scotland. This perky little bird is also a resident in Ireland, but the species nest much more frequently in the North than in the South. It is difficult to say why the species should prefer colder latitudes; it appears to be so closely related to the common Linnet that what is suitable to one would appear to be suited to the other.

The British Bird Manual.

A Garden Aviary of Interesting Foreign Birds.

By MISS B. E. WILKINSON.

My aviary, originally built for fancy Pheasants and Pigeons, extended across the end of our garden. It was about 40ft. long and 8ft. wide, with open wired front, the back and roof being of corrugated iron. It had a house at each end of iron-lined match-boarding, with double door, the inside one being of glass covered wire netting and a window to open into flights, which were divided into three parts, with doors between each.

The First Inmates.

My first foreign birds were a pair of Budgerigars. A cocoanut husk hung up in a cosy corner soon induced them to commence nesting, though, by the way, they made no nest, only just hollowing out the husk to their liking and widening the hole.

There were five or six young born at intervals, for Mrs. B. starts to sit on the first egg, so the first hatched young one was at least five days older than the last. They were funny looking little things when they left the nest, with dark eyes, just like beads. I have had as many as eighty young birds in a season, and such a pretty sight they were feeding on the ground together, running about, pulling the grass, tumbling over each other in their hurry, and carrying lumps of turf to drop in their drinking water.

Zebra Finches come next. They are sweet little birds, with scaling-wax-red beaks. The cock is mouse-colour above, and white underneath, with a chestnut patch spotted with white below each wing, and a chestnut ear patch; tail black, barred white. The hen is all grey, delicately shaded.

They will make their nest in any small box, but it must be well hidden away from all prying eyes. I never even dared to look at any likely spot, and never knew for certain there were young birds till they left the nest. The young are all grey with black beaks, which soon begin to change to red, and at the end of three or four months they are in full plumage ready to commence house-keeping on their own account. How different from the Saffron Finches—Canary-like birds, with a brilliant orange cap, who do not put on bright colours till their second year! A pair I had nested in a cocoanut husk, hung in a dead tree, but when the eggs (very like a House Sparrow's) were laid, the hen turned quite vicious, and literally scalped the cock, and hatched out and reared the young without his assistance. He, poor fellow, was in a terrible plight. Nearly blind, it did not seem possible he could live, but with care he pulled through, and the feathers grew again. But there was always a dividing line all round the cap, which made him look rather quaint. They had many a nest of young afterwards, and she always behaved in a most exemplary manner.

Tame and Cheeky Parson Finches.

I think the birds I cared for most were the Parson Finches, such tame, cheeky little things, with such prying little ways. If the seed jar (a glass pickle bottle) was left on the floor, there would be half-a-dozen in it in no time, waiting to be lifted out, for they had no idea how to get out again themselves. The very buttons on my shoes they would try to pull off. There were fourteen or fifteen of them, the progeny of one pair, and they went about in a flock.

The cock sings a funny little song. I cannot describe it, but there are two long-drawn-out notes, as if he said, "sit there." Their colouring is most delicately soft and pretty—silver grey on top of head, the body a lovely soft fawn, with a large black bib, perfect in outline, under the beak; the tail black, with some white marking.

Chinese Painted Quails.

Next to these, my favourites were a tiny pair of Chinese Painted Quails, no larger than a newly-hatched chicken, and so tame I had to be very careful not to tread on them. When I held out my hand they would jump into it and nestle down, or the little cock would stretch himself up and crow.

They were very fond of earwigs, or any other small game of that kind. There were lots of eggs laid, but none ever hatched. A pair of Crested Californian Quails were so wild, they upset the whole aviary, and beautiful though they were, I was very glad to get rid of them.

Cutthroats bred as freely as Sparrows. Their young leave the nest in full colour; that is to say, the cock has the crimson line below the beak, just the same as when adult.

I had several Weavers of different varieties, but none of these breed in this country. The Orange Bishops, one of the most beautiful, only wears his fine colour during the summer. In winter he is a little brown bird, exactly like the hen; so that if they are bought out of colour it is very difficult to tell them apart. I was most fortunate. I bought four, and every one was a cock.

A little colony of Mannikins, Three-colour, Black-headed, Nutmegs, Bronze-wings, and others, were quite at home, sitting in rows, and singing their silly little inaudible songs. It is a most ridiculous sight, with all the action of singing, and no sound. And the beauty of it is they are so pleased with themselves and each other.

My Magpie Mannikins.

I had a fine pair of Magpie Mannikins or Pied Grass Finches. These are rather rare, as very few of them are imported. They are black and white, with a beautiful metallic lustre all over their plumage, and are altogether very smart looking little birds.

Of course there were Java Sparrows, both the White and the Grey—always so cheerful looking with their bright rosy beaks, and close trim feathering. The Greys are the most handsome though much more common. There is a beautiful bloom on their plumage, and the white ear patch is so distinctive.

With me they did not breed so freely as the white. The latter had nest after nest of young, and although most of these were heavily marked with grey when they left the nest, after the first moult they were pure white, like the old birds.

A Quarrelsome Crew.

My Cardinals were much too quarrelsome for me to trust together, and even when divided they were continually trying to get at each other, and looking dark deeds. None attempted to nest, but one day the hen Red-crested behaved exactly in the same way as the hen Saffron Finch—she scalped the cock, and I found him apparently dead on the floor. She was still standing by him, her white breast stained with blood, giving him a few finishing vicious pecks. Like the Saffron Finch he recovered, and the crest grew again. I ventured to return him to the aviary, and all went well again; in fact, they were in a way quite an example to the other birds (Doves, in particular)—so peaceful and attentive to each other.

The cock is not a great singer, but he has a sharp cheerful whistle, and is always on the alert. They were very tame, and would take a green caterpillar or other (from their point of view) choice dainty, from my fingers. No moth, fly, or beetle, ever escaped them. Earth worms they will not touch. They delight in bathing, and would get so soaked they could hardly fly, but were soon dry again. With their breasts like snow, and crests erect, they seem to know what fine fellows they are.

The Green Cardinal is a fine fellow, too. His crest is black, and he has a bib-like marking under the beak. General colour: greeny yellow, pencilled and shaded with darker green tones. He is not nearly so striking as the Red-crested. He is in a way the handsomest bird.

The Pope, or Crestless Cardinal, is very similar to the Red-crested, but smaller, and (with me) very wild.

Rare Insectivorous Birds of Norfolk.

By W. LOWNE.

The Black-breasted Dipper: An occasional visitant this, from Scandinavia. A pair in Norwich Museum were obtained at Buxton mills in 1864 and 1869. Others have been seen on the River Bure, which runs rapidly at that particular spot. I received one on November 4th, 1885, from Thurgaton. Another was obtained on November 9th, 1896, on the River Bure.

The Common Dipper: The so-called Common Dipper, which is equally as rare as the species previously mentioned, is also known as the Water Ouzel. It has occurred here occasionally. One (a fine specimen) was obtained at Yarmouth in 1849. It has also occurred since that date at Reedham and Hellesdon by Norwich. A Dipper was reported as being seen in 1907, but of which kind it was not stated.

Several attempts have been made to keep these birds in captivity, and I believe they have been shown occasionally, but not with much success. I myself have not yet seen one "in the flesh" as taken in Norfolk. So it may be considered rarer than the Black-breasted Dipper.

Rarities Among the Warblers.

We now come to a large family of the smaller species which consists of the Warblers, Wagtails, Larks, Pipits, and such like. I will confine my remarks to the rarest of these, as I have done in describing the larger British birds—those, that is, which do not come under one's notice every day.

The Aquatic Warbler.—An immature specimen was secured at Blakeney on the 9th of September, 1896. It was in very good plumage, with lines on the back more pronounced than the streak of buff over the crown. On dissection the contents of the stomach consisted of the remains of small earwigs and beetles. This is recorded as the fifth taken in Norfolk.

The Icterine Warbler.—This species has occurred three times in Norfolk, all of which occurrences were in the months of September—in the years 1884, 1893, and 1896, in the districts of Cley and Blakeney.

The Great Reed Warbler.—One of this species was seen by the Rev. — Bird at Horning. As it was only 15 yards away a good view was obtained. It was clinging to some reeds with its tail and wings half spread, so that he could not be mistaken. The same gentleman also believes he saw a pair on the River Bure in July, 1886, about a mile from where the first-mentioned bird was seen.

The Barred Warbler.—A young female of this species was secured about a mile east of Blakeney Point on September 4th, 1884. It also occurred in the same locality in August, 1906, and on August 27th, 1907.

The Dartford Warbler.—But two specimens of this Warbler have been recorded in this county, and in both instances on the Denes at Yarmouth. One, a young male, was caught by a dog in a furze bush on February 25th, 1859. It is thought by our local ornithologists that, by a careful search on our commons, others might be met with, as has been the case with the previous mentioned rarities.

Pallas's Willow Warbler.

Pallas's Willow Warbler.—In strong N.E. wind, in October, 1896, a very small bird was seen at Blakeney in company with other small birds; it turned out to be one of the rarest of our Warblers—Pallas's Willow Warbler. The account of its capture was reported in "The Zoologist," by Mr. T. Southwell. The specimen in question was secured by a local collector for the modest sum of £32.

It is somewhat difficult to understand the movements of these rare Warblers, which arrive on the East coast in different winds; the Aquatic Warbler arrived in a west wind, but the Icterine and Pallas's Warblers arrived with the wind in an easterly direction, and the Barred Warbler in a south wind. Much has yet to be learned as to the influence of the wind.

A Bird that is Becoming Commoner.

The Blue-Throated Warbler.—The occurrence of this species has been reported in the transactions of the Norfolk and Norwich Naturalists' Society on several occasions. It has been known to occur in Norfolk only since September, 1841, at which time one was found dead at Yarmouth, and another in September, 1867, was identified among a party of Wheatears, Larks, and other small migratory birds, which alighted upon a ship off the Norfolk coast. In September, 1881, a third was obtained at Cley while consorting with Redstarts and Whitethroats.

These were all the recorded instances in Norfolk of a bird which was considered very rare, but which can hardly be accounted so any longer, as in 1883 I received one which was shot on the Breydon banks on September 15th, at which date nine were secured at Blakeney. The following year, on the same date, another was brought to me alive, it having been caught in a greenhouse a short distance from the sea.

Many were observed on the coast at Blakeney at about this time, when a close observation was kept for any of these rare Warblers; and many have occurred along the coast since that time, all in the month of September. Several were seen in 1896, five in 1900, ten in 1901—all of which were unmolested.

The specimens obtained were all of the Red-spotted variety, although there is nothing unlikely about the White-spotted variety occurring in Norfolk some day.

Savi's and Wood Warblers.

The Savi's Warbler.—Six of these birds, including the first and last met with in England up to 1886, are recorded as Norfolk specimens, four of which are in the Norwich Museum. Another was in the collection of Mr. Stevenson, which was disposed of for seven guineas on the sale of his birds after his death. This bird was shot at Surlingham in June, 1856. Others have been seen near Yarmouth.

The habits of this bird much resemble those of the Grasshopper Warbler. Although one might be heard, it would be difficult to see On being alarmed, it drops instantly into the thickest sedge, when its pursuit becomes hopeless. It carefully eludes observation, seldom showing itself in open flight. Sometimes, however, its course may be traced by the shaking of reeds, as it springs from one to another.

The Wood Warbler.—This may not be considered rare, but in my experience it is much rarer than it is considered to be. As far as I can remember, I have not yet had one in my possession.

Although it is a summer migrant to our coast, arriving later than the Chiffchaff and Willow Warbler, the bird is said to resemble these species; but from what I saw one morning some fifteen years ago in the gardens adjoining our river bank (a bird which I took to be a Wood Warbler), it was a beautiful dense-coloured bluish-green. I had a good view of it as it flew in front of me and alighted on a post much after the manner of a Tree Creeper.

Shot by a Working Man.

The Yellow-Browed Warbler.—Eleven examples of this bird have now been met with in the British Isles. The first one in Norfolk was shot by a labouring man on October 1st, 1894; and, what is more, the man only wished to empty his gun, and little thought he was firing at the first known Norfolk example of this rare bird. It had a stripe on the crown very faint in colour, and had the appearance of being a young bird.

The Marsh Warbler.—This bird is little known in Norfolk, but a nest of three eggs was found by a boy at Sculthorp-by-Fakenham on May 24th, 1906, and taken to Mr. A. P. Macklin. The description of the situation in which the eggs were found was that the nest was on a tussock of a species of grass which grows to a height of two feet. The eggs were photographed, and also compared with Continental eggs of the same species being found to agree with them both in colour and markings.

A Stonechat, I may say, was shot on November 2nd, 1904, being very dark in colour, amounting to partial melanism, but showing white on the wings and neck. It was subsequently submitted to Mr. Howard Saunders, who identified it as being a Siberian Stonechat, it being erroneously stated in the previous report that it was a variety of the common Stonechat.

BOWHILL.

Second annual show held on Dec. 18th in clear, frosty weather. The entry all over was above last year's—somewhere about 150 more birds—whilst the quality was all that could be desired, and the committee of management were highly elated with the success of the venture. The visitors at night simply swarmed in to view the exhibits. The Gothenburg Hall is, without doubt, the finest we have had the pleasure to be in. The Scotch Fancy section was a small one, but the winners were all birds of high-class merit. Mr. Reekie captured the special. Border competition was also keen, and the Norwich section contained many well-known winners. The committee are all true fanciers, and everything passed off without a hitch. Mr. Kerr (Dysart) judged Scotch Fancies, and the remainder came under the eye of Mr. J. Patterson (Chirnside); their awards were well received.

MEDWAY C.B.S.

First annual members' show held at the Castle Hall, Rochester, on December 15th, and was very successful. It is but a year ago since a few fanciers in the district set their minds upon the establishment of a Cage Bird Society, and they had not very long decided upon a definite course of action before their ranks were augmented, and the society became an accomplished fact. Mr. H. W. Casemore is chairman, Mr. G. A. Acland the hon. secretary, and Messrs. Wade, Dewar, Giles, and Robinson members of committee. The year has been one of considerable activity, and the society has by dint of persistent effort on the part of the officers, done good work. The show was excellently arranged and carried out under the supervision of Messrs. Acland and Hunt; the room was a most suitable one, the entry a good one, and the quality excellent, especially in the British bird section. Mr. Geo. Gardner judged.

CHAMP. NOR. YELL.: 1, spl, Acland, grand shaped, rich col., cap mkd. and varieg. hen; 2, Smith, very smart. BUFF: 1, Acland, lightly varieg., rich under-colour, good feather and shape. NOVICE, NOR. FINCH, ETC.: Grand class; 1, spl, 2, 3, Acland, leader Hawfinch, Rochester, etc., winner; 2nd, similar species, well nigh as good; 3rd, beautifully mkd., large and lustrous Chaffinch; vhc, hc, Wickham. INSECTIV.: 1, spl, Wade, rich col., well-spotted Missel Thrush, Rochester and Gillingham winner, in fine trim, bonny bird. SELL. (10/-): 1, Wickham; 2, Hunt; 3, Acland. While the show was in progress the members competed in a guessing competition, or, rather, it might be called a judging competition, for the benefit of the society's funds. The judge selected the three best British and the three best Canaries, placed the numbers in an envelope, which he sealed and handed to the secretary, to be opened at the close of the show, the competitor guessing nearest the judge's award to be declared the winner. We have not heard the result, but think the idea a capital one for augmenting the funds, a small entrance fee having been charged.

HYDE.

At the annual show of the Hyde and Dis. C.B.S., held at St. George's Schools, on December 4th, Mr. G. H. Massey (Stockport), judging, there was a really splendid entry of cage birds, and a fine turnout of visitors. One and all spoke well of the able sec., Mr. Barraclough, who was deserving of every word of praise.

ARDWICK AND DISTRICT C.B.S.

First annual members' show held on December 11th at the Onward Hall, Ashton Old Road. The ball is lofty, with a good top light, is well ventilated, and has hot water apparatus. The staging was arranged on both sides and at one end, with a platform in the centre of the room, on which were several of the special prizes. Exhibits were placed all round the outside of platform. This was pleasing to the eye and met with approval. There was a good attendance of fanciers and friends, and being a new feature in the district, the show was well patronised by the residents. Everything passed off satisfactorily, and the members are to be highly complimented on their exertions in trying to make the show a success. Several applications were made for membership. Entries came up splendidly, 171 birds being staged. Mr. A. G. Davis (Manchester) judged, and his awards gave every satisfaction. Mr. J. Coulson won special for best bird in show, Mr. H. Boothman for second best, also Sloper's Watch; Mr. J. Stirrup won special for best Yorks., Mr. J. Spencer that for best bird shown by an amateur. In the novice section, Mr. J. Thorneley won special for best Yorks., Mr. G. Belton that for best Norwich, also Sandiford's medal, and Mr. J. Lester won special for best Goldfinch, another for most points in show, and also a beautiful pair of oil paintings for most birds staged (given by Mr. W. Robinson). Other specials were won by Messrs. Barker, G. Simpson, W. Robinson, J. Valantine, S. Gibson.

SELKIRK.

The 18th annual exhibition of the Selkirk Association was held on 18th Dec. The Victoria Hall is an ideal one for the purpose, being roomy, well-lighted, and free from draughts. President, Mr. W. O. Robinson; hon. sec., Mr. A. J. Brodie; assist. sec., Mr. A. Stibbe; hon. treasurer, Mr. A. Lindsay, and auditor, Mr. T. D. Edgar. There was a good turnout in the various sections, some well-known exhibitors being represented. Quality was well maintained, and some of the Border fancy classes were very keenly contested. Mr. Brodie, the sec., had made excellent arrangements. Mr. A. J. Thomson (Newtongrange) judged, and his awards were very well received.

ABERDEEN.

The Aberdeen O.S. held their 54th annual open show in the Ball Room, Music Hall, on 17th and 18th Dec., under the patronage of the Scottish Norwich P.C., the Scottish C.C., and the Y.C.C. of Scotland. The show was one of the largest yet held by this society; 600 exhibits were brought forward. The President, Mr. John Hector, and Secretary, Mr. J. Bryson and his committee, had worked hard to have all arrangements made to ensure success, and the ready response by exhibitors was much appreciated. This being a S.P.C. show, some grand Norwich were put forward, and the judges had some difficulty. The gold medal for best cock was won by Mr. Mitchell. Gold medal for best hen was won by Mr. R. Martin. The silver medals were won by Messrs. Grewar and L. Will in the open classes. The silver challenge cup for best young bird (confined) was gained by Mr. A. Thomson; the one guinea cash challenge prizes by Messrs. Wallace (for Crests), Aitchison (for yell. ck.), and Stewart and Milne (for buff ck.). Two classes for Yorkshires were provided and brought together 27 birds. British Mules and Foreign were quite a show in themselves. Sandiford's medal for best yellow was won by Mr. Grewar, and for buffs by Mr. Sandison; Ramsden's by Mr. Wm. Clubb. The judges were: For Norwich, Mr. Watson (Kilmarnock); for Crests, etc., Mr. McLay (Kirkintilloch); and for British and Foreign, Mr. A. Livingstone (Bathgate); and their awards were well received.

EARLSTOWN AND DIS. F.A.

Second members' show, held December 11th, in the Co-operative Hall, a very suitable place for the occasion. Earlstown has not run a show for some time previous to last year owing to lack of fanciers; they have now made another start with some young members, who seem to be true fanciers. We wish them success. There were 12 classes. The number of exhibits was not large, but the quality, for young fanciers, was good, and we trust there will be a larger muster for the next show. Mr. W. P. Fletcher, hon. secretary, had everything well in hand. Mr. Wellings judged.

BROXBURN.

Broxburn and Dist. C.B.S. second annual show was held on December 18th within the Public Hall. The officials are a small band of the right stamp, not afraid of work, and the result was, they were rewarded by the grand entry of 550 exhibits, being over 200 up on last year's total. The secretary, Mr. Anthony, is new to the position, but he soon made small work of the many difficulties which arise in connection with his duties, and the society would do well to "keep hold" of him. From the president, Mr. Thos. Sharp, downwards, everyone worked with a will, and the judges were started at an early hour, all judging being finished and cards up before one o'clock. All sections were well represented, with the exception of the Scotch Fancy section, the entry here being poor. Norwich were good, both in numbers and quality, some well-known teams being forward. Borders were out in strength, and contained some extra choice specimens, the most notable winner being the yellow hen belonging to Mr. J. Hamilton, Eskbank. This hen has created somewhat of a record, this being her 11th successive win this season. The Mules and British were a show in themselves, and competition was very keen. The Ure cup for most points over show was won by Mr. J. Howie (Dundee) with his noted team of Norwich, the same exhibitor also winning the society's cup for most points confined to members. Hyde's special was awarded to Mr. J. M. Gardiner, while Sandiford's medal for hottest fed bird was won by Mr. A. Fleming. The show received a very fair amount of patronage during the day, and we noticed the prospective candidate for Parliamentary honours, (Mr. W. C. Smith, K.C.) and his daughter amongst the visitors. Judges: For Scotch Fancies, Mr. W. Rodger (Slateford); for Norwich, Mr. J. Walker (Edinburgh); for Border Fancies, Mr. G. Hyslop (Stirling); and for Mules and British, Messrs. J. Brown (Edinburgh) and W. Sharp (Bathgate).

DEWSBURY O.F.S.

Second monthly show held at headquarters, Little Saddle Inn, on ecember 11th, when Mr. Richmond (C.M.C. President) placed the awards, little fault being found with his placings. We also held our monthly meeting, the last of the season. The feeling of members seemed to be that we should have a competition next season in the form of a cup, the winner to hold it for 12 months, also a medal for winner and one for the runner-up; so if any fancier is desirous of becoming a member, he should attend our first annual meeting, date of which will appear in CAGE BIRDS' "Club Notices."

BOOTLE.

The Bootle and Dist. C.B.S. held their annual show in the St. Matthew's Parochial Hall, Thornton-road, on December 11th. A fine entry of about 300 birds turned up, the bulk of which were Yorkshires. There were no less than 50 Yorkshire classes for the champion members' section, which were allotted to Mr. Wellings to judge. There were also 35 Yorkshire classes for novice members—truly a wonderful classification. There were also two classes for pairs of Yorkshires and Yorkshire Greens, and there were, in addition, Norwich, Hybrid, and British bird, and selling classes. Mr. C. Houlton judged all the classes from 51 to 111 inclusive. The awards of both judges appeared to be well received. The following are the officials of the society, who all lent their aid to make the show a success, viz.: Presidents, Messrs. H. Berry and C. Berry; vice-presidents, Messrs. J. Lobb, E. Regan, W. H. Rimmer, and H. Williamson; chairman, Mr. R. Nickson; vice-chairman, Mr. J. Larkin; auditors, Messrs. L. Hamilton and A. Holden; treasurer, Mr. H. Lunt; committee, Messrs. Bracken, McNulty, Chorley, McLean, Worral, and Bond; hon. sec., Mr. Jno. Hunt; assist-sec., Mr. N. Bond. Mr. Hunt and his assistant, Mr. Bond, had the prize cards up, with exhibitors' names written on, in quick time, and visitors were able to see at once who were the winners. Quality was very strongly in evidence, and many of the birds in the champion section were splendid for type and quality. The Yorkshire Greens were very superior in colour and type, and this breed has wonderfully improved of late years. Hybrids and British birds were not very numerous, but a few choice specimens were shown. Cup competition (confined to 12 single birds) result:—S. McNulty 64 points, P. Spargo (novice) 63, J. S. Young (novice) 62, J. Lobb 58, A. Horne (Mule and British) 58, T. Plunkett 48, J. Latham 44, H. Williamson 42, R. Algie 41, A. Holden 40, J. Tullock 38, W. B. Rimmer 21, E. Regan 14. The cup (and 10s. 6d.) now becomes Mr. McNulty's own property, he having won it three years in succession. S. McNulty also takes following specials, in addition to the cup and gold medal, or 10s. 6d.: 1st most points throughout the show, 5th in Green classes, 6th in Norwich classes. Mr. J. Lobb, 2nd most points, etc., show, and 4th. Mr. A. Horne, 3rd and 8th most points in Mules and British classes.

STOCKPORT B.F.A.

Fourth annual members' show, held on December 2nd and 3rd, in the large assembly room at the Boar's Head Hotel. There were 216 birds, including many birds which had won in open competitions. The birds were comfortably staged on the three tier system round the room, and were seen to the best advantage, and many were the congratulations to the members in regard to quality and general excellence of their exhibits. Mr. J. E. Davies won the £10 10s. championship cup (outright) with 4 grand birds, 1 Belgian, 1 Crest, 1 Crestbred, and a Greenfinch Bullfinch hybrid, scoring 28 points with the same. The same exhibitor also captured the 10s. 6d. special for most points, and the flower stand for the best bird in show (Belgian), and a special for best Buff Norwich. Mr. J. Shore accounted for the £7 7s. clock set (outright), with 8 birds—Lizards, Norwich, and Cinnamons. The competition for this trophy was extremely close, and he just managed to get in front of Mr. W. Lee, who staged a fine team of Lancashires. W. Lee won a gold centre medal, also Mr. J. Garner a gold centre medal. Mr. W. T. Hill won the splendid coffee pot quite easily with British birds. In the amateur section Mr. W. Shape just managed to beat Mr. J. Matthews by 2 points for a very fine silver-plated tea urn; the birds shown by these two exhibitors were quite good enough for the champion section; Mr. J. Matthews won a silver medal. Mr. H. W. Battye judged, and gave general satisfaction.

LINCOLN.

The Lincoln and Dis. C.B.S. held their first annual show in the Central Hall on December 11th. The hall is a beautiful place for such an occasion, being very spacious and lofty with good light and temperature. The secretary may be congratulated on having the Mayor of Lincoln (C. T. Parker, Esq.), supported by the City Sheriff (C. Odling, Esq.), for the opening of the show. The Mayor, in his remarks, said it was a new experience to him to take an active part in opening such a beautiful exhibition. He was pleased to be present, because it was principally composed of working men. Mr. D. Heath, the secretary, is the right man in the right place, being very courteous and obliging. The chairman (Mr. C. H. Pickering), one of the oldest fanciers in Lincoln, was quite busy amongst the birds, and was supported by the hard-working committee, Messrs. C. Jeffery, A. Johnson, R. Sands, F. Moore, C. Priestly, and H. Willerton. Mr. O Heath was successful in scoring most points in show; and Mr. Lawson won special for best bird, with a grand wing-marked Yellow Norwich hen. Mr. W. P. Barnes (Grantham) placed the cards, and gave every satisfaction.

GLASGOW AND WEST OF SCOTLAND CLUB.

Annual members' show held in the Good Templars' Halls, Ingram Street, Glasgow, on Dec. 11. The show this year was not nearly so good as regards numbers, the total exhibits not quite reaching 450, as against over six hundred last year, but the exhibition was a success nevertheless. The quality throughout all the sections was particularly good especially in the Norwich section, where both numbers and quality were excellent. Cup for best young bird in hall was won by Mr. McKay, with a young Crested hen, and the same exhibitor won the Old Bird cup with another Crested hen. Medal for best British and Foreign bird was won by Mr. J. L. Burnett, with his Black-headed Bunting, and the gold medal for best Border or Yorkshire (presented by Mr. J. McLay) went to Mr. F. Bowman. The Novice cup and medal went to Mr. Duncan Graham, the special for best colour fed Canary Mr. R. B. Jarvie (the president), and special for best coloured Britisher Mr. M. Craig's Yellowhammer. Hyde's special was won by Mr. M. Donaghy. The Border classes were very small in numbers, but contained some good quality birds, the best in the section being Mr. D. Brown's buff variegated hen, which was awarded special for runner up to Mr. McLay's medal winner. All over the show was very pleasing, and the several winners are to be congratulated on owning such fine specimens. The judges were: For Norwich and Crests, Mr. J. Winter (Edinburgh), for Borders, Yorkshire and A.O.V. Canaries, Mr. A. K. Chalmers (Glasgow), and for British and Foreign birds, Mr. J. Muir (Glasgow). They got through their work in splendid fashion, placing the winners in good order, and giving every satisfaction. The officials and Committee worked splendidly, and a very pleasant afternoon was spent among the birds by both members and visitors. The Secretary, Mr. R. A. Brown, had made excellent arrangements, and everything passed off well.

Nests of Birds, Poultry, etc., should be regularly sprinkled with KEATING'S POWDER, especially when hens are sitting. Don't forget to do this just previous to the eggs hatching, to destroy the Red Mite. It kills all insects, harmless to everything else.

LONG EATON.

Second annual open show of the Long Eaton C.B.S. held on Dec. 18th, in the Public Hall, this being a splendid place for a show, capable of holding 1,200 birds. The hall is also very spacious, lofty, and well lighted (both by day and night), and quite free from draughts. The entries came up well, being over 400, which made this show a record. We hear that two days before the show there were only about 200 entries. Why do fanciers keep their entries till so late? The staging of the exhibits was grandly carried out, and all could be seen well. The management and care of all the exhibits were all that could be desired. We noticed the chairman, Mr. Coun. G. Smith, J.P., very busy and obliging to all; also Mr. E. Fox gave valuable assistance all the morning. The exhibits were a grand collection. Norwich were a fine lot, the novice class coming up capitally, with no less than 24. Yorkshires were a fine show in themselves. The Crests were grand in quality and numbers as well, and the cream of the Fancy was staged. The classes allotted to British birds filled splendidly, and took a little sorting out. In the mule class, Mr. R. Bond took all the honours with his noted team, all in lovely feather. The Foreigners, too, were a capital show. Mr. A. E. Wigginton makes an ideal secretary. Every little thing received attention, and he was ably assisted by a hard-working committee, consisting of G. Smith, Esq., J.P. (chairman), Messrs. E. Fox, Hexter, Barker, Smith, Hallam, Turner, Bentley, Bescoby, and others. Mr. J. Bevson judged Norwich, Yorkshires, and British, and Mr. R. Rhodes the Crests. Judging was over early, and cards up as the slips were handed in. Catalogues with the awards were on sale very early. Mr. G. Smith opened the show with a few well chosen words, and he hoped Long Eaton would still continue to have shows even as, if not more, successful than this.

HAZEL GROVE AND DIS. C.B.S.

Thirteenth annual members' show, held on Dec. 11th at headquarters, the Grapes Hotel. The exhibits were not as numerous as in previous years, but what was wanting in numbers was well made up for in quality, as a good many of the birds had given a good account of themselves in open competition. Specials were given for most points throughout show: 1st, G. H. Massey, 79 points; 2nd, J. Potts, 65; 3rd, Garner, 59; 4th, W. Stafford, 57; 5th, L. G. W. Oldham, 57; 6th, S. Beswick, 55 points. The show was well patronised, and everything was in nice order. Mr. Ball, the treasurer, gave every assistance in getting the room well arranged. The judging was got through in good time by Mr. J. E. Davies (Stockport). His awards gave general satisfaction.

EARLSTON (Berwickshire).

Annual show, held on Dec. 18th, and taken all over it was a great success, especially taking into consideration Selkirk also held their show on this date, being only about 20 miles distant. The entries were very satisfactory, both in number and quality. The Border Fancy classes were keenly contested, some real gems being on view. The pick of the section was the clear buff cock shown by Mr. J. Brockie, winner of the coveted B.F.C.C. medal for best in show. This section was judged by Mr. Tait (Galashiels), who made his first attempt as judge, and judging from the way in which he selected his winners, his services should be in request at further shows. Grumbling here was conspicuous by its absence. Norwich and British were good on the whole, and the winners were carefully selected by an old breeder and exhibitor, Mr. Bell (late of Jedburgh), who left little if any to be adversely commented upon. The show was held in the Corn Exchange, the birds being splendidly staged and arranged, reflecting great credit on the executive, who were headed by the genial secretary, Mr. J. Brockie. He had everything in apple-pie order, and was ably assisted by an enthusiastic committee.

WESTERN COUNTIES O.S.

Annual members' pair show held at Boro' Arms Restaurant, Plymouth, on December 13th. The entry was well up to the average, there being 53 pairs staged in six classes. With the exception of Yorkshires all varieties were well represented, many of the exhibits being winners in the recent open shows, the Norwich and Crest classes being of exceptional merit, and must have given the judges a difficult task to sort out the winners. Mr. T. Pope judged Yorkshires, Mr. Spellman Norwich, Mr. French Crests, Mr. J. Rowe, A.O.V. Canary, and Mr. Pridham the Hybrid classes. The special for most points in show was won by Mr. Dyer. Specials for 2nd and 3rd most points went to Messrs. Pope and Ryder.

YORKS. (3): 1, 2, 3, Dyer. NOR. (16): 1, 3, C. Garland; 2, W. G. French; 4, Rowe. CRESTS (15): 1, C. Hoar; 2, 3, 4, Ryder. A.O.V. (9): 1, 3, 4, T. Pope; 2, C. Dart. BRIT. AND CAN. (6): 1, 2, C. Large; 3, 4, Harvey. TWO BRIT. (4): 1, 2, Wills; 3, 4, Small.

CROOK.

Third annual show of the Crook and District C.B.S held in the Mechanic's Hall on Dec. 18th. Entries came up well, both in quantity and quality. The Norwich classes were well contested, some grand birds being staged. Yorkshires made a good display, and British were a very fine lot, especially in the Goldfinch and Greenfinch classes. The Foreigners included some very taking exhibits, and were much admired. The hon. secretary (Mr. Rutherford) had everything in perfect order, and was assisted by an enthusiastic and hard-working committee. Mr. T. Sandiford judged.

FELINFOEL.

The third annual show of the Felinfoel C.B.S., was held on December 18th, in the Council School, a capital place for a bird show, being well lighted, roomy and free from all draughts. The entries totalled nearly 300, and the quality was most excellent all round. We certainly think the committee can congratulate themselves upon securing such an excellent result. We shall be surprised if this young society in the near future does not provide one of the leading shows in the Principality. They are certainly a keen and enthusiastic body of fanciers, and workers, and thoroughly deserve every success. In the hon. secretary, Mr. T. J. Davies, they have a most capable official at the helm, full of tact, and most courteous and obliging. He has a capital assistant in Mr. David Morris. Mr. W. Bowen is the chairman of a splendid committee. The silver cup for most points was won by Messrs. Hammacott and Card, who put down a strong team. Mr. J. H. Payne made the awards.

BLAIRGOWRIE.

The first annual show of the East Perthshire O.S. was held in the Public Hall, Blairgowrie, on Dec. 18th, and must be admitted a success. It filled a want in the neighbourhood, being the first show for very many years. It was not expected to be a big show as numbers go, but the office-bearers seemed to be quite satisfied with the results, and there is a patron list that covers a whole page of the catalogue, and nearly £100 was given in donations, which speaks volumes for the enthusiasm of the organisers. The show was declared open after a few neatly-chosen sentences by Mrs. Graham-Menzies, of Halliburton, a well-known and keen fancier. Mr. J. B. Murdoch is the secretary. He is no novice, and all seemed carefully thought out, and everything went smoothly. Of the committee one cannot speak too highly; everyone seemed to be imbued with the desire to make our visit as pleasant as possible, and the judge's dinner in the Queen's Hotel could not be surpassed. Mr. J. F. Dewar judged.

CREST: 1, sp, sp for second best in show, 3, Gray, former right good Grey Crest of very fair size and very well radiated, 3rd nice, neat Green; 2, Whitton, even-wing dark Crest, a wee bit long in head; 4, McDougal, very nice heavy varieg. SANQUHAR.

The 25th annual show of the Sanquhar P.P. and Canary Club was held in the Public Hall, on Dec. 11th, when the entries were a little back from last year's, but this was owing to the large number of shows being held on the same date. The exhibits were well staged. The local classes were out standing both as regards numbers and quality, there being some exhibits in these classes fit to win in the open. Mr. J. Smillie gained the Border Fancy medal with his superb clear yellow hen, which also secured first and special in its own class. The British birds also reached the high water mark for quality. The annual dinner of the society was held in the Commercial Inn in the afternoon, when there was a good attendance. Mr. Wm. Moffat filled the secretarial post courteously and efficiently, and his staff of stewards were also very willing and obliging. Mr. J. Duncan (Muirkirk) judged.

BANNOCKBURN O.S.

The display of cage birds this year was a very meritorious one, the Borders being particularly worthy of note. Mr. Whitfield secured the championship prize, a beautiful cruet-stand, presented by Mr. H. Richardson, for best bird in this section, with a Buff Piebald. Wilson Bros. also secured medal for the best Border Fancy. The Society's magnificent cup, presented to the competitor scoring most points, was again won this year by Messrs. Wilson Bros. They have secured this cup for three years in succession, and it now becomes their property. The society will require to look out for another to take the place of the one which parted company with them. The judges, Mr. Allan Chalmers (Kirkintilloch) and J. Priugle (Selkirk) did their work impartially, and their decisions gave complete satisfaction. Mr. W. Wark, the hard-working secretary, and the other office-bearers are responsible chiefly for the unprecedented success which has attended the society's efforts. A large number of people patronised the show.

"CAGE BIRDS ANNUAL" for 1910.

We are now engaged in the preparation of this ever invaluable Year Book.

Every advertiser in this standard work of reference reaps a rich reward. Year after year the same breeders and traders are represented in its pages proving its unparalleled value for advertising purposes.

gives you a whole year's publicity at the smallest possible cost. This will make the eighth year of issue, and every year's production is pronounced to be a long way ahead of its predecessors.

Every prominent breeder and exhibitor should make certain of seeing his name and address in this Annual. How often do you as a breeder want to know another breeder's address, and without the Annual what a trouble it is to find it! The list of fanciers annually advertising themselves in this valuable handbook is no small index to its usefulness. If hitherto your advertisement has not appeared in it, make up your mind at once to place an order right away in it.

The breeding season for 1910 promises to be an exceptionally successful one. Special efforts will be made to extend the sale of the Annual amongst novices and contemplating purchasers.

Here is the full Advertisement Tariff for "CAGE BIRDS ANNUAL" 1910.

PASS'S JOINER-MADE CAGES, CHEAP,
Are selling faster than ever. You can have them made of best materials, any size required, with any number compartments, cheap. Mr. MacDonald, Eveline-st., Denniston, writes: Received 6-compartment cage; am highly pleased with it at the price, 9/-. Mr. G. Webster, Stanley Common, Derby,—Nine-compartment cage arrived safe; send another like it. Send for list of 60 sizes.—Pass, Annesley-rd., Hucknall, Notts.

MY CLAP NETS

Are made from the finest and strongest thread obtainable, and to convince you that they are put together better than any net advertised, I will send them carriage paid, 4yds. 5/-, 5yds. 6/-, 6yds. 7/-, 7yds. 8/-, 8yds. 9/-, 9yds. 10/-, 10yds. 11/-, all 5ft. deep, two nets to each pair, with pegs, poles, and pull lines; loose netting, ½in. mesh, 7ft. deep 5d. yard, ¾in. mesh, 7ft. deep, 3d.; 10ft. deep, 4d. yard; bird brace swivels 2d., all post free.—Morris, 112, Cape-hill, Birmingham.

MY SELF-ACTING SPRING NET TRAPS
catch birds of every description without any attention, price 1/6; larger size, 2/-, carriage paid. I have received hundreds of testimonials stating they are worth double the money of any trap advertised. Read two, and beware of cheaper imitations that are not worth the cost of carriage: "Sir,—I received the net trap; it is honestly worth a dozen of some of the nets advertised. I tried it this afternoon and caught more birds in two hours than I have caught in other traps in two months.—George Matthews, Bird Catcher, 2, Lucas-street, Stockport." "Sir,—Trap arrived. It is far superior to all others. I have to-day caught fifteen Linnets, six Redpolls, four Chaffinches, three Greenfinches.—J. Scragg, The Old Brewery, Armitage-road, Rugeley." Entirely self-acting and self-setting trap cages, warranted to catch birds and reset without attention, 1/6.—Henry Morris, 112, Cape-hill, Birmingham.

IMPROVED PUNCH BAR FRONTS.

NOTICE TO READERS

Champion, amateur, and novice, requiring their breeding stock, should not hesitate where to send, although it must seem somewhat difficult amongst so many advertisers. My strain of Norwich has stood the test for years, and many of the leading winners this season come from my rooms. I do not keep or supply cheap rubbish, which is useless. I have some fine yellow hens, 15/-, 20/- upwards; splendid buff hens, 12/6 to 30/-; specially matched pairs, 40/-, 50/- and 60/- per pair; yellow and buff cocks, 15/- to 40/-, the best money can buy. Read the following: December 6th. Dear Sir,—I showed the bird Saturday, he took 2nd prize. I think myself he should have had 1st. I have bought a lot of birds this last 20 years, but I think he is the best I have had; will patronise you again. Yours faithfully ——. December 8th, Dear Sir,—Bird to hand, am pleased with him. I showed him Saturday, and he stood 2nd. Yours faithfully, ——. Name and full address sent on receipt of post card; approval.—A. E. Silk, Norwich Specialist, Whitstable.

Judge J. BERTIE

says type is not the only item necessary in a good Norwich Plainhead. No, but Mister its a great, great big item, so if your birds are not the right type, then you may just as well not keep them from an exhibition point of view. Judges are now looking more to that most important point—type. And I have them. Large, cobby birds, with rare good heads and short, thick necks, making up a perfect model, those kind that catch the judge's eye at first sight. Fanciers are welcome to view my stock and judge for themselves. Approval, stamp.—Reply, 521, Woodborough Road, Mapperley, Nottingham.

LET ME

Let me make yours a bright and happy New Year. You know how a real good singing Canary brightens up the home. I have the best songsters in the world, and guarantee every customer satisfaction, so sure am I that my birds will please you that I send my Canaries carriage paid to your door on seven days' approval, at my sole risk, thus allowing you seven days to examine and test the qualities of the birds before considering to keep them. I have sold many thousand birds, and every customer has been delighted with his or her purchase, which is proved by the thousands of unsolicited testimonials I have from time to time published, and originals of which are open for your inspection. A trial order is all I ask of you, for I know that the superior quality of my birds will bring me your repeat orders, and those of your friends. My stock of genuine trained St. Andreasberg Rollers are unsurpassable. Cocks in full song by day and artificial light, 7/6, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6 each; a few contest songsters, 15/-; 20/-, 25/- each. HUMMEL ROLLERS.

Finest Rollers imported. To speak well of the Hummel is to gild refined gold. Testimonials from customers who say the Hummel is still singing as sweetly as when purchased four, five, six, and seven years ago. All Hummels have delightful, deep, delicate bow roll, hollow roll, hollow bow roll, dupipe, hollow bell roll, grand round bass roll, vibrating hollow roll, and charming water bubble roll; one price only, 12/6; no fancy prices; Hummel hens, 3/- each; a beautiful pair of Hummels for 15/-; St. Andreasberg Rollers, 5/- and 7/6 each. Hummel Schoolmasters, 20/- each, better than can be obtained elsewhere at treble the price. Thousands of testimonials have been published by me in CAGE BIRDS from satisfied customers. I guarantee strictly honourable trading and satisfaction to all.—Varney, sole proprietor and importer of this remarkable Roller Canary. Twenty years' advertiser.—Varney, Stratford, London.

CONTEST SINGERS

Seifert Rollers of the highest excellence, brothers to my recent silver cup winners at Leeds, Wakefield and Bury this season; Schoolmasters and contest singers, 20/- to 60/- each; hens, 10/- each; every bird guaranteed bred by myself and wearing closed club ring; not imported hot-house plants that die off when you have had them a week or two.—Foulds, 213, Brunswick-st., near Owen's College, Manchester.

ROEHL'S PRIZE WINNING STRAIN

The superiority of my celebrated strain has again this season shown itself, far in advance of all others with which it has entered into competition. These facts can easily be proven from the various show reports. At the Horticultural Hall, in the young bird champion class, the following winners are guaranteed exclusively bred from my strain: 1st, 2nd, 3rd, 4th, extra 4th, 5th, and vhc. In the old bird champion class, 1st, 2nd, 5th. In the open competition, 1st, 3rd, and 4th. Also at Wakefield, champion young birds, 1st, 2nd, 3rd, and 5th; champion open class, 1st and 2nd. This clearly shows that with good judgment in selecting birds for breeding, my strain cannot possibly be beaten. I have always on hand a limited number of the above strain, and every bird is thoroughly judged, and carefully conserved in his song. Prices, from 50/- and upwards, according to tours. Hartz Mountain Rollers, in full and good song, without harsh or hard tours, from 8/6, 10/6, 15/-, 20/-, and 25/-. Song piping Bullfinches, piping 2 tunes correctly, from £3. A great variety of cages, for all kinds of birds in stock, and every description of cage made to order.—400, Edgware-rd., London, W.

14 DAYS' TRIAL, MY RISK.

are the terms we send our celebrated contest Rollers, and they can win in any competition. The price, 15/- only, and you can deposit your money with Editor for 14 days' trial, at my risk, and don't buy from anyone except on these terms. Send deposit at once, also send to one of the other dealers, and get one, any price up to 30/-, and you will decide to have my 15/- contest Roller, the real champion Rollers, which are only imported by me. Remember the price, 15/- only, and 14 days' trial, my risk, no fancy prices; sterling value only from me. Hartz Roller Canaries, cocks in full song, 4/6, 5/6, 6/6, and 7/6 each; St. Andreasberg Rollers, 8/6, 10/6 and 12/6; hens of best strains, 1/3, 1/9, 2/6, and 3/6 each. Give your orders at the Fountain Head, if you want satisfaction; largest dealers and importers in North of England; send for catalogue, post free; anything alive bought, sold or exchanged.—Northern Aviaries, Prestou.

To All Interested

I beg respectfully to call attention to the following:—

A good free singing Canary for 4/3, also Champion Norwich or Yorkshire Songsters, 6/6, 7/6, 8/6, 10/6. Cages 3d. extra in all cases, and all sent on one week's approval to any part of Great Britain. I pay all carriage back, and either refund your money in full, or exchange the bird, whichever you prefer. This seems to me straight selling enough for any reasonable person to be satisfied with.

To Beginners.

If you cannot afford a big price, send for a pair of my correctly matched Norwich at 8/6 or 9/6; and now note this.—In most cases where you send for pairs at this price, you are sent two buffs, often both marked birds—this is where you do not get what is required—well, I send you one marked, and one clear, one buff, and the other yellow. Travelling cage 3d. extra. Then for 3/6 I will send you a Double Breeding Cage, fitted with everything complete, for an immediate start. Total for Birds and Cage 12/3 for 8/6 birds, or 13/3 for 9/6 birds. But I would strongly recommend you to have my Cage No. 100; it has sand drawers, and is fitted with sanitary furniture throughout, and the price is only 5/-.

My special matched pairs of prize-bred Norwich Plainheads at 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, and 20/-; Crested ditto, 15/-, 20/-, 25/-, and 30/-; Yorkshires, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, and 20/-; Lancashires, 25/-, 30/-, 40/-; Cinnamons, 8/6, 9/6, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-; Lizards, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-; Border Fancies, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6.

NORWICH CRESTED AND CRESTED-BRED IN GREAT NUMBER AND RARE QUALITY AND VALUE.

For Lancashires, Lizards, Cinnamons, Dutch Frills, Scotch Fancies, Border Fancies, Light and Dark Mules, Hybrids, Muling Finches, Muling hens, Budgerigars, etc., etc.

SEE MY FREE COPYRIGHT ILLUSTRATED LIST.

Easy Payments by joining my Original Bird Club.

The first ever brought to the notice of fanciers; the first payment system, with its many objections, is double as old as some of those who claim so much for it. To use an old saying, it is as "old as the hills," but has neither their beauty nor usefulness.

DEPOSIT RULES.

IMPORTANT.

SEND THE FULL COMMISSION.—If the full commission does not accompany the deposit, the vendor will not be notified of its receipt until the amount deficient, plus the extra postage incurred, has been paid to us.

HOW TO REMIT.—Under no circumstances will Cheques or Post-dated Money Orders be accepted as deposits. Uncrossed Postal Orders must be sent and the numbers taken for safety.

RULES.

1.—PROCEDURE.—The intending purchaser should send to this office the amount of the purchase (our deposit fee included), and at the same time he should communicate with the seller, stating what it is he requires sent on approval. We acknowledge receipt of the deposit to both parties. In all cases the depositor should give his name and address, and also that of the vendor, and must write same clearly and distinctly.

2.—END OF TRANSACTION.—The deposit is retained by us until we hear from both parties that the transaction has been completed. If a sale has been effected, we hand the amount deposited to the seller. If a sale has not been effected, we return the amount to the depositor. The transaction must be conducted by the parties themselves. We merely hold the deposit.

3.—AMOUNT OF COMMISSION.—The fee is 6d. for each £1, or fraction of £1, and it must be sent at same time as the deposit.

4.—IMPORTANT POINTS.—The depositor must decide within forty-eight hours of the receipt of the goods whether he will keep or return the same, unless, that is, some other period of approval (of which we must be advised) is agreed upon by both parties. The depositor must at the same time notify us of the fact that he has returned the goods. If the goods are not returned within the said forty-eight hours, we reserve the right to send the deposit to the seller after the expiration of that period. And should the seller fail within three days to notify us of the receipt of his goods back again, the transaction will be treated as ended, and the deposit be returned to the depositor.

5.—A SATISFACTORY PURCHASE.—When a transaction has been completed to the satisfaction of both depositor and seller, both parties must at once return the deposit receipts as a guarantee of its completion. The depositor must at the same time instruct us to pay over the deposit to the seller.

6.—GOODS ALREADY SOLD.—If the goods are sold before our deposit note reaches the seller, or, if for any other reason he declines to do business, he must at once return the deposit note to us. Failing its receipt, we reserve the right to return the deposit to the sender after the expiration of three days.

7.—FRESH TRANSACTION.—In case no sale be effected, a deposit is available for purposes of a fresh transaction, provided another deposit fee be paid.

8.—GOODS IN TRANSIT.—Goods in transit are at the seller's risk, and any damage or loss sustained on the journey must be borne by the seller. But goods not approved of must be properly packed and returned by the same means as were used in sending the same.

9.—PAYMENT OF CARRIAGE.—The payment of carriage must be a matter for arrangement between the vendor and depositor. We do not undertake to settle disputes affecting questions of carriage. But in the absence of other arrangements the purchaser is liable for the carriage of the goods, and if the goods are sent on approval and returned, each party pays the carriage one way.

10.—DISPUTES.—In case of a dispute, the decision of the Editor is final.

CITY OF GLASGOW O.A.

Half-yearly meeting, held on December 18, Mr. Jardine (president) in the chair. There was a good attendance. The principal business was the passing of the financial statement for the year, and the election of officers. After some explanations by the chairman and secretaries the balance-sheet was adopted and passed. Mr. Jardine could not see his way to continue in the position of president, and Mr. D. Black was unanimously appointed, Mr. G. Marlin to be vice-president. A long discussion then ensued regarding the secretary's remuneration and position, and it was finally agreed that there be only one secretary, and on a vote Mr. Alex. Macdonald, 279, Crow Road, Partick, Glasgow, was appointed. Auditors and committee were appointed and a vote of thanks to the chairman brought the meeting to a close.—A. MACDONALD, sec.

CINNAMON C.C.

General meeting, held at Belle Vue Gardens, in conjunction with the Manchester Show on October 31 last. The attendance was not so large as was anticipated. Present: The President, Messrs. W. A. Bladon, A. Bentley, J. T. Hargreaves (Great Harwood), G. E. Bairstow (Halifax), J. H. Heys (Waterfoot), W. E. Seed, L. Roberts (Blackburn), W. T. Hill (Manchester), H. Riding (Rishton), and the hon. secretary, R. J. Pretty. The minutes of of the previous meeting having been read and passed, the secretary read a letter from Mr. Wones regretting the absence of their vice-president owing to his having taken a chill, and explaining that Mr. Wones was greatly disappointed, as he had intimated being present some time past. The President said he was sure the meeting were sorry that Mr. Wones was absent, as they would have been pleased to have seen him at this meeting, and trusted he would soon recover. The everlasting novice question again cropped up, the club's rule being read. It gives the novice a great amount of latitude, and if he is lucky it is possible to take at least 9 firsts before becoming a champion, or one first at three separate shows before going up; but should he win one first in any open class he would become a champion then and there. Mr. Bentley pointed out that this rule was not in accordance with that of the Cage Bird Union rule, and Mr. Riding moved that the rule read the same as that of the C.B.U., Mr. Roberts seconding. The President pointed out that this could not be passed at this meeting, but would go up to the annual general one, and whatever they did at this would be placed upon the agenda of the annual meeting, and be dealt with then. In the discussion that followed it was pointed out by the secretary that the novice rule at this (Manchester) show read, "That a novice is one who has never won two first prizes in open Cinnamon competition." This contrasted with that of the C.B.U., especially considering the show was under C.B.U. rules. The President said he was at a loss to explain how such had occurred. The motion was agreed to. Mr. Riding suggested that a subscription for a trophy be raised, and moved, "That a subscription list be opened to provide a trophy, to be won three times in all, a medal to be given each year to the winner." He also suggested that it be given for the best unflighted. Mr. Bentley, in seconding the motion, suggested that it be competed for at the club shows. The President remarked that these cups and trophies caused a certain amount of trouble, and was of opinion that they ought to be won outright each year. Mr. Seed moved, "That the suggestion be not entertained," but was not seconded. Mr. Hill spoke upon the unfairness of the novice rule, and suggested that a novice should remain such until the end of the season; Mr. Seed supported, and moved that the novice points count throughout the season. Mr. A. Wilkins (of the Leeds C.B.S.) was unanimously elected a member, and, the business being concluded, Mr. Riding proposed a vote of thanks to Mr. Bladon for presiding, and to the hon. secretary for his attendance, Mr. Roberts seconding; it was unanimously agreed to. The vote having been acknowledged the meeting terminated.—R. J. PRETTY, hon. sec.

FIFE & KINROSS NORWICH P.C.

Annual meeting, held on December 25th at Penman's Masonic Arms, Cowdenbeath. In the absence of the president, Mr. Gilbert Fisher, Bowhill (who, I am sorry to say, is at present an inmate of the Edinburgh Royal Infirmary), the vice-president, Mr. T. Barclay, presided. The financial report was given, and showed the club's affairs were very satisfactory, a small balance being in hand. The auditors reported they had found the books correct. The rules were gone over, and it was considered that they needed no alteration. The following gentlemen were then elected: Hon. president, Councillor G. Penman, vice-pres., Inspector Mitchell; pres., Mr. W. Spence (Bowhill), vice-pres., Mr. T. Barclay; secretary and treasurer, Mr. A. Dickson, 37, Adam's Terrace, Kelty; committee, Messrs. J. Mathieson, P. McHale, and D. McConville. The next business was the presentation of the cup and medals, which was done by Mr. Spence, the newly-elected president. Penman challenge cup and gold medal, A. Dickson. Club medals: Cock medal (Kelty), P. McCue; hen, A. Dickson; cock (Cupar), Inspector Mitchell; hen, T. Barclay; cock (Thornton), D. Brown; hen, W. Spence; cock (Bowhill), G. Fisher; hen, J. Mathieson. Points: A. Dickson, 48; T. Barclay, 19; W. Spence, 19; P. McCue, 17; J. Mathieson, 12; A. Ramsay, 10; G. Fisher, 9; Inspector Mitchell, 5; P. McHale, 5; D. McConville, 4; D. Brown, 3; A. Hynd, 1; and W. Lister, 1. Trouser length for best unflighted at Kelty, P. McCue. A couple of social hours were spent, and all enjoyed themselves. The membership for the oncoming year is now open. All information from—A. DICKSON, hon. sec., 37, Adam's Terrace, Kelty, N.B.

FALKIRK (Good Intent) C.B.A.

Monthly meeting, held in the Oddfellows' Hall, on December 25th, Mr. J. Hunter presiding. The rules were finally settled, and the show date fixed for December 10th, 1910. A number were added to the roll. The next meeting will be held January 29th.—W. CLUBB, sec.

EDINBURGH (Eastern Dis.) O.S.

Annual meeting, held in Free Gardeners' Hall on December 6th. The balance-sheet was considered satisfactory. The election of office-bearers for the ensuing year took place. There was a good muster of old members present. Three new members joined the society.—GEO. R. SMITH, sec.

CAMBUSLANG C.C.

Annual general meeting and election of office-bearers, held in the Free Gardeners' Hall, on December 11th, Mr. Lappin (president) in the chair Mr. J. Gray, secretary, submitted the balance-sheet, which showed the very satisfactory surplus of £2 17s. 8d. on the year's working. The following gentlemen were then unanimously elected to the various posts: President, Mr. J. Lappin; vice-president, Mr. H. Allen; treasurer, Mr. J. Wilson; secretary, Mr. J. Coutts. The visiting committee and auditors will be elected at a future meeting, as there are a number of new members proposed. This club has suffered very much during the last five years from lack of interest among the fanciers of the district, but we hope for better things now, as we have more than double our last season's membership proposed already. Before the close of the meeting Mr. J. Gray presented Mr. Lappin with the club's gold medal, won by him at the annual show for best bird in hall. The meeting then closed with the usual votes of thanks.—J. COUTTS, sec.

STOCKPORT B.F.A.

Annual dinner, social, and presentation of prizes took place on December 8th, at The Boar's Head Hotel, when upwards of 30 members and a few friends sat down to an excellent dinner, served up by Mr. and Mrs. Nelson. Mr. J. E. Davies presided. After the company had done justice to the good things provided, the presentations took place. Mr. W. T. Hill handed to the president (Mr. J. E. Davies) the ten guinea champion cup (which he had won outright), and heartily congratulated him on the fight he had made. Mr. Davies was a good sportsman and a fancier, and well deserved to win. In accepting the cup the recipient said he should look upon it with pride. He had tried hard to win, and he had succeeded. He then complimented the other members who had won the cup previously, namely Messrs. Massey, Garner, Slater, and Booth, and also promised to give a valuable prize to the society in place of the one he had just received Mr. Davies then filled the cup with champagne, and handed it round to the company, and many and varied were the congratulations from the members. Mr. G. H. Massey presented to Mr. Davies a very nice rose bowl, won by the latter, for best bird in show. Mr. Davies handed to Mr. J. Shore a very handsome clock set, won outright, and, Mr. Shore having suitably replied, the president handed to Mr. Snape the silver-plated tea urn won in the amateur section. Mr. W. T. Hill was given the handsome coffee pot won in the British bird section, and said he had only tried for one prize, and had won it. Medals were given to the winners. Speechmaking was cut short, and the company listened to many good songs by Messrs. P. McDonald, J. Bennett, W. McKail, F. Hardy, J. Potts, and to some gramaphone selections by Mr. W. T. Hill and Mr. F. W. Nelson. A hearty vote of thanks was passed to the artistes for entertaining us so well, also to the host and hostess, and we must say that it was one of the best "annuals" we have had.—W. STAFFORD, sec.

Singing Contests.

SHEFFIELD.

Linnet singing contest, held at Fitzwilliam Hotel, Milford Street, Carbrook, on December 12th, when 20 birds sang (two minutes sing): 1, Palfreman, 88; 2, Wilson, 52; 3, Wilson, 38. At same hotel, December 19th, 10 birds were entered: J. Robinson and T. Wilson, dead heat, 85 each; 3, J. Williamson, 69. This linnet singing society is now in full swing, and anyone wishing to join can do so by giving name to Mr. M. J. Grundy, Fitzwilliam Hotel, Milford Street, Carbrook, or to me.—A. BROWN, sec., No. 11, Bold Street, Attercliffe.

Contest held on Christmas Day at the Fitzwilliam Hotel, Milford Street, Carbrook; 22 birds were entered, and some splendid singing was heard (2 minutes sing). 1, Palfreman, 75; 2, Wilson, 72; 3, Williamson, 63. Also at same hotel on Dec. 26th, when 14 birds entered (3 minutes sing), Palfreman winning with "Uncle Joseph," in fine style—score of 86; also he gained second with "Blackadder"—score 83; Booker running close up for 3rd place with 77. Also a match between Cole and Knight, Knight winning with a score of 27, against 17. Contest held on Dec. 27th, at Fitzwilliam Hotel, when 14 birds sang. First prize was lady's silver watch. The singing was a surprise to all, and the scores were a record for the time of year: 1, Palfreman, 126; 2, Wilson, 103; 3, Cole, 99; Knight, 86; Robinson, 77; Wilson, 76.—Brown. Sec.

LEEDS.

Usual contest held at King's Head, Shannon Street, on December 25th, when 17 birds faced the judges, Messrs. Melia and Naylor. 1, 2, Hardcastle; 3, Cooper. Also on same evening we tried the London style, at gaslight, which resulted as follows: 1, Sissons; 2, Hardcastle; 3, Stead; judges, Messrs. Melia and Hoban. Also on December 26th, when 20 birds sang. 1, Hardcastle; 2, Bland; 3, Stead; judges, Messrs. Jennings, Naylor, and Hoban. Also on December 27th, Christmas contest, with new and old friends from far and near. Mr. H. W. Barnard (Barking, Essex) sent us a special bird cage for the winner, which was Bland; 2, Hardcastle; 3, Sissons. Judges, Messrs. Jennings, Naylor, and Hoban. —WILSON NAYLOR, hon. sec.

Usual weekly contest, held at Skinner's Arms, Buslingthorpe, on December 26th, when 14 birds sang. 1, Green; 2, Ward; 3, Thirkell. Judges, Messrs. Renton and Gallie.

Roller singing contest, held December 26 at Plasterers' Arms, Skinner Lane, North Street. We have again to thank Messrs. A. Binns, T. Summers, and W. Sissons for officiating and judging 14 birds to everyone's satisfaction. Some nice singing was heard. Mr. A. Kendall was again to the front, giving three extra good prizes. 1, Jowett; 2, Waite; 3, Green. Next contest January 9, commence 7.30, and will be continued fortnightly during the season. —JOE HARGREAVES, hon. sec.

The Young Naturalist.

Prizes of 1s. and two of 6d. each will be given weekly for the best three anecdotes about birds written on postcards. Competitors must be under sixteen years of age, and state whence stories are taken. Two stars indicate the Winning Contribution; one star the runners up.

*Brave Starlings.

In a rickyard, in some hay, a pair of Starlings built their nest and laid five eggs, hatching out five young. When the young were several days old the farmer's little son was playing with matches and the rick caught fire. When the farm hands were extinguishing the fire, the old birds were seen to move their young to a place of safety.—Taken from a school book by Nora Sleep (age 11), 7, Oakfield Terrace, Plymouth.

*The Robin's Petition.

The dear Robin has fled from the wood
To the snug habitation of man;
On the threshold the wanderer stood,
And thus his great petition began:

"The snow is coming down very fast;
I can find neither berry nor sloe;
The ground, it is as hard as a stone,
And I'm almost buried in the snow.

"Then throw to me a morsel of bread,
And warm me by the side of your fire.
And when I am quite warm and well fed,
I will whistle without any hire."

Sent by Reggie West (age 9), Factory Street, Shepshed, Leicestershire.

A Hardy Parrot.

For these last two months, in our town there has been a Green Amazon Parrot living out of doors in all this hard weather, flying and feeding among the Crows. It is a beautiful sight when seen flying, with its great long wings and bright colours glittering in the sun. It flies at a great height, and very fast, shouting all the way. It goes to an old castle through the day, where there is a Rookery, and mixes among the Crows, but Polly has to keep her distance from them, as they don't seem to like her. It goes to a gentleman's garden every night, and roosts in the trees. Polly is looking very healthy, and does not seem to have taken any harm from her outdoor life.—Sent by Dorothy Bradley (age 11), 18, Lapstone Road, Millom, Cumberland.

Wild Bird Life.

Redwings and Fieldfares.

The more we study the matter the more we are convinced that bird migration has nothing to do with the calendar, but everything to do with the weather and the supply of food. If the Scandinavian fields could entertain the Redwings and Fieldfares during the winter months, we should not see them in the United Kingdom in anything like the numbers we do. Even as it is, their visits to certain localities are only very occasional. This year we have not seen them in the fields close to this village, and only a few on the higher grounds, whereas, while on a visit recently to the west coast of Ireland, the Redwings were to be seen upon every green patch. The district was "alive" with them, dotted here and there about the grass or under the shelter of the stone walls which border each field. He is the most easily distinguished of all our Thrushes. The ruddy patch under the wing and light eye stripe, which can be plainly seen at some distance makes the bird stand out quite distinctly from the others. The Thrushes are easily recognised by everybody, but many are unable to distinguish them or name them at sight. There is no difficulty in distinguishing the Song-Thrush, the Missel-Thrush, the Fieldfare and Redwing, when all four are seen together; but when apart they frequently pass one for the other. Abundant as the Fieldfares become with us in Winter, their close observation is no easy matter. They are shy and not easily approached. One hears a noisy chattering near the edge of a wood, and upon quietly proceeding in the direction of the sound, a flock of birds is seen. These are easily recognised as Thrushes, but to get near enough to make identification certain, is difficult. They fly off a short distance, and are easily followed, but still the same annoying distance is kept until at last they take to the open, when it is useless to follow them. The shyness of the Fieldfares is difficult to account for, for neither in their northern homes, nor here in Britain are they hunted to any extent. As a rule, when a large flock of Thrush-like birds is seen, it is more likely to be one of Fieldfares than of any other. They fly in loose flocks, progressing by flaps and pauses, sweeping round and settling with the head well up.

No. 374.
A Convenient Mouse Trap.
Sent by Mr. W. B. Jepson, St. John's Vicarage, Lewisham High Road, Brockley, S.E.

This trap is very suitable for the bird-room because the seed the mice are stealing can be used as the bait with which to catch them. In other traps, the seed cannot be fixed upon the wire hooks. A tin, about 7 inches deep and 5 inches in diameter, with string and coarse brown paper, are all that is needed. Place the paper, which should be a large sheet, upon the top of the tin, and upon it rest a heavy book or weight. The paper can then be easily tied tight round the tin, when the book may be removed. With a sharp knife cut a hole, almost circular, in the paper drum. A hinge, at least two inches across, should be left uncut. To set the trap, half-fill the tin with water, and then put some seed upon the flap, just enough not to make it fall. If the mice get shy of the trap, pin paper round the top of the tin and put the seed on it. After a few days unpin it, and the mice will be taken unawares.—W. B. JEPSON.

Sieve for Sand, Grit, etc.
Sent by Mr. T. J. McMillan, 6, Norwood Street, Belfast.

Enclosed is a sketch of a sieve for sand grit, etc. The use of this does away with one's having to keep three or four sieves. The only difference between this and the ordinary sieve is that this is made with a slot at the bottom,

Cash in Exchange for your Experiences.

There must be thousands among the readers of CAGE BIRDS with much knowledge stored away in their heads upon the above subjects. Utilise your leisure moments to put that knowledge on paper for the benefit of your fellow bird-keepers, and in exchange for your experiences there may be a cash prize waiting that will help you to buy some bird or other acceptable item you are a-wanting. Turn your spare moments to profitable account. Remember that all articles published by us will be paid for (note rules), also that photographs and drawings may accompany articles.

The Closing Date, remember, is January 24th next.

RULES.

(Read these very carefully.)

Each essay must be clearly written (or typed), on one side of the paper only.

The length is left to competitors, but essays should not contain less than 1,000 words wherever possible.

Faults of spelling and grammar will not be counted against any essay, practical utility, interest, and simplicity being the chief essentials.

No name or address must be put on any essay, but each must be signed with a nom-de-plume, the sender's name and address being attached on a separate sheet of paper.

The Editor's decision will be final. Competent assistance will be called in to aid him in arriving at his decision.

All essays sent in (and any accompanying sketches or photographs) become the property of CAGE BIRDS, but all which are published (over and above the winning essay) will be duly paid for according to their worth to us.

All entries must reach CAGE BIRDS office, 154, Fleet-street, London, E.C., on or before Monday, January 24th next. Write "Essay Competition," on top left-hand corner of envelope or package.

I am sorry to say that Mr. R. Cameron's 1st prize wild Linnet is missing, but the committee are doing their utmost to recover it, writes Mr. C. W. Paterson, hon. sec. of Ayr O.S. show.

Our show is again fixed for January 1st, 1911, writes Mr. W. H. Wright, hon. secretary of the Carlisle and Dis. C.B.S., when we hope to be once more favoured with the support of fanciers.

Carmarthen Show report credits Mr. Clee's bird with being winner of 2nd prize in the Yorkshire Unflighted Class; this is an error. The birds winning both 1st and 2nd in this class were mine.—E. W. THOMAS (Carmarthen).

The Yorkshire Union of C.B.S.

A meeting of the Council will be held at Bradford East Show this Saturday, January 1st, 1910, at 5.30 o'clock prompt, writes Mr. H. Hill, the hon. secretary. Business: show irregularities and other important items.

Our Competitions.

Those readers who are entering our competition for painting the front page of the recent Christmas Number should remember that Monday next (January 3rd) is positively the last day on which their attempts can be received. Be in time.——Readers entering the Literary Competition (see rules and particulars on page 603 this week) have still three weeks in which to write up their experiences for the benefit of those beginning the hobby, and also with the chance of winning one or other of the six prizes offered.

Mr. Chirgwin's Appeal.

In our Christmas Number (to which he contributed a highly entertaining article), Mr. G. H. Chirgwin, the popular "White-eyed Kaffir" of the music-halls, appealed to readers for donations (however small) towards the funds of the Variety Artistes' Benevolent Association. Several sums have come to hand from kindly-disposed readers; likewise one or two offers of singing Canaries to be disposed of for the benefit of the cause; further, a large case of tins of coffee has reached us from Messrs. Lewis and Russell (Westgate, Burnley). To all senders we return thanks on behalf of Mr. Chirgwin, who intends to reply direct in the case of the above-mentioned offers of birds.

Twitterings.

The Hucknall C.B.S. have decided to hold their annual show on the same date as last year, i.e., October 28th and 29th, 1910, writes Mr. E. Mellors, the secretary.

At Leighton Buzzard Show my Goldfinch is reported as "commended," whereas it took premier honours easily, writes Mr. J. Gough (Oxford).

I exported last week some exhibition Yorkshires to Sydney, Australia, per SS. "Salamis," through my advertisement in CAGE BIRDS, writes Mr. J. Taylor (Bradford).

Would the gentleman who wrote from the Isle of Man, concerning a grandfather's clock, kindly send me his address, as I have mislaid it? writes Mr. J. Mann (Durham).

There is a printer's error in our schedule, write Messrs. Gunstead and Clegg, secretaries of the Marske-by-Sea F.S. Fanciers will see it says 1909 instead of 1910. Schedules can be had by applying to us, at 55, Arthur Terrace, New Marske-by-Sea.

In our report of Sligo Show it should have been stated that Mr. C. J. Mulligan, the secretary, lent valuable assistance to Mr. E. J. Tighe, who acted as show manager in an unusually smart and capable manner. To these two able and popular officials the Sligo Society is greatly indebted.

The date of our 1910 All-England Show has been fixed for November 5th and 7th, writes Mr. J. E. Wood, hon. secretary of the Leicester and Leicestershire Hand-in-Hand C.B.S. We have secured the services of Messrs. Chas. Houlton and J. Robson as judges. Will secretaries please note to avoid clashing?

OBITUARY.

Mr. T. JUMP (Wigan).

It is with deep regret, writes Miss Jane Jump, that I have to report the death of my beloved brother, Mr. Thomas Jump, of Wigan, who passed away on December 18th, after a long and painful illness. He was well known as a Linnet judge, both for quality singing and time singing. He also had kept Linnets since he was a boy, and being 50 years old at the time of his death, he could tell a good Linnet when he saw one. At the time of his death he had half a dozen Linnets. He also wrote a few letters to CAGE BIRDS on the Linnet and their song a little while since. I think all bird fanciers will sympathise with his father and mother.

I was delighted with Halifax Show, writes Mr. Fred Hammond. Everything in first-class order, and Mr. Thackray, the secretary (the best of good fellows), complete master of the situation from beginning to end, assisted by a body of as good and genuine fanciers as can be found throughout the length and breadth of the land. They are worthy holders of the Yorkshire Union record entry.

Crystal Palace Cage Bird Show schedules will be posted to known exhibitors on Tuesday, January 11th. Any exhibitor not receiving a copy by Wednesday, January 12th, should apply for one. Advertisements inserted in catalogue only at following rates:—Full page 30s., half-page 15s., quarter-page 7s. 6d.; breeders' cards and trade cards, 2s. 6d. each.—J. W. Ramsden, Show Manager, 11, Josephine Avenue, Brixton, London.—(ADVT.)

We are asked to state that Mr. J. S. Clarke has requested that his name be removed from the list of members of the L.C.B.A., as a result of what he considers an unfounded attack made upon him by Mr. R. L. Crisp in the course of a recent controversy. It is not for us to express any regret at the secession of Mr. Clarke, but members of the L.C.B.A., who remember this gentleman's loyal and disinterested services to their society will without doubt be sorry to learn of the step he has taken. As one of the founders of the L.C.B.A., Mr. Clarke worked his hardest to place it upon a sound basis, and he was the originator of several notable schemes for its development, including, we believe, that of the "World's Champion Society" in operation at the L.C.B.A. annual shows. As a keen and slyly humorous debater, "J.S.C." could be depended upon to make a success of any meeting he honoured with his interesting personality. It is sincerely to be hoped that Mr. Clarke's experience and ripe judgment will not be lost to the Fancy in the Metropolis.

AN ASTOUNDING LEGAL DECISION

Which Seriously Affects Keepers of British Birds.

At Old Street (London) Police Court on December 21st last, before Mr. Biron, two well-known "Club Row" bird-dealers, named Preston and Flowers, were summoned at the instance of the Society for the Protection of Wild Birds for "having in their possession" wild birds recently taken, namely, two Skylarks and two Chaffinches. This was in the nature of a test case, the point at issue being the important one of whether it is illegal for anyone residing in a protected district to be in possession of recently taken wild birds which were caught in an open (unprotected) district. The birds in question were traced by the Society's officers from Cambridgeshire (where they were caught) to the defendants' shops. The prosecution contended that no person could legally be in possession of recently taken wild birds which were protected in the district in which the said person resided (in this case the county of Essex), even though the said birds were caught in a district wherein they were not protected. After a protracted hearing and much legal argument, the magistrate upheld this view of the law, and condemned the defendants in costs.

The far-reaching effect of this truly astounding decision will be at once apparent to our readers. It means that no person—be he dealer or private individual—can be in possession of any newly-taken British bird should that species happen to be on the list of protected birds for the district in which he lives—whether caught in that district or not does not affect the point (or so the S.P.W.B., and, incidentally, Mr. Biron, would have us believe). It means the closing of all trade in British birds in the London area and in the majority of districts in Great Britain, as the possession of a newly-caught specimen of any protected species (be it Goldfinch, Linnet, Chaffinch, Lark, Thrush, or even Sparrow), would render the possessor liable to be summoned and fined. We have no desire to be discourteous to Mr. Biron, but we say at once that his decision is in our opinion bad in law, and contrary to commonsense, and to a proper reading of the bye-law governing the administrative county of Essex, under which the prosecution was instituted. We are, in the interests of British bird-keepers, obtaining the opinion of legal experts upon the point, and shall have more to say concerning the matter in our next issue.

As promised, I am sending you a list of awards, writes Mr. Fred King, hon. secretary of the recent Carmarthen Show. This has given me a good deal of work to get out, but I think it will make all clear. I am sending an award sheet free to all who sent for catalogues, and also returning the money in full. I don't think I can do more than this to get over the failure of our printer with regard to the catalogues.

Since sending out our schedules, a cup has been presented to the society for best novice Norwich, writes Mr. W. Pawley, hon. secretary of the Plumstead and Woolwich C.B.S. Also an extra class has been put on, viz., Border Fancy hen, No. 20a. The Mayor has agreed to open the show at 4 p.m. on January 6th. No entries are yet to hand, and I trust exhibitors will support us. All prize money is guaranteed and will be paid within seven days.

We have had a highly successful year, writes Mr. Thomas Arnott, secretary, Kirkcaldy C.B.S.. We are to the good about £11. We had a grand show, slightly over 600 entries—not bad for a one-day show. We had a splendid turn out in all sections, and particularly so in the Border and Norwich classes. We thank most heartily all exhibitors for their generous support and hope to be worthy of even more success for the year to come. Our office bearers for 1910 are as follows:—President, Mr. T. Adamson; vice-president, Mr. J. Mitchelson; secretary and treasurer, Mr. T. Arnott; assistant secretary, Mr. E. McAnally; auditor, Mr. J. Brown: committee, Messrs. Moyes, Gibson, McCabe, Rae, Gibb, McAnally, Reekie, and Saunders.

Post Mortem Examinations.

Will readers please note that Post Mortems are now undertaken by Mr. G. Yates, 525, Caledonian Road, Holloway, London, N., to whom all bodies of birds should be sent direct, accompanied by the necessary fee (vide rules on our Query pages). Mr. Yates, we may say, has had great experience in the making of post-mortem examinations and in studying the diseases of birds; further, he is a practical bird-keeper as well as a skilled pathologist.

Ravensthorpe's Juvenile Competition.

Mr. James Overend, one of our oldest Yorkshire Canary breeders, promoted a drawing competition amongst the girls attending St. Saviour's School, Ravensthorpe, writes "Rex." The subject was a "Yorkshire Canary," and no less than 300 drawings were submitted to Mr. Wm. Mundell, of Bradford, for his decision. Each standard of girls formed a class to itself. On Thursday last Mrs. Overend kindly distributed four prizes to each class. The proceedings were of a most interesting nature.

"CAGE BIRDS ANNUAL" for 1910.

Advertisements close January 18th, 1910.

Every advertiser in this standard work of reference reaps a rich reward. Year after year the same breeders and traders are represented in its pages proving its unparalleled value for advertising purposes.

gives you a whole year's publicity at the smallest possible cost. This will make the eighth year of issue, and every year's production is pronounced to be a long way ahead of its predecessors.

Every prominent breeder and exhibitor should make certain of seeing his name and address in this Annual. How often do you as a breeder want to know another breeder's address, and without the Annual what a trouble it is to find it! The list of fanciers annually advertising themselves in this valuable handbook is no small index to its usefulness. If hitherto your advertisement has not appeared in it, make up your mind at once to place an order right away in it.

The breeding season for 1910 promises to be an exceptionally successful one. Special efforts will be made to extend the sale of the Annual amongst novices and contemplating purchasers.

Books for Bird Lovers.

Brief particulars of some of "Cage Birds" SPECIAL PUBLICATIONS for keepers of birds, with post free prices.

THE HYGIENE OF BIRD-KEEPING, 1/1.—By W. Geo. Creswell, M.D. Thoroughly treats of modern hygiene (the science of health) in bird-keeping.

SEPTIC FEVER OR CANARY PLAGUE, 7d.—By R. H. Clarke, M.D. The only booklet published concerning this dread disease, which Dr. Clarke has given very special study.

THE NORWICH PLAINHEAD CANARY, 1½d.—By J. H. Payne. Pronounced by all experts to be a most valuable pamphlet concerning the breeding of the variety; written by one of our leading judges.

CANARY BREEDING FOR BEGINNERS, 7d.—By Claude St. John. A Practical, up-to date guide to Canary breeding, designed specially for the use of the beginner. Deals very fully with the choice, sexing, and mating of the birds, feeding for condition, the cages and their fittings, the bird-room, egg-food, nest-building, rearing and moulting the young, colour-feeding, training for show, and all the difficulties likely to confront the breeder.

MEATING-OFF AND FEEDING SOFTBILLS, 6½d.—By John Frostick. No fancier of Insectivorous Birds who wishes to succeed in his hobby can afford to be without a copy. It also contains notes on Bird Trapping, Cages, etc.

SEEDS, FOODS, AND WILD PLANTS FOR CAGE BIRDS, 1/2. — By various leading authors. Full information on the seeds suitable for all cage birds, their food values, uses, etc., with descriptions and illustrations of the wild plants indispensable to the successful keeping of British and other birds.

HOUSE'S CANARY MANUAL, 1/2.—By C. A. House. A thorough, practical guide to the general management and breeding of Canaries, dealing fully with the breeding, etc., of every member of the Canary family, including the Roller (or Singing) Canary. An illustration of each bird, by the master Canary artist, Mr. H. Norman; exhaustive chapters on aviaries and cages, breeding procedure, moulting, exhibiting, diseases, and seeds—a compendium of knowledge.

BUDGERIGARS AND COCKATEELS, 6d.—By C. P. Arthur. The breeding of Budgerigars and Cockateels is recognised as one of the most profitable and pleasure-giving sides of foreign bird-keeping. This eminent authority gives very full details upon how to keep, feed, breed, tame, and teach them to talk.

PET RABBITS, CAVIES, AND MICE, 1/1½.—By George Gardner. Full information on housing, feeding, breeding, exhibiting, and keeping for profit. A complete practical guide, with illustrations from photographs.

FOREIGN BIRDS FOR BEGINNERS, 1/1.—By W. T. Page, F.Z.S., etc., Foreign Bird Expert to "Cage Birds." A highly instructive Manual. It contains a magnificent coloured plate and a number of black and white illustrations. Indispensable to all keepers of Foreign Birds. Replete with useful hints.

BRITISH BIRD MANUAL, 2/3 (cloth bound).—By H. Norman; or may be had in two parts. Part 1: "Hardbills," and Part 2: "Softbills." Either Part, price 1/1, post free. Each part contains a beautiful and life-like coloured plate and numerous illustrations of birds and cages. Up-to-date information on the keeping of British Birds; full of extremely valuable hints.

COLOUR FEEDING OF CANARIES AND OTHER BIRDS, 3½d.—By J. W. Ramsden. Tells you how to mix the colour-food, and how to moult the birds to get the richest possible colour.

THE STOCK BOOK, 7d.—By G. E. Weston. Of our invaluable "Breeding Room Register" a well-known fancier has said:—"It makes bird-breeding easy." No breeder of birds can possibly afford to be without it. It simplifies the operations in the bird-room and makes it possible for everyone, even the veriest novice, to breed his birds as they should be bred. Contains both Pedigree, Breeding, Young Bird, and Show Registers of simple and unique character, in addition to useful account pages, and many invaluable "Hints for Emergencies."

AVIARIES, BIRD-ROOMS, AND CAGES, 2/3 (cloth gilt).—By H. Norman. Contains ten lovely full-page photographic plates. A practical guide which deals thoroughly with the proper Building, Fitting, and Management of Aviaries and Bird-rooms, and the making of Cages.

YORKSHIRE CANARIES, 1/1½.—By H. W. Battye (Past President of the Yorkshire Union). Absolutely the very best Handbook dealing with the Yorkshire and its sub-varieties. Contains complete instructions upon Pairing, Breeding, Moulting, and successful Exhibiting, also how to treat in both health and disease.

NORWICH CANARIES, 1/1.—By C. A. House. Tells the fancier all that he needs to know to enable him to become successful as a breeder, and exhibitor of the Norwich Plainhead. The chapters on "Forming a Stud," and "How to Produce the Ideal" are worth the cost of the whole book many times over.

BIRDS OF THE COUNTRYSIDE, 5/4.—By Frank Finn, B.A., F.Z.S. A handbook to the wild life of all our familiar British birds; their appearance and habits accurately described. With 12 beautiful coloured plates, and 113 photographic illustrations. A charming gift book.

PETS, AND HOW TO KEEP THEM, 5/4.—By Frank Finn, B.A., F.Z.S. Gives the correct method of housing, feeding, and managing every kind of pet; all sorts of animals are dealt with—monkeys, dogs, cats, lizards, tortoises, also gold and other fancy fish, while there is a large section devoted to birds. Contains many coloured plates and illustrations from photographs. Another charming gift book.

FANCIERS' PRINTING.—Fanciers requiring business notepaper, postcards, trade envelopes, etc., should write us for a quotation. We are now in a position to supply these at specially low rates combined with first-class work. Artistic memos., with block of any desired bird, and fancier's name, address, and 12 words of description, 250 2/-, 500 2/6, carriage paid.

Important Notice

To All Our Readers.

"Cage Birds" 1910 Annual.

is now in course of preparation, and will be published early in February, as usual, and be on sale at the forthcoming Crystal Palace Show, and in the hands of all subscribers, we hope, by Friday, February 4th next. To enable us to keep our word we ask the generous co-operation of readers in sending particulars required in its compilation, also their advertisements, at the earliest possible moment. Any suggestions for new features or for the improvement of present features will be welcomed, and receive every consideration.

Secretaries of All Societies

devoted to the interests of the cage-bird hobby should send us full particulars of same at once for inclusion in our Alphabetical List of Cage-Bird Clubs. We want the full name of the Society, the latest list of its officials, the place and time of meetings and the nights, the entrance fee and the subscription. As this is the only directory to those associations catering for cage bird fanciers in existence, no society can afford to be missing from the list. Members themselves should make a point of seeing that their society is included. Secretaries who have changed their addresses should not fail to notify us. We want our list to be thoroughly up-to-date, and thoroughly complete.

All Judges of Cage Birds

who have officiated at any recognised show can have their name and address inserted in our list of judges by sending us particulars on a post card, stating what varieties (if any) they specialise in. There is no charge whatever. Any judge at present on our list who may have changed his address during the past year should notify us at once. This list, remember, is the only complete one of its kind, and is universally consulted by show officials.

To the Bird Trade.

Our directory to the bird trade is a feature that no dealer in birds, or foods, or medicines, or appliances of any kind whatsoever, can neglect. It is a permanent record of his address, as well as of his specialities, and forms an invaluable guide to the fanciers in his own town as well as all over the world. No charge is made for the inclusion of any bona-fide trader, but the name can be thrown up in heavy black type on payment of 1s. (one shilling).

TO ALL BREEDERS AND EXHIBITORS AND ADVERTISERS GENERALLY.

For Breeders' Cards, and other displayed Advertisements, business bringers from All over the World, see the low terms quoted on page 606 this week.

These are Advertisements which at a very low cost will bring you business for a whole year.

Write us at once for any particulars you may require.

THE MANAGER, "CAGE BIRDS ANNUAL," 154, FLEET STREET, LONDON, E.C.

It has long been our desire to have an open show, but we have had to postpone the event on account of lack of outside support, writes Mr. T. H. Tiffen, hon. secretary of the Ormskirk and Dis. C.B.S.

We have extended to January 4th (Tuesday) our entries closing date, as this clashed with the holidays, which seriously affected our entries.—F. Looker, secretary of the Hertford F.A.

Hillfoots report should read in the Border Clear Yellow Class: 1st, Wilson Bros.; in the Ticked, etc., Class: 1st, Wilson Bros.; and in the Selling Class. 1st, Wilson Bros., and not Wilson.—Henry Wilson (Bannockburn).

The Coldstream Society will hold a grand open show on January 22nd, writes Mr. J. W. Bruce, the hon. secretary, and the judges are: for Canaries, Mr. W. Bell, and for British birds Mr. Mason. There will be a splendid classification, and good prize money with a low entry fee.

Allow me to thank you for the good report of our show on December 18th, writes Mr. A. D. Duncan, hon. secretary, Kilsyth F.A. The Hen Finch Class, owing to a printer's error in catalogue, gives Reid as first, whereas I was first, second, and third in that class. I had first with a Brit. Bullie hen, whereas Mr. Reid's bird was a Bramblefinch.

THE LATE MR. J. NORTH.

An Account of an Interesting Career.

The news of the passing away of my old friend North came with something of a shock to me, for only so recently as the occasion of the Show of the Tunbridge Wells Society were we judging together. Little did I think then, as I wished him "Good-bye," that it would be the last time I should look upon his face.

My acquaintance with our deceased brother goes back over a long series of years into the eighties, at which time he was residing in my native county of Hampshire, and was one of the leading breeders of Crests and Crest-breds in the Fancy. Mr. F. G. Foster's "Pride of Portsmouth," Mr. J. B. Dyer's "Eclipse," and our deceased friend's "Ormonde" were a trio of Crests which in those days were the talk of the Fancy, and even now are often spoken of by those old breeders who had the pleasure of gazing upon their beauty and excellence.

Mr. North did not exhibit his birds a great deal, but his name used to occupy an honoured place in the lists at our best South of England shows, including the Crystal Palace, an event which in those days he never missed. His portly form and genial face were always to be seen surrounded by a bevy of friends at the Palace. How he could and would dissect the merits of the Crest and Crest-breds! No superficial observer was he. He was never carried away by one-point excellence. He wanted a bird to possess all-round merit, and unless it did, it had no fascination for him. In those days, when the Lancashire was being freely used by Crest breeders, he argued strongly against coppy-backed Crests being put at the head of affairs, because of their extra length and width of front. The finished article was what he contended for; the other should be in the breeding room. The same with body. The long upright bodies, of which we used to see so many in those days, were not the thing for Crests, and he used his strongest endeavours to prevent their monopolising the leading positions.

To him are Crest fanciers chiefly indebted for the provision of Crest-bred classes, and in the year 1887 in the pages of the old "Fanciers' Gazette," which was then our leading Cage Bird journal, he strongly urged their adoption. He placed himself in communication with Mr. Venables, who was then superintendent of the exhibitions held at the Crystal Palace, and both privately and publicly he worked hard to obtain these classes. He, too, it was who suggested the classification when Crest-breds first graced the benches of the Crystal Palace.

It is, however, more as a thoughtful and scientific breeder that our late friend deserves to be remembered. The winning of prizes had not so much fascination for him as had the overcoming of the problems of breeding. The happiest hours of his life were those spent in that snug little bird-room at Stockbridge, of which well-known Hampshire sporting town he was at that time postmaster. In the days that are gone I have myself had the pleasure of spending some happy hours in that bird-room and discussing with my friend the intricacies of Crest breeding, the power of Cinnamon blood, and the problem of how the London Fancy was to be re-established.

Some seventeen or eighteen years ago, when an effort was being made to bring back the glories of this lost variety, Mr. North ventured on a series of experiments, but the results unfortunately were not all that could be desired, and he, with myself, came to the conclusion that in the olden days the London Fancy could not have attained the perfection of excellence in its first season, but that the spangle backs, of which we used to hear, gradually became nearer to standard properties as they grew older.

Another subject which he studied deeply was the plasticity of the Cinnamon blood, and those of us who were privileged to hear a paper on the subject which he read before the members of the old London Ornithological Society in the year 1888, when the society used to hold its meetings at the Royal Aquarium, will not soon forget the masterly manner in which he his matter. Many who were present that evening had such an insight given them into the natural laws of colour production as to cause them to revise their own procedure and start upon fresh lines, and some of them, I know, owe much of their subsequent success to the views put before them that night by him whose loss I now mourn.

Twenty years ago Mr. North was a voluminous writer on Fancy topics, and endless were the articles and letters which used to appear over the well-known signature J.N. Scarcely any controversy was there which involved deep thinking but what found him taking part in it, and looking back over all these years I cannot remember one single occasion on which he indulged that bane of the Fancy—personalities. His one object in all his writings was the advancement of the Fancy, and the improvement of the different breeds of Canaries. Like most deep thinkers, he formed very strong opinions, and he was not easily overthrown in discussion, because what he wrote he had generally proved beforehand, and was thus sure of his ground, and there was always common sense behind his arguments.

As showing the character of the man and how firmly he believed in the conclusions at which he arrived, I will give an extract or two from his writings of over twenty years ago.

The first reads:—"I never intend to set myself the impossible task of trying to please everybody, but am cognisant of the fact that amongst my readers are men of different opinions, and various degrees of experience." Another reads:—"If the fancier's ideal were easily attainable, and birds more or less perfect could without difficulty be obtained, there would be no charm in the task of production, no value attached to the product, no difference between it and a class of a thousand where we now find perhaps ten, and no possibility of any judge arranging them according to their merits. No; you might just as well expect the gardener to cause every blossom to develop into a ripe fruit, or for every fish's egg to mature into an adult fish. You take up your daily newspaper, and soon ascertain that there are greater calamities even than those which happen in the bird-room; or that amongst your friends, or maybap in your own family, misfortunes have occurred besides which the bad luck of the bird-room sinks beyond comparison. You smoke the pipe of peace. The refractory hens have all gone to nest again. You retire to rest, and having propitiated the wife for your display of bad temper, dream of better success coming on the wing next time."

Are not these the words of a deep thinker, of a philosopher? Do they not show the spirit of the true, earnest scientific fancier?

For a long time his pen lay idle, but when the Cage Bird Fancy was given an organ of its own the old war horse smelt the scent of battle, and was one of the first to throw in his lot with Cage Birds. For a long time he answered all the queries of those readers who were in trouble or distress and needed a wise and experienced hand to help them out of the Slough of Despond. As the circulation of the paper increased, and the work became greater, he had to relinquish it, but up till the day of his death his services were at the disposal of readers of Cage Birds in connection with the post-mortem department. Few there are who know how carefully and minutely he examined the bodies sent to him, and with what thoroughness all were handled. He was first led to take his great interest in post-mortem work over twenty years ago by the ravages of bird fever in the room of our mutual friend, Mr. R. Stook, at that time a Crest breeder residing at Upton Park.

J.N. was not a man who made many friends. To those who knew him not be used to appear somewhat brusque and sarcastic, but underneath the outside shell beat one of the kindliest of hearts, and those of us who knew him well knew him to be one of the best of fanciers, a thorough sportsman, and a true friend. Present day fanciers knew little of him or his nature, for since he left the old racing town of Stockbridge he had not been so much in the eye of the Fancy. The older hands, though, will bear of his passing with regret, and will wipe a tear from their eyes as they think of the man, of his work, of the days and scenes in which he played so strong and honourable a part. Death is the crown of life, and there are no regrets over a life well spent. J.N. was one of those who ever sought to leave the world better than he found it, and his passing leaves a void—one hard to fill. A strong man, a trusty friend, a good fancier, he is gone. Too soon, all too soon, he has returned to earth, but his memory will be held dear by many, even as they think of his light which is lost in eternity.

Musing on our companion gone,
We doubly feel ourselves alone.

C. A. House.

A Tribute from Mr. T. Heath.

Mr. T. Heath, the well-known judge, himself a fancier of very long standing, and a one-time manager of the Crystal Palace Show, writes: I am very sorry indeed to hear of poor North's death. I first met him some 25 years ago, when he was exhibiting some really first-class Crests, and in 1888 he was first at the Palace with his noted "Prince Regent," an evenly-marked dark Crested bird, which had previously won a number of other firsts at provincial shows. He was a regular exhibitor at the Palace from 1885 until 1890 or 91, with variable success. After this date he did not exhibit, but kept a few birds at Stockbridge for breeding purposes. Some 24 years ago, at a meeting of the L. and P.O.S., he read a most interesting paper which he had written on Cinnamons. This paper was really the first one to give fanciers not in the know information as to how to graft the Cinnamon on to (or with) other varieties, and since that day it has been copied and borrowed from by a large number of writers; even at the present time this paper on Cinnamons stands as the best ever published. For the last 15 or so years, I have not seen much of Mr. North, except at the Palace on two or three occasions. He was a thoroughly practical man, and, in my opinion, the leading physician of the day for Canaries' "ills and ailments."

CANARY QUERIES.

Hens Out of Condition.

M. A. L. X.—You have probably been treating the hens too generously with the extras to the staple diet. Continue to give plain canary seed only in the hoppers, and in addition to this, for the next fortnight, give half a teaspoonful of summer rape per bird once each week, on one other day a small pinch only of a mixture of equal parts hemp and niga, and on two other days give a small piece of bread and milk sprinkled with a little soft sugar and a pinch of gold of pleasure seed. If obtainable in good condition give a spray of watercress to each daily. Limit the extras strictly to this for a fortnight at least, but when the birds are in good condition give the rape every second day, and stop the bread and milk altogether. In the drinking water give six drops of syrup of rhubarb and as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence in each two tablespoonfuls two days in every three for a week, and during the next week give six drops of tincture of gentian and four of aromatic sulphuric acid in the same quantity of water every second day. If not quite well by that time continue the latter mixture for another week.

Yorkshires Wheezy.

No Nom-de-plume.—As the majority of the birds are similarly affected I am rather inclined to think that your keeping them in the kitchen is the real cause of the trouble, assuming, of course, they were quite well in health when sold. Your best plan would have been to write at once to the former owner, and asked how the birds had been treated as regards temperature, and endeavoured as far as possible to keep them the same. You would certainly do far better even now to move the birds to a room where no fire is kept—a room over the kitchen would form a very suitable one—but which is quite free from draughts and damp, than let them remain in the kitchen, which is about the worst possible place for them. If they must, perforce, stay in the kitchen keep them as far away from the fire as possible, consistent with freedom from draughts from doors or windows. Give half a teaspoonful of summer rape every second day, and once a week a pinch of a mixture of hemp and niga. On the alternate days between giving the rape for a fortnight give a small piece of bread and milk, with two drops of cod liver oil emulsion dropped on it, and sprinkled with a little soft sugar and a piuch of gold of pleasure seed. In the drinking water give ten drops of glycerine, five each of oxymel of squills, and ipecacuanha wine, and one of eucalyptus oil, well shaken together, two days in every three for a week, and every second day for a week afterwards.

Ailing Yorkshire.

Reader, H.G.S.—Assuming you do not give an excessive quantity of hemp in the seed mixture, each time, there is very little the matter with your method of feeding, and I have little doubt but that the birds' unhealthy condition is due chiefly, if not solely, to their position at the side of the window. Although you say you cover them over at night to prevent exposure to draught, you seem to overlook the fact that what draughts exist are there to do mischief throughout each day, as well as in the night. Indeed, if the window is opened during the day the probability is that there is a good deal more draught then than when it is closed at night. Until this condition of things is altered it is perfectly useless attempting medicinal treatment. Remove the birds farther away from the window, where there will be no cutting draughts night nor day, but where the air is pure and fresh, and the temperature as equable as possible. This should be fairly well assured if there is a fire kept going in the room beneath the one you have the birds in. Give the same seed diet as you are now doing, and for quantities to give see lots of replies the last few weeks. Instead of the sponge cake give a small piece of bread and milk, sprinkled with soft sugar, three times a week for a month. In the drinking water give six drops of syrup of rhubarb and a pinch of Epsom salts for two days, and after this give twenty drops of whisky, five each of oxymel of squills and ipecacuanha wine, and two of eucalyptus oil, well shaken together, every second day for a fortnight. On the alternate days give the cock—but not the hens six drops of tincture of gentian and four of aromatic sulphuric acid during the first week. The condition of the birds' feathers around the nostrils seems to suggest breathing a smoky and dusty atmosphere. This also should be remedied, if possible, and the cages and perches kept scrupulously clean.

Hoarse Roller.

Anxious.—You would have done well to suspend treatment at the end of the specified time for, say, three or four days, and then recommenced, and repeated it for another week when you found the bird was better, but not quite well at the end of the first week. Do not allow the cage to hang near the fire. As the fire goes out at night, it will be best, provided draughts are quite avoided, to keep the cage as far as possible away from the fire, and to dispense with the cover over the cage at night. In any case, this cover should be of the lightest description, and not such as to prevent any ventilation or change of air taking place during the night, thereby converting the cage into a close box, as it were. This alone, in certain circumstances, would account for some hoarseness in the morning. Recommence the treatment previously advised now, except that you may omit the emulsion, and sprinkle the bread and milk with a little soft sugar and a pinch of maw seed instead, and give this twice a week only for a fortnight. Also add to the other things in the drinking water two drops of eucalyptus oil, and shake all well together. Give this two days in every three for a week, and every second day for another week after.

Heating Bird-room.

T. R. J. (Liverpool).—You omit to say whether the room from which you purchased the birds was kept above the normal temperature or not. If it was not heated in any way I should advise you not to think of heating the room you have put them in at all. Unless the birds had been previously coddled there is absolutely no necessity to warm a room specially for them, or to do more than take proper steps to see that it is perfectly free from cold, cutting draughts, and damp, and at the same time that it can be properly aired to keep the air pure and fresh. Given these essentials, artificial heating can very well be dispensed with, except in the case of birds which have been accustomed to a warm room, in which case the best course is to follow similar treatment until next spring at least, and then gradually harden off the birds during the summer and autumn. A portable hot-water coil, heated by gas, would form a very convenient method of heating, if the room is so placed that you cannot put in hot-water pipes heated from without the room. "Canary Breeding for Beginners," 7d. post free from our manager, would suit your purpose well.

Loss of Voice and Feathers.

A. G. H.—The loss of voice is doubtless the effect of the moulting. You should see that the bird is not hung near the fire, so as to be subject to extremes of heat and cold. Keep it well away from the fire, but at the same time take care that it is not placed in any draught. In addition to the staple of canary and rape seed, give half a teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake with four drops of sherry and two of cod-liver oil emulsion well mixed in it, and sprinkled with a pinch of gold of pleasure seed, every second day for a fortnight, and on the alternate days give a few grains of hemp seed. If obtainable in good condition, give a spray of watercress daily, otherwise give a small piece of ripe banana three times a week. In the drinking water give as much Epsom salts (that sold by chemists as salts and sarsaparilla) as will cover a sixpence for three consecutive days, and after that give six drops of tincture of steel every second day for a week, or a little longer if the feathers have not ceased dropping by that time. The voice will probably return naturally when the moult has ceased.

Brevities.

Seed Samples (Nemo).—Sorry the package containing your samples reached me in a battered condition with No. 3 sample packet missing. No. 1 is a nice clean, bright, and sweet sample, but rather small, which is its only fault. No. 2 is also small, not so clean, and is contaminated with a variety of other seeds, etc. It is fairly sweet, and of just moderate quality. No. 1 is the best, being of very fair quality.

How Not to Do It (A Novice).—If you wish to breed a few "winning Norwich"—which is evidently intended to mean Norwich fit to win—you must adopt neither of the matings you suggest. From two Cinnamons you must only expect to breed Cinnamons—good, bad, or indifferent, as events may prove; whilst a green cock and cinnamon hen is only calculated to lead you further astray. Your best plan will be to get a properly matched pair, to breed good typical birds, from a breeder of repute and standing. Failing this, mate a clear yellow cock with a ticked or slightly variegated buff hen, choosing the most typical birds you can get and being careful to see that any defects in one bird are counterbalanced by superlative merit in those particular points in the other.

Aldermanic (A. Newmarsh).—You had better persevere with the treatment for some weeks, with the exception of making these few variants. You should endeavour to raise the necessary greenstuff by sowing a little seed in pots or boxes. Had you done this at first it would have been ready to use by now. Keep the bird in a good large cage, preferably alone, so that you may continue to limit its diet in quantity as before advised. When greenstuff is available give this liberally, and at other times give a pinch of Epsom salts in the water often enough to keep the droppings always quite moist, but not altogether watery. Give canary seed as before advised as a staple, but every third day omit this, and give instead a teaspoonful of soaked rape. Omit the sponge cake, and substitute a very small piece of bread and milk instead once each week. Discontinue the other treatment and limit the bird to the above regime for another month.

Term Defined (Doubtful).—An unflighted bird is one that has not had its flights removed at its first moult. The flights are the long quill feathers in the wings, and a Canary does not naturally shed these feathers at its first moult. For a fuller explanation refer to these replies of a fortnight ago.

Bird Fever (Perplexed).—Your first two questions have been answered already. As you cannot get the sawdust you are quite right in using the sand, but do not use the same twice over. As soon as one lot comes out of the cage, if there is no means of burning it, see it is safely disposed of so as to prevent its return to the cages. Clean sea sand direct from the shore, if easily available, would be a good thing to use. Wash the insides of the cages about every three or four weeks until spring with a solution of one tablespoonful of carbolic fluid in a gallon of water. As soon as any bird shows signs of being ill, remove it and cage immediately and keep strictly isolated until you are satisfied it is not the fever. If not a valuable specimen, it might be the wisest course to take no risks, but to chloroform such "doubtfuls" at once, and cremate the body. Follow previous instructions as to feeding, and with luck your birds should be safe enough by the time spring arrives.

BRITISH BIRDS, MULES AND HYBRIDS.

Lark's Eyes.

Eyesore.—I have noticed myself that the grey hird louse is often seen about the eyes of birds, and can quite believe that the pest may set up an irritation which eventually results in serious eye trouble, and even loss of sight (through the hird rubbing its eyes and setting up an inflammation). It is no use dusting a bird and at the same time neglecting to cleanse the cage. These lice even secrete themselves in crevices of the brickwork, wall paper, etc., at the back of the cage, and such places require examination and treatment. Turpentine is a very deadly application so far as all bird lice and mites are concerned; none can survive it. Of the effects of powdered sulphur as a dusting agent I cannot speak, never having used it direct amongst the plumage; but always Keating's insect powder, which I find very efficacious, and quite harmless to the birds. The eyes I should advise you to gently bathe twice daily in fairly warm water coloured a deep red hy the addition of a little Condy's fluid. This will soon subdue any inflammation or irritation. Don't wet the surrounding plumage more than you can help, and gently dab dry with a piece of warmed soft cloth.

An Aviary Matter.

No Nom-de-Plume.—1. It will not be harmful, hut rather the contrary, to leave the proposed addition without a roof. The inside house will provide ample shelter. The outer portion should be well-drained—puddles and mud are most undesirable, for the latter gets plastered over the perches, etc., to say nothing of the birds' feet, etc. 2. British (resident) birds will take no harm, neither will the hardy foreign Finches. I have often marvelled at the manner in which the latter stand the most trying periods of the English winter in outdoor aviaries. I have seen them quite lively and cheerful when the cold has been so intense as to cause Goldfinches and Linnets to mope about with their plumage all bunched up. 3. The "draught" in this case need cause you no uneasiness. However, if it be possible to afford the outdoor part some shelter on the east—or north-east—side during the winter and early spring, you would be well advised to contrive this. 4. Hop plants are in no wise injurious to birds; some birds do a great amount of damage, I believe, among the hop plantations.

About Starlings.

E. Jackson.—Am afraid it is of no use your catching Starlings now with a view to teaching them to talk. Prospective talking Starlings should be taken from the nest at the age of 10 to 12 days and reared by hand; or, at any rate, be caged when quite young. A hen can be taught to talk just the same as a cock bird. In the next issue or so of CAGE BIRDS you will find a highly interesting article dealing with talking Starlings; look out for it, and you will discover all you want to know. Starlings can be fed very cheaply (and very well, too) in the following manner: Get a bag of some good brand of puppy meal, or dog meal, such as Spratt's, or Clarke's "Melox," from a corn dealer's, soften this with hot water (and a fork), then mix into it some good maker's packet Thrush food (dry). The latter, used dry, will absorb any superfluous moisture; it should leave the finished food just crumbly moist. You will soon find the right quantity of each to use for the daily supply (it must he made fresh daily). Variety is good, of course, and you should give some vegetable or green food with it frequently, such as grated raw carrot, or finely-chopped lettuce, chickweed, watercress, or other green food in season, or cold boiled potato. Vary them frequently, and add half a hard-boiled egg, finely minced up, occasionally. Give some mealworms daily, and any other suitable live insects you can lay hands on (such as "black beetles"), also ripe fruit and berries frequently, and according to season. Starlings like these. They are dirty birds, and the cage must be very frequently cleaned.

Hawfinch Problems.

Mrs. B. B.—The young Hawfinch (i.e., in nestling plumage) differs very markedly from the adult. It is much paler in colour, and instead of a black "bib" has a whitish (or creamy-white) place where this adornment is later on to put in an appearance. At the first moult (in the autumn of the year in which it is hatched) the young assume the adult colouring, and cocks are to be distinguished from the hens in the usual way, that is, by their superior colour (see CAGE BIRDS recent coloured plate of Hawfinches). The hen "sings" (what a song!) in captivity. Young birds are always much smaller than two and three year old (fully adult) specimens. I should imagine your tame bird is a hen. I don't think there is any chance of her breeding with the male bird you mention; he is too wild, and turning him loose into a room would serve to make him worse. Adult Hawfinches are usually very difficult customers to get tame, taking a long time to settle down. A big cock Greenfinch would he a likely mate for the small tame hen Hawfinch. "Judging" birds from written descriptions is an impossible task; I should think, however, that the very large, rich coloured bird would beat the other, even though hardly so large in bib.

Brevities.

Cage, etc., for Bullfinch (N. B.).—My own idea as to the best size for a stock cage (box pattern) for a Bullfinch is 16 inches long by 8 wide by 12 to 13 high. I dealt fully with the feeding recently. Stock mixture: Canary and teazle two parts each, charlock, summer rape, and linseed, half-part each. Give a little sunflower seed daily, except once a week when hemp may be substituted. Ripe fruit is generally enjoyed, also a little maw, thistle, dandelion, and wild seed mixture now and again. The above stock mixture will answer admirably for Redpolls.

A Bullfinch (Anxious).—I expect your Bullfinch has gone too far over the moult for anything to be done to improve its breast colour. It is during the moult and just afterwards that one needs to feed for colour (the same as it is with Canaries). During the moult some fanciers give their Bullies cracked seed which has been well sprinkled with tasteless pepper; others rely upon natural colouring agents, such as very ripe raspberries, black currants, blackberries, privet berries, rowan berries, elderberries, etc., according to season; while many have little dodges of their own, such as giving black sunflower seeds steeped in the drinking water, or black currant jelly, or other harmless colouring agents—their name is legion!

FOREIGN BIRDS.

Answered by WESLEY T. PAGE, F.Z.S. M.B.N.H.S., etc.

A Sick Amazon.

Spray.—I much fear I can give you but little additional help. However, continue the present treatment, and give the Dinneford's Magnesia as often as possible, but the voidings must not be allowed to continue watery. Also get a box of boney and horax, and put a little in the bird's mouth once or twice daily, with either a feather or camel-hair brush, the latter must be well cleansed for each occasion. I much fear there is some internal trouble, not yet outwardly apparent—if there should be any change in the symptoms you had better write at once. A little boiled maize twice a week would probably be a help under present conditions, but note it only keeps fresh one day, and the food vessel must be kept strictly clean, also I should advise that, so far as is possible, the temperature of the room be kept as even as possible. Get a zinc and rose-water eye solution from your chemist, and bathe the bird's eyes with this, wetting the surrounding plumage as little as possible; what portion of the wash does get on the plumage should be wiped away with a soft cloth.

A Sick Green Singing Finch.

Anxious.—Do not put a new purchase, however well it appears, with healthy stock, or you may contaminate the lot—a new purchase should always be kept in strict quarantine for at least a fortnight. Give this bird a gentle aperient—one teaspoonful of Dinneford's Magnesia to each ounce of the drinking water; give several doses with an interval of two or three days between each. Also get the following mixture: Ipecacuanha wine, oxymel of squills, and glycerine, in equal parts; for use take sufficient for the daily supply, and supply so: 1 part mixture to 2 parts water. If the water is taken away overnight, and neither bath nor drinking water supplied—only the prepared water—the bird is constrained to satisfy its thirst. They can have any ripe fruit they will eat, also sponge cake, moistened with boiling milk, if they will take it. Green Singing Finches are rather fond of a little live food as a rule; give it one or two mealworms daily if it cares for them; they will certainly help at this juncture.

Green Singing Finch Unwell.

A. M. M.—Seeing the case was urgent, I replied to your query per post, previous to the arrival of repeat query. I hope the treatment advised has proved effectual in arresting the trouble, though I much feared the bird would be dead before arrival of reply. If it still lives, continue the treatment already advised; get it on to milk if at all possible, keep it warm and strictly isolated from your other stock. It is most risky to put new purchases, however healthy they appear, among established stock. However, we must hope for the best. In addition to the milk sop supply seed, such ripe fruit as it will take, and two or three mealworms daily, also grit, etc., and water for drinking and bathing. Keep it strictly out of draught, warm, but not in a vitiated atmosphere.

Macaw Breaking Tail.

E. B. H.—I should not continue to give rice pudding, it is far better without this; otherwise your dietary, as named, is very satisfactory. The treatment you are continuing is almost all that can be done; by all means give the Dinneford's twice weekly so long as the voidings are not watery. I much fear the habit of bending the tail feathers is a vice; if the quills irritated him he would soon learn that bending the feathers only increased the pain or irritation, though I have a parrot which will pull at an obnoxious quill and scream with pain while doing so. You might try tying the tail feathers to a light wire frame, but you would have to watch that it did not tear the feathers out in the effort to get rid of the obstruction. If you are keeping it in a cage, try it on a stand, and keep it in the room which is most occupied, so that it will have plenty of company. Cuttlefish bone is good, and very wholesome for all species of parrots, in fact for all seed-eating, that is hardbilled birds.

A Sick Silverbill.

F.M.P.—Keep this bird quiet and warm. It would be better caged separately till things have improved a little. For one day put one teaspoonful of Dinneford's Magnesia to each ounce of the drinking water, repeating the dose after an interval of three days. In between and continue for some time, well colour the drinking water with Parrish's Chemical Food. If the bird becomes really weak, a little very weak brandy and water (chilled), will be a good stimulant. Supply its usual dietary, but if it will take it, a little milk sop will be helpful at the present period. If the protrusion does not become normal in a day or two, I should try to gently press it back; but it must be kept quiet and apart from other birds till it has recovered. In the winter, while suitable greenfood is not easy to get, a little ripe apple is very wholesome and a good substitute.

Brevities.

Pope and Grey Cardinals (V. A. G.).—The Red-headed or Pope Cardinal has no crest; the red on his head is of a richer and purer hue than that of the Red-crested or Grey Cardinal; the grey of his upper surface is much darker, some of the flights being blackish, and the white of his under-surface is much purer, the contrasts of the various colour areas are consequently greater. I am doubtful if the two species would agree together, save in a roomy outdoor aviary

"Foreign Birds": What Birds with Budgerigars.—See our reply to "Darlington" in this issue. It fully covers the ground of your query. The aviary has at most space for four pairs of the size of Budgerigars.

What Parrot? (R.A.L.). It is the Roseate or Rose-breasted Cockatoo, a native of Australia. This species as a rule make droll and companionable pets, good whistlers and mimics as a rule, but the majority of individuals do not make talented talkers as a rule, though most repeat a word or two. All you can do is to keep it where it will hear plenty of conversation, pet it, and teach it by constant repetition such things as you would like it to learn, and wait for the result. For diet, see our reply to "Constant Reader" in this issue, but the drugs are not necessary and do not apply in the case of your bird.

Grey Out of Condition (Constant Reader).—It is quite natural for many species of Parrots to regurgitate the partially digested food, and re-swallow same. For one day put one teaspoonful of Dinneford's Magnesia to each ounce of the drinking water, repeating same every third day, so long as the voidings are not watery. In between, that is, when not giving the magnesia, well colour the drinking water with Parrish's Chemical Food, and continue this till the bird appears fit again. Diet: I prefer the following seed mixture: Canary, millet, hemp, maize, oats, dari, paddy rice and sunflower seeds, in about equal parts—well mix, and keep a supply continuously in the cage. Also give ripe fruit, nuts and plain biscuits; keep a piece of clean cuttlefish continually hanging in the cage. Keep free from draught, and do not give tea, coffee, or milk slops, table scraps, or any kind of animal food whatever.

Budgerigars and Madagascar Weavers (G. E. H.).—The only inconvenience from mixing these birds is that occasionally a Weaver may get a broken leg through a nip from a Budgie's beak, but the Weavers are well able to look after themselves, so that a mishap should not occur very often, especially as in your aviary the birds would have space to get out of each other's way. You need not fear the Weavers interfering with the breeding of the Budgerigars. But instead of putting in additional Madagascar Weavers I should certainly advise putting in other species, say one each of Napoleon, Orange, and Grenadier, or similar species. A Pintail or Paradise Whydah, or both, would add to the effect, and give variety.

Foreign Bird Querists will find in our handbook, "Foreign Birds for Beginners," 1/1, and "Budgerigars and Cockatiels," 6d. post free; a mine of information of use and interest.

Cages for Breeding Foreign Birds (Beginner).—Yes, the course you propose should answer well. Get boxes as near as possible 2ft. to 2½ft. long, and of proportionate height and depth, and either use wire netting for the fronts, or purchase straight wire fronts from our advertisers. You will find a flap for cleaning purposes cheaper, and answer fully as well as draw trays. Furnish with natural branches (twiggy) as perches, and a nest box or husk in either corner, according to the species of the occupants. It will, of course, be advisable to procure boxes having close-fitting joints. I have seen many good cages made from sugar boxes and the like. Only put sufficient wood into the fronts to supply necessary base for the netting; if you have all wire fronts ready made you will only require one bar for the flap to be hinged to.

Avadavats in Poor Plumage (Denys Weston).—I cannot fully gather whether they are in an outdoor aviary or a large aviary cage. In any case, I should advise caging them separately in a roomy box cage, in a warm room, yet where they will get plenty of light and air. Try them with, from time to time, just a little of any ripe fruit that is to hand. Lightly colour the drinking water with Parrish's Chemical Food, once a week omit the chemical food and put a few grains of Epsom salts in the drinking water instead. Crush some cuttlefish to the size of white millet and sprinkle a little regularly over the sand. If the birds are fairly tame it is well to anoint the bare patches with a little clean vaseline. You must separate as Waxbills are given to plucking those of their fellows in poor plumage, and keeping them so.

PARK AND LAKE AVICULTURE.

Treatment of Dotterel.

Sandpiper.—From the sketch you enclose your bird is evidently not the true Dotterel, but the Ringed Plover, which is, however, sometimes called the Ring Dotterel. The real Dotterel is a larger bird, and less strikingly coloured, having far less white about it, and without the bright orange legs of the Ring Plover. I am very glad that it is doing so well, thanks, no doubt, to your care, but that the broken wing has set in such a way that the injury is not noticeable—too often this is not the case. I believe Waders are not admitted as show birds. I do not think cheese in moderation would hurt your bird, as this is a seashore species, and must take a certain amount of salt along with its food, but it ought to have something else besides cheese and meat, and I am astonished that it will take nothing else of the varied menu, dried flies, dried ants' eggs, bread crumbs, soaked dog biscuit, hard-boiled egg, carrot, scraped and cooked, and greenmeat you offered it. Naturally, it will eat worms and insects. I should fear meat and cheese alone would prove too rich in time, and should advise that you mince them finely, and well incorporate with at least dried flies and bread crumbs, and try to get the bird to eat these too.

GENERAL.

Answered by the Editor.

Two Suggestions (H. Bayles).—We always welcome suggestions from readers, and appreciate your own kindly letter. We will bear in mind your suggestions, which, however, come too late to be carried into effect this season.

A Nightingale (Q. E. D.).—You are right. There is only one Nightingale, so far as England is concerned—the plain brown bird which visits us in summer. The Japanese, or Pekin, Nightiugale (the bright coloured bird you mention) is generally termed the Pekin Robin.

POST MORTEMS.

Mr. G. Yates, M.R.C.V.S., 525, Caledonian Road, Holloway, London, N., will examine and report upon dead cage birds for a fee of 1s. 6d. each bird; for reply direct, 2s. 6d.; analysis, 21s. Subjects for post mortem examination must be sent packed in a box direct to Mr. Yates, with the fee, this and any accompanying letter being kept from contact with the dead bird. Any bodies sent to the office of this paper will be thrown away, and if a fee is enclosed the loss will be the sender's.

How to Catch Hawfinches.

SIR,—Would any of your readers kindly tell me how to catch Hawfinches? There are about a dozen feeding under apple trees in my garden, and have been about there some time. I should feel much obliged for any suggestion as to how to catch them.

ANXIOUS.

Am I a Novice?

A Yorkshireman Seeks Advice.

SIR,—I should like the respective secretaries of O.N.P. Club and Yorkshire Union to answer the following question. I showed five birds at an open mixed show. There was no price limit on the birds and not more than thirty-five entries, thirty of the same belonging to members. I got a 1st in a class of three. They told me I could not show as a novice again. So I sold my birds out. A friend now tells me that it being a mixed show it makes no difference to my status as a novice. If this is so, I am going to get some more birds. But I should first like to hear from the proper source. I will thank the respective secs. in advance.

ONE WHO DOES NOT KNOW.

Cinnamon Chaffinch "Wrong Classed" at Aberdeen.

SIR,—In answer to the letter which appeared in last week's issue from Mr. Ross, of Forres, I may say I had no other alternative but to "wrong class" his Chaffinch. There was no class at Aberdeen wherein he could have entered his bird (at least, in the section where I was officiating). I called the committee's attention to this bird, and told them that although this was one of the finest Albino hardbill British I had seen, I could not do otherwise, if they left it to me, than "wrong class" it. The committee left it in my hands, with above result. I may say that if I had not wrong classed this bird, I would have claimed it. I enclose a copy of the classification at Aberdeen, and would like your Mr. Weston to append his opinion on the decision I arrived at.

JAMES LIVINGSTONE (Bathgate).

P.S.—This is a point that should be decided at the first annual meeting of the N.B.B. and M.C. and the S.B.B. and M.C.

[Our Mr. Weston states that the National British Bird and M.C. has arrived at and published its decision (which applies to all shows held under its patronage), that Albino and rare-feathered specimens must compete in a special class, and not in the ordinary classes. —EDITOR.]

What is an Even-marked Border?

SIR,—I agree with Mr. Hocking that this discussion is a timely one. Indeed I go further and say the matter ought to have been settled many years ago. As far back as I can remember, the same arguments have confronted us, and proved exceedingly vexatious, often giving rise to heated words between judges and exhibitors. In my last letter I notice I have five or more pointed, this ought to have read marked. Now, here are the points which we as members have to ponder over. The club allows birds marked one eye or one wing, likewise both eyes or both wings, to compete in foul classes, thereby casting aside the one or two point theory. Now, there are hardly any birds carrying wing marks, but what are marked at thigh. These, I think, should be shown amongst the unevens, being either three or more marked. Coming to the unevens, no rule, as far as I can gather, has ever been passed describing the markings, and I think it would be foolish to "wrong class" any birds unless they were three or five pointed. In the first place there would not be birds to fill a class; result, a loss to societies, and half-prize money. Secondly, if a bird is marked on eyes and wings, and other part slightly, it is still uneven, although not marked on tail. Coming now to the evenly-marked bird, and the case in dispute, viz., a bird perfectly marked above, but with a few dark feathers at base of tail, here the question faces us: are we going to debar all birds so marked, or allow them to carry a mark the size of a threepenny piece (as my motion supports)? Firstly, if we take the former, where are we to get birds to fill the classes? By far the largest percentage of birds are marked at thighs, and more or less at vent, or under covers. Secondly, farewell to all six-pointed birds, for they are more liable to be marked below. Coming to the latter, a slight mark allowed below would not detract much from the beautiful harmony of the other markings, and although allowing the mark here to count against them, yet not to the extent of letting an imperfect eye-marked bird have the preference, the eye-marking being in reality the most difficult to get, and by far the most taking point, and the one most admired. I have now touched on all marked varieties but the variegated ones (so called). This term should never apply to any bird unless more than three parts dark. The term variegated means marked with different colours, therefore either all birds not Clears or Selfs are variegated, or else we as bird lovers should only refer to their being such when they are marked, as I have already stated. I intend to give a letter on this variety shortly. I apologise for the length of this letter, but as I shall not be at the meeting in Carlisle, with your permission I thought it better to fully explain here.

J. PATTERSON.

Are Catalogues Needed?

Do Cage Labels Reveal Ownership?

SIR,—I managed to spare time to visit Gateshead Show on December 11th. With things in general I was very much pleased, and enjoyed my visit fully. But with what some might call minor details I was more than surprised—the quiet, but deep-seated, hostility to the methods of the Cage Bird Union, the large quantity of birds that were only half "got up" (badly washed, badly staged, etc.). But, above all, to find the old-style cage-label still in vogue at a show of this kind. It is a positive fact that I went round the classes in the Norwich section and picked out the exhibits of a gentleman whom, until then, I had never seen in my life before, nor yet any of his birds; neither had I at that time become possessed of a catalogue. The same person seemed surprised when I took him to the Yorkshire section and named the owner of many birds which (to my knowledge) I had never seen before. Of course, I was guided entirely by the price on the ticket, which, as you may possibly know, is many times regarded almost in the nature of a trade-mark. At any rate, since returning home I have mentioned it to many, who declare that when showing away where this ticket is used they will in future specify a certain well-known catalogue price. That would, to a certain extent, and for one or two shows, upset calculations a little, but the Yorkshire Union label is by far the best remedy.

JOHN BLUNT.

The Welsh C.B.C. Patronage and Swansea Show.

SIR,—Owing to pressure of business, this is the first opportunity I have had of replying to the last letter under the above heading in our worthy CAGE BIRDS. I will presume, Mr. H., that you can stretch your intellectual faculties to understand that things of consequence come before "implausible tattle." Why were you not man enough to do what you proposed—substantiate your previous statements concerning the W.C.B.C. forcing their patronage upon a certain society in Wales? We take it that could you do so, you are just the type of cajoler who would if he could clear himself at anyone's expense—astutia non animo. If you hold the trump card (as you claim) play it out, and, at the same time play the man, and not try to under-rate the W.C.B.C. Yes! you may revel in the idea that your corruptible object is accomplished, but, believe me, it is yourself, not the W.C.B.C., that is the subject of ridicule. You say "especially Swansea." Probably "especially Swansea" is yourself, and it is well understood the foolish will ridicule anything and put themselves up for the same purpose. Yes, I admit that anything well seasoned is hard—very hard, Mr. H. Thanks for the compliment. I may inform you that the softest of stuff, even the pliable dough of cake might become hard if left in the oven long enough to bake, but, unfortunately, once it is out of the oven it will not re-bake; therefore I'm sorry there is no further hope for you. In your first letter you accused our well-known W.C.B.C., as a body, of trying to boycott Swansea Show; now you say it was the secretary. Your light brain must be soaring confusedly, or you are suffering from loss of memory. I give you another opportunity of clearing up your declaration against the W.C.B.C.; if you sneak from the point, we shall hold the same opinion which truth verifies, that is, you cannot bring forth the supposed facts you have been heralding, and I shall treat all your further jargon with which you rush into print with utter contempt, and regard you finally and for ever as an inventor and a stranger to the truth, considering your base charges pro re nata.

Alleged Unfair Treatment at Shows.

SIR,—Mr. Hyland's last letter only goes to show how correct I was in the complaint made on behalf of Mr. Lavery. He tells what the committee decided to do, etc., to which no person could rightly object. But did Mr. L. get any notification of the committee's decision? No, not one word; whereas a postcard costing a halfpenny would have saved Mr. L. a lot of trouble (all of which I have referred to in my previous letter). Exhibitors only want to be treated fairly. I think the following Mr. Hyland should explain. He may make excuse, but the fact remains that Mr. Lavery is the sufferer all the same. In sending cash for prize-money he deducted 5s. for a special promised by Mr. Lavery, notwithstanding the fact that Mr. Lavery sent the 5s. special with his entry, etc. This has since been made right, but do these people think that Mr. Lavery has time and money at his disposal to write letters to get his due? I may tell Mr. Hyland that he has not, and it's surely very unfair treatment to one who supported the show so well. Mr. Lavery got his cheque for prize-money, less the 5s. I have referred to, cashed it in the merchant's where he gets his seed, and in two or three days was called upon to refund the money, as the cheque was returned from Dublin marked "refer to drawer." My cheque (why send a cheque for 2s. 6d.?) was returned marked the same, and, of course, I also had to refund. I will leave readers to think how they would like such treatment.

A Hybrid Breeder's Hopes.

SIR,—Looking through the reports of shows published in CAGE BIRDS, I am very pleased to see that some real good birds have made their appearance. Some good clears have been seen, and some Mules have had "doubts" thrown at them, being so very like the female parent. There also seems to be now a good number of Canary Bullies about. I hope these will meet at the Crystal Palace; they would form a good strong class. I see the Cock Bullie is given as the male parent in several instances. They cannot all be mistakes, so I expect that the cock Bullie has at last filled his eggs. I should certainly like to hear from those successful breeders who have used him, and have come off "trumps." If they would only give us their own experience, I am sure there would be others besides myself who would be greatly interested, as for years I have tried him and failed. But still I had faith in him, or I should not have persevered so much with him. He is also credited with being the male parent of the Canary Bullie Mule. I should like that to be definitely recorded for the benefit of your numerous readers and breeders of Hybrids. I have been keeping an open eye for the Siskin Bullie cross to appear; I expect it will "pop up" one of these days, and give us a great surprise. I am glad there is a grand Greenfinch Canary (clear one) exhibited, for of the Greenfinch I am a great admirer, and I like to use him for crossing purposes. He generally gets one something large and worth looking at. The hen of this cross I have frequently left with her own and other eggs to sit on, and to feed the young when hatched, and she has not disappointed me. I have not yet seen, from any show reports, any Hybrid mentioned having the cock Chaffinch as the male parent, only in one case of the Bramblefinch, and that is, I think, the only bird it has paired with. We may yet see accounts of some other good Hybrid or Mule making its appearance before going to the Palace.

Prize Money at Maesteg Show.

SIR,—Can anyone say if they have paid the prize-money at Maesteg Show? I cannot get a satisfactory answer from them. I have had to send three times to ask if I had a prize or not, and sent a stamp for an answer. Is this fair?

Dutch Frills at the Crystal Palace Show.

SIR,—All lovers of this coming variety will be pleased to see Mr. Ramsden's announcement of the splendid specials given by Baron du Thiel for Dutch Frills at the 1910 Palace Show. No exhibitor will be allowed to take more than one of these specials. I am also pleased to say that Mr. Ramsden has promised that these birds shall be properly protected from draughts, and they will be covered over and made as comfortable as possible. I trust that there will be a good entry so that next year we may have another class put on.

A New Cage Bird Society for Walkden and District.

SIR,—A cage bird society is being formed in Walkden and District. A meeting was held on December 14th in the Walkden I.L.P. Rooms to consider the matter. Twelve friends turned up, and we decided to make a start. The next meeting will be held on January 4th, in the above rooms, at 7.30, when we shall be glad to make the acquaintance of any new fancier within a radius of three miles of the above rooms. I hear we have a few more fanciers to join us at our next meeting. I wish your valuable paper, CAGE BIRDS, every success, for it is the fancier's ideal paper.

Trouble about A Special Prize.

SIR,—It was not my intention to take up more of your valuable space to reply to "Canny Toon." But, as he requires some further explanation, I will try and enlighten him. I still claim that my bird was the best at the Newcastle show, but at the same time I do not wish to detract from the value of any other bird or birds. I fail to see how "Canny Toon" can form any opinion about Crests; Foreign Birds would be more in his line. As to how the young Crest was awarded the N.C.C. medal, had "Canny Toon" been a close observer at the show, he would have found out for himself, without putting such a question to me. If "Canny Toon" refers back to his former letter in CAGE BIRDS he will find that he has answered his second query himself in that letter, where he states that the young Crest was not in competition, therefore I cannot see how it was entitled to a prize if not judged. Now, if this bird was not judged, as "Canny Toon" says, there must have been some neglect on the part of the show officials in not seeing that the birds were brought forward to be judged. "Canny Toon" cannot blame me for this neglect on their part and take my special and hand it over to the exhibitor whose bird was not judged until after the show. I should think that the proper course for his officials to have followed would have been to hand the special over to the award as per judges' slip, then make the best terms they could with those who thought that they were entitled to the prize. Thirdly, re prize-money in members' class, I must inform "Canny Toon" that I have never applied to his society for it in any shape or form, nor did I expect to get it after being told that I would have to stand by the judges' slip. He also says that through an error my bird was not placed in the members' class. If my bird was not placed, whose fault would it be, and who is responsible for the prize-money? Am I to be the loser, or should the society pay me second prize-money to compensate for their neglect? Thus, if I accept this prize-money, as "Canny Toon" says, it will have been given without my asking for it; and is it not a knavish act on their part to offer this prize-money with the intention of using it as an argument to shield their action in giving the special carvers to another exhibitor? I would not in any case, by accepting prize-money for members' class, be acknowledging the right of a judge to revise an award, when there was neglect on the part of show officials or the judge himself. The prize-money would be paid to compensate for this neglect. As in the case of an exhibitor who sent his birds to —— show, and some of them were not unpacked on arrival, but were put away in the empty packing case room, and were not found until after judging was over. This exhibitor was paid prize-money, although his birds were not judged, to the amount that they might have won had they been in competition. Now, this exhibitor was paid out of the society's funds, it not being thought advisable to take some other exhibitor's prize-money to pay him with I must again remind "Canny Toon" that my Crest was first and special in its class, also first in its section. Those awards were duly recorded on the judges' slip and are beyond controversy. And I am not going to be dealt with in any such manner as "Canny Toon" suggests. I can tell him that I am man enough to stand out for all that is right and fair, and am amply justified by the action that I have taken in opposing the wrong and oppressive attitude of "Canny Toon" and a portion of the society that he represents.

Alive, All Alive, O!

SIR,—I should like to draw the attention of your readers to the successful show recently held by the London and Counties O.A. and to give an unqualified denial at the same time to the scandalous rumours that have been circulated in London bird-fancying circles to the effect that this organisation was "dead." A certain prominent official of another body has gone out of his way to make this unfounded assertion, and in the absence of a post mortem a faulty diagnosis must have been arrived at by this unqualified physician.

Cage Bird Union: District No. 1

The Wallsend Sensation.

SIR,—I am rather surprised at the position taken up by Mr. Bennet with regard to this case. I consider he has been leniently dealt with, and in my opinion an apology would have been more to the point than a grievance. He has, on his own admission, set the rules of the C.B.U. at defiance by placing a particular mark on the spars of the show cages; in other words, he has treated the officials of the C.B.U. with contempt for years. It would be interesting to know if Mr. Bennet is in agreement with the motion to be brought up at the annual general meeting of the Border Fancy C.C. at Carlisle on 1st January, viz.: "That Border fancy show cages have no distinguishing marks, such as white or brass knobs, nor side doors, and cages having such to be disqualified in their respective classes at any shows where they have club patronage." I have no doubt that the case under discussion has been the means of bringing the subject before the annual meeting, and the gentleman who reported this matter to the Wallsend officials is to be congratulated in his endeavours to place all exhibitors on the same level.

NOVICE.

Ought a Rule to be Strained Sometimes?

SIR,—I should be glad to know if there is anyone amongst your numerous readers who has had the same experience as fell to my lot on December 15th. The facts are these: I entered birds for the West London F.A. annual show, which was held on December 15th and 16th. It was impossible for me to get the birds there on the evening of the 14th by 9 o'clock, to comply with the rules, which stated, all exhibits were to be in by that time. I was showing at Watford on Tuesday, December 14th, and did not get my birds home till late that evening, as the show did not close till 9 o'clock, and I wanted two of these birds to put with others for West London Show. However, under the difficult circumstances, I appeared with my birds on the Wednesday morning by 9 o'clock, and was told to wait for the secretary, Mr. Dewhurst, but during the time, Mr. Lach, a committeeman, came in, and I explained why I could not get there before. He politely told me it was too late, as the rule must be carried out, although the judging did not commence till about eleven o'clock. After being a good exhibitor for the past 23 years, I consider the rule a very harsh one. A point might have been strained, for to the best of my knowledge I do not know of a society that compel the exhibits to be in so early as the West London did for this show. They nearly always state a time on the previous evening, or by no later than 9 o'clock the show morning. These committees often clamour for entries, yet they make a hard and fast rule to the disadvantage of themselves, and then wonder why members do not agree and turn up with their entries. It's not giving exhibitors a chance, after a show the day previous. I, as one of the old school (well known from one part of the country to another), yet an up-to-date fancier, have sent in my resignation to the society, after treatment of this kind, which fills good fanciers with wonder and disgust.

An Alleged Mix-up of Awards at Ramsgate Show.

SIR,—I have read about the alleged "Mix-up" at Ramsgate show and inwardly digested the two letters. I certainly am of the opinion that Lewis and Co. should have been entitled to receive the third prize. Of course, if the society liked to give the other exhibitor third prize-money also, owing to the entering of two exhibits to one and the same number, that lay to their discretion. But the other exhibitor was not, to my idea, entitled to compete, owing to the mistake, as he entered his exhibit after Messrs. Lewis and Co.

FAIR PLAY.

SIR,—I have read with great interest about the alleged mixed-up awards at Ramsgate show. I visited the same and noticed two third-prize cards on two different cages. One bird was a Red-and-Black Bishop, and the other a pair of Budgerigars. At the time I thought it most curious to see two thirds in the same class. If what Messrs. Lewis and Co. (or their manager) states is correct, that they entered their bird first, I myself consider them entitled to the prize-money. I also notice that Mr. Allen mentioned something about flighted and unflighted birds. I consider that is going away from one subject to another, as if Mr. Allen should say that Mr. Adams is no judge of birds, I am inclined to think Messrs. Lewis and Co. would not engage a manager who does not understand the business. To my own knowledge, through his judgment a gentleman of Broadstairs secured two first and specials with Canaries, so that does not substantiate Mr. Allen's letter. Why not settle the dispute over the prize-money by giving the same to the local hospital?

J. W. BOTTOMS.

SIR,—In answer to Mr. Allen, I do not blame him for answering on account of the signature. This letter I am writing myself. The other was a copy sent to the head of the firm, and he signed it. I wish to say the letter inserted had no mis-statement in it. I did see Mr. Allen in the committee-room, and was willing to stand down, but his answer was, "No, certainly not; it is our mistake, and we will pay the two third prize monies." The class was hopelessly mixed up. The exhibitor who won second prize was not sure if he had won or not. He told me so himself, as the card was on another exhibitor's cage, and he also thought he had won second prize. I did not say anything about flighted or unflighted birds in letter sent, or about maidens, so that part of Mr. Allen's letter has nothing to do with it. Was the other exhibitor, owing to the mistake, in the competition or not? Of course, Mr. Allen does not want any more said about the matter. Still, I should like an independent person's idea on the subject, which would not consist of the secretary or committee of the Ramsgate F. and F.S.

Shows and Societies.

Have We Too Many in Certain Districts?

SIR,—I trust that the correspondence respecting the duties of cage bird members to their societies will not be allowed to drop before steps have been taken to remedy the evils of late entries and other matters now so prevalent. As has been so ably pointed out, amalgamation seems to be the only way to improve matters in many centres. From the beginning of October until late in December we have about half-a-dozen open shows weekly, besides members' shows, and consequently it is very difficult to get sufficient support from exhibitors, secretaries having to make personal appeals to get even a moderate entry. Now, if the shows were reduced by one-half, exhibitors would be better able to properly support the shows in their district, and also have the pleasure of knowing that they would have good competition, full prize-money and no cancelling or amalgamation of classes. At present, with so many societies, each holding an open show, exhibitors have a difficulty in selecting the shows for their patronage, the majority of societies suffering more or less, and we hear the continual cry of "short entries" throughout the season. It is useless expecting the newer societies to entirely sink their identity in the older ones, but I think the difficulty could be got over in the following manner, at the same time giving fanciers the advantages of three or four societies for one subscription only, thus enabling them to put their hands down for "specials," etc., more than they can at present afford if they belong to several societies. Let all societies in certain centres join the premier cage bird society in the district, but become known as the "so-and-so" branch of that premier society. Each branch continue to hold its meetings (say, monthly), and elect its own chairman and branch secretary. All subscriptions, etc., to be paid to the treasurer through the branch secretary; and the committee of management to be elected from each branch society according to membership; the committee to be responsible for the proper control of all society shows and affairs generally. Every branch to hold a nest-feather and winter club show, for which all members of the amalgamated societies would be eligible. Then all unite in promoting a first-class open show, and every member do his utmost to make same a success. Only one subscription would be necessary, and members could select whichever branch they prefer if already (as is usually the case) they belong to two or more of the societies. I feel sure that if the clubs will only consider the matter carefully they will see that amalgamation on some such lines as these would be far better than the continual struggle many societies have to keep from "going under."

How to Arm Nets.

The Problem of "Sharped" Birds.

SIR,—My query under the above heading has provoked a most interesting correspondence from kind and practical men. No one, however, has gone into the practical details of the question and given us intelligible directions in regard to the carrying out of this work of arming nets. With reference to the "sharped" Goldfinches which Mr. Hawes and "Novice" have dealt with so admirably, and which are 180 miles or more from London, I may tell them that the birds have been so plagued, that they have, in my opinion, become uncatchable. Only those who have tried with extreme care to outwit them will believe this. Most of the birds have been lost off the poor birdlime—that half-liquid ointment stuff sold by chemists—and I believe they have also been "pulled at" and lost by amateur trappers throughout the season. They feed on a kind of common covered with acres of tall thistles. Bird cages have been hidden, poles and pegs covered, the "flurr" bird kept quiet, and "runners" used—all to no good purpose. The singing of good Goldfinches and of an excellent Mule is absolutely the signal for clearing off. They won't pitch near a bird that sings. Surely four good Greypates and a fatherly old "sweeting" Finch ought to coax them. "Novice" has, however, touched upon a point which is somewhat novel to me, and that is, the dispensing with all loud song, and substituting hen call birds for the cocks. It must be admitted that hens would imitate more exactly the conditions under which the wild birds live, for none of the cocks sing much now, and they respond to each other's "titing," "twittering" and "sweeting" in a soft and suppressed way. A hen or two would imitate these calls very well. I have seen a single and well-hidden net employed, but without success. The wild birds keep 30 yards away from all singing birds, and possibly their intelligence will preserve them for the breeding season. I don't think "Novice" would catch them. I gave them three hours one day from dawn onwards, and after all my cunning and hiding and long pull lines and covered poles and pegs, left the field with but one miserable stray hen. The flock would not break up or alight anywhere near. If anyone had told me what I am saying now, I would, like "Novice," have been most sceptical. Experience, however, has taught me to believe that plagued Goldfinches have had their wits sharpened in a wonderful way. What does "Novice" mean by "squarking" in a Finch's call-note? Is it that "swearing note" which is sometimes called by catchers "thistleing," and which a Finch uses when he is scolding and "pecking" at another that is too near him? It is most interesting to know. "Netter" has given invaluable instruction in the art of repairing. Can he add directions for "bordering" or "arming" with a three-inch mesh, and thicker thread?

CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet St., London, E.C.

By GEO. G. HENDERSON.

A thoroughly practical article written round our recent Coloured Plate by one of Scotland's best-known British Bird enthusiasts.

The Chaffinch.

The Chaffinch is a lovely bird, one of the most handsome of our Finches. His shape is neatness itself, and he carries himself always with a jaunty air. He is a fearless bird in an aviary, in no way afraid of you, but coming boldly to the perch nearest you, quizzingly crying "pink," "pink." His song, though short, is given with much gusto, and he repeats it time after time in quite a defiant tone. I have tried to put it into words by the closest observation—this is what I have arrived at: "Everybody tries to cheat me:" He pours forth his notes in a loud and cheerful key. Chaffinches are greatly run on for use at singing contests, both in England and in Germany, and many matches are held yearly.

Never buy a Chaffinch after December, for if you do it is most likely he will mope and pine away. There are great differences in the temperaments of these birds, for some steady down very easily, whilst others take a great deal of handling and "working with" before you can get them to show themselves to advantage.

Chaffinches are easily hand-reared, but although they make delightful pets, never in my experience could I get them as large as the wild-bred ones, no matter how I tried. It is many years since I first hand-reared Shilfas, and it was a nest of three. I had no difficulty in doing so, as I always found them ready for their food. One summer day I had brought to me this nest of youngsters, just in their pen feathers. I put the nest into a small bowl, and covered this over with a cloth, after I had given them a good feed. I fed them every two hours, and mixed with the food all the green-fly (aphides) I could get off the rose bushes.

At night I took my bowl of Chaffies to my bedroom, and before turning in gave them a good meal. I generally wakened about 2 a.m., when I fed them; and so on, every two hours, till in a few days I could almost see them grow. I had them doing for themselves in about a month's time, and so tame were they that whenever I entered my bird-room they made such a fuss—they would not keep quiet till I opened their cage door, when all would fly on to my shoulders, or head, crying still for me to feed them, although they could quite easily crack seed. The cocks were the loudest and best singers I ever had, whilst the hen was a charming little lady, quite docile, and she paired easily with a cock Bramblefinch.

You have to be very careful if you have a number of cocks in your aviary, and when the spring time comes round be ever on the watch to see that all are of best behaviour. At pairing time cocks become very dominant, although before they were probably not in the least quarrelsome. If you are careless at this time you may be sorry for it, as in a day you may lose your best show bird. Once two cocks start to fight they will continue at it till one of them gets scalped, and it is in this condition you may find your favourite some fine spring morning.

Have your quarrelsome bird removed whenever you have the least suspicion that he is starting to bully, and in doing so you will give peace to the other inmates of the aviary.

For food, there are the two varieties which Chaffinches feed on—hardbill mixture and softbill mixture. In winter I give Canary seed, German and English rape, teazle, and a few sunflower seeds, also a little hemp at times. Sponge biscuit, ants' eggs and dried flies mixed together with boiled potato or grated carrot should also be supplied, and a mealworm or two daily. In spring I begin to withdraw the hemp and give less of sunflower. In summer I stop the hemp and do not give this again till after the moult. At the close of the moulting season, and for a time thereafter, I give linseed, also a little linseed meal in the softbill mixture.

During summer, when all kinds of insect life abound, and are easily secured, there is no trouble in keeping your Chaffinches in perfect bloom. You may offer the different kinds of green food, but I would give it roots and all, and you will find immediately you do so your shilfas carefully examining every particle for the insects thereon of which they are passionately fond. From your garden you can get everything in the way of insect food—all kinds of slugs, caterpillars, spiders, green fly, earwigs, etc. Live wasp-grub must not be forgotten, and can be got in season through the advertising columns of CAGE BIRDS. Young blow-flies make the best of food for Chaffinches, and the best way to secure them is to put a quantity of gentles with some bad beef in a box, cover same up with hay and sand above that, and place in your aviary or flight; and when once the flies come to the surface your Chaffinches are ready to meet them, and it is death to the blow-fly every time.

In winter a piece of apple is about all he will care for, and an additional mealworm. Chaffinches will relish crushed nuts at times. They are very fond of the bath, and should get it daily in good weather. This is the secret of keeping them in perfect feather and show condition.

For a show bird I would look for the very largest I could get, of a bold Norwich Canary type, full and broad chested (which should be of a pale plum colour, without any slatey shades, and should be carried well down). The cheeks are of the same colour, which should go well back behind the eyes. The back should be of dark brownish colour, and the lower part and rump of tail a buff greenish colour. The crown of the head should be large, and the nape of neck bluish, getting more intense in colour in spring. The whites on butt of wings should be broad and pure and enamel-like to look at.

The colour in hens is more subdued, so that the sexes are easily divided. The inside colour of the show cage should be a pale green or blue.

The Bramblefinch.

The Bramblefinch, also known as the Mountain Finch, as a bird for exhibition is at present in great demand, and good ones are scarce; they must be, or else such prices could not be got, as, I notice, for claimed birds at some of the shows lately. There is this consolation, however, to the plucky buyer that if he starts with a young bird he will get back his purchase price and a bit more in time, because, judging from the experience I have had of the species, the birds will live for a long time without the slightest trouble, and will be better show birds as the years pass. There is a specimen doing the rounds of the shows at the present day which I am sure I put 1st at the Scottish National six or seven years ago, and the last time I saw it out it looked as fresh and as able as ever.

Bramblefinches visit these shores only in winter, and are taken in large numbers in farm towns as they mingle with Chaffinches, Buntings and Greenies in search of food.

When first caught the Bramblefinch is the wildest of any Finch that ever came into my possession. I think it must be nervousness, for you cannot put your head in at your bird-room door, but there it goes, raising your temper at one bound. There is murder then at your heart. But don't. Rather let all go except the very best one, and keep him in a separate room, and he may do you some good some day.

Keep the birds out of your bird-room if you wish peace and quietness; if not, you may miss a show season as the result of your neglect. Many a time have I had to rise in the middle of the night in the dead of winter and wander into a cold room and light up till my birds had recovered from their fright caused by the rasping cry of the bungling Bramblefinch.

After all the birds have settled down again you put out the light and retire to slumber and dream of your winners, only to be awakened once more with a start. What was that? It is burglars, you think. You listen for a second. No; it is that confounded Bramble at his tricks once again. Up you get. You don't feel the cold now, you are so hot; you light up your bird-room, and there to your utter disgust you find some of your best exhibition birds with flights knocked out, and so otherwise damaged that showing for some weeks is out of the question. For the moment you could never make a Sunday-school teacher; so, silently lifting the cage containing your Bramblefinch, you leave the others in silence and darkness, and gently close the door for all times on the terror who has been the cause of all the trouble, and banging him below your bed you "tumble in," vowing never to have anything to do with such a bird again.

Do you keep to your word? You may, but I have not. I have five Bramblefinches at present. I wish I had only one, and one is quite enough. The other four, I think, I will put into Gift classes, and so pass them on to others and let them have some of the sleepless nights I have passed, all through the love of a Bramblefinch.

You will attend to its wants much the same as in the case of the Chaffinch, only give more sunflower. From an exhibition point of view this bird is the better for being colour fed, and he takes the cold feed freely, so you can give it him at moulting time either as prescribed for the Greenfinch, or in the Softbill mixture recommended for the Chaffinch.

At all times supply plenty of fresh water for the bird to bathe in.

The great cry for show birds is in regard to size, so in picking your Bramblefinch see that he is an extra large bird, grand fronted, with large round head. The breast should be a rich rusty brown or chestnut colour, and this colour should go right up to the throat, which should be clear without any black feathers; and the farther this brown comes down the chest the more valuable the specimen. The head, cheeks and back are spangled black and brown, also the wings, which should be distinctly barred with brown. Some birds have a few white feathers at shoulders. The underpart of body should be white, and as pure as possible, and at flanks should be ticked with black.

Young birds are lighter and more brown in the spangling, and so do not look so well as the old-stagers. But time works wonders, and what you thought at first was too pale turns out in years and with cold pepper the very article you have been waiting for. So when you get a right big bird properly marked keep him, as there is no age limit for these birds. Time improves them, and also steadies them.

They are no trouble if kept in a room by themselves, and cost little to start with. Hens are much paler and lighter in markings.

Bramblefinches breed with Chaffinches, but all the Hybrids from this cross that have come under my notice at exhibitions have been too much of a sameness, having no contrast. An ideal cross, in my opinion, would be the Bramblefinch Bullfinch. The colour for the inside of show cage should be pale or mid-green.

In conclusion, I would advise every fancier who goes in for wild birds to get acquainted with some farmer, and from him get what is known in Scotland as "skellock see," that is, the waste after a day's threshing of corn, and which is generally thrown to the poultry in the stack yards. Hence this is the reason that so many wild birds frequent these places in the winter. He will likely make you a present of as much of it as you like to carry away.

Always have a tin of this in your cages, flight, or aviary, and so stop a lot of ailments your birds are bound to suffer from.

Then, in the winter when the snow is on the ground, you could persuade your farmer friend to let you go for a day's catching, and no doubt he would be only too willing and enjoy the sport with you.

In taking a number of birds you have every chance of getting some good ones. You have the natural wild seeds beside you with which to meat them off, which is no trouble at all. The ones you did not care for you could take to your dealer, and for what you get for them buy a nice little present for the gentleman who so kindly gave you the chance of procuring the birds and the food to start them in the exhibition world.

How I Rear and Tame My Cage-bred Budgerigars.

By A. J. HOLLOWAY.

Possibly my Budgerigar experiences may prove of interest to some. At the beginning of 1909, I made a box-cage, 4ft. long, 1¼ft. deep, and 2½ft. high (inside measurement), with slanting roof, etc., to keep out the rain. Somewhat unfortunately I had not a wall more suitable than the one I erected it on, which was facing north. Anyhow, when I had my cage up, and with branches, perches and husks in it, I paired my birds (on March 15th)—a green cock to a yellow hen, also a yellow cock to a green hen.

The First Pairs "Turned In."

On April 4th I turned in the first pair, and in the course of a few days the yellow hen began to enter one or two husks, and later on laid eggs, beginning to sit on April 26th. She sat for about a week, when I turned in No. 2 pair, and when I did so the yellow hen came off her eggs, looked round, and seemed to talk to her husband, to tell him, I suppose, to keep his eyes on the intruders.

Early one morning at 2.30 o'clock I was disturbed by my Budgies flying wildly about their cage, and in darkness. Of course I thought that all was up with my birds, for I expected to see (when it got light) the old hen off her nest, and some of the birds dead, but to my delight she had kept to her eggs and none were dead or injured. I found out the reason for this midnight panic, and it was this: At the bottom of our street is a street lamp, and this shines full on to my cage, and when the man turned it out, it frightened my birds. So after that, before dusk every night, I put down the hinged water-proof front.

The second pair of birds did not breed at all, but they look promising for next April.

On May 14th, I heard young in the nest. I never interfered with any of my birds, except when feeding and watering them. On June 12th one young one came out on top of the husk, and in the course of a few days I had four lovely green ones flying and climbing about the cage. On June 20th I had them caged up in twos, in cages the size of "London breeders."

Commencing to Tame the Young.

An hour or so after I had caged them, I cut off the tips of their long feathers on their wings so that they could not fly so well, and then I began to tame them. First of all I put my hand in the cage to get them to come on to my finger. This, of course, they would not do, but flew screaming into a corner of their cage. But I followed them up, and in the course of half-an-hour I had them both on my hand in the cage, looking more satisfied with their new home. I let the four birds have the same teaching.

After that I took each one in its turn for five minutes in my two hands, and let them crawl between the first finger and thumb of my left hand to the first finger and thumb of my right hand, or, if you like, from hand to hand. I did this very often, but not too often, so as to upset the birds, and often did I have a severe bite from their strong beaks. But this biting ceased when they were more tame.

Sticking to the Task.

On Thursday afternoons and on Sundays I had them out in one of our rooms, and they would stay wherever I put them, and come on to my finger when I wished them to, and fly on to my head and shoulders of their own accord. But at first "baby chudlers," as I call them, did not like me to put my hands on them, they would get away from me and scream; but I stuck to my task with gentle handling and talking, and at last I could take hold of them without their trying to get away from me, like one can with a tame rat.

I have had three nests of young from one pair of Budgies. In the first nest I had one cock and three hens; in the second nest three cocks and three hens, and in the third nest two cocks and four hens—sixteen in all, and all greens. The last four young out of the third nest I had to drown, for I found that they were weak and could not perch.

This last nest of eggs was hatched on September 18th, and the young were on their own on October 23rd. The weather from September up to October 26th was what I call mild, but on that day at eight o'clock a.m. the thermometer registered 39 degrees F. It could not have been the cold weather which was the cause of their weakness, for I brought and kept indoors all my young ones as soon as they were on their own.

Food of the Birds.

The old birds when they have young eat much groundsel. They also appreciate lettuce and dandelion, and I always have grass growing in boxes, which I place inside my cage. The old hen feeds her young at night when they are from a day to about sixteen days old. I never gave my young birds, nor old ones either, any soaked bread, or sop of any kind—simply Canary and millet seeds, a few oats, cuttle-fish bone, groundsel, lettuce, dandelion, shepherd's purse, growing grass, and water, and all my birds are in tip-top healthy condition.

They are indoors now, and I have seven, exceedingly tame, and I may say they can be handled like tame rats. They will crawl up my coat and perch round my collar and pull my hair. Of course, there are times when they fly away from me.

It takes about nineteen days for eggs to hatch, and the young make their appearance at the entrance of the husk when four weeks old. The young crack seed when about thirty days old, and are safely "on their own" when five weeks old.

OBAN, N.B.

Tenth annual exhibition, held December 23rd, was a great success. President, Bailie Mr. D. Skinner; vice-president, Mr. Neil Munro; joint secretaries and treasurers, Messrs. D. Nimmo and D. Paterson, with a strong working committee. The management was all that could be desired, President Skinner having his men well in hand. Messrs. Nimmo and Paterson are a brace of capable officials, and everything went as merrily as wedding bells. The Argyllshire Gathering Hall is very suitable, being roomy, excellently lighted, and free from draughts. The awards were, on the whole, well received, Mr. Allan Chalmers, Kirkintillock, placing the cards. Cup for most points was won outright by Mr. W. C. Smith (Balguhidder), the runner-up being Mr. W. Simpsou (Fort William). Gold medal for best in hall was won by Mr. Smith, with a typical Norwich Plainhead, the runner-up being Mr. A. G. Fotheringham, with a clean yell. Scotch Fancy Ck. This was a very close race.

ROCHDALE (Good Intent) C.B.S.

Our second table show (all buff birds) was held at headquarters on December 15th, when some grand birds were again staged, many well-known winners in the open shows being on view. Owing to the grand list of specials, the competition is proving keen, points counting for the four shows. Members are only allowed to show two birds each, so that they are on equal footing. A large number of members and friends turned up, and a most pleasant evening was spent, talking bird matters over. Messrs. B. Lord and W. Bescoby judged.

BRADFORD EAST O.S.

The last members' show of the year was held on Boxing Day, at Park Chapel Schools, when Mr. R. Halliday (Shipley) officiated as judge. There was a splendid entry of 119 birds. The quality of the exhibits was A1, and Mr. Halliday had a stiff task. The points winners at this show were: Messrs. G. White, 25; Laycock, 25; J. Farrar, 18, in the champion section. In the novice section: Messrs. Wilkinson Bros., 22; O. Priestley, 19; E. Dinsdale, 19; and in the extra novice section: Messrs. Wilman and Barker, 22; W. Walker, 20. These points place the competitors in the following order for the Society's specials:—Champion section: 1, Laycock; 2, Stables; 3, Briggs; 4, Northrop; 5, Farrar; 6, White. Novice section: 1, Dinsdale; 2, Gelder; 3, Walker; 4, Wilkinson Bros.; 5, Greenwood; 6, Brooke; 7, Baldwin Bros.; 8, Warner. Extra novice section: 1, Wilman and Barker; 2, W. Walker. These prizes will be distributed at the 3rd annual tea and concert, on January 8th. The judge's awards gave every satisfaction.

PEMBROKE.

This show was held in the Market Hall on December 29th, and was a decided success. The entries came up very well, and the quality was good. The exhibits were nicely staged, and the hall decorated, which gave rise to a great deal of admiration. Yorkies and Goldies were very strong in number, and took a great deal of sorting out. Mr. Sinnett, the secretary, had everything well in hand, and cards were up immediately the classes were judged. Mr. G. H. Billett judged.

YORKS. (10): 1, spl, Hughes, clinking good yell., splendid length, nice wings and tail; 2, Hughes, another mkd. yell., close up; 3, Andrews, very similar; 4, Williams; hc, Williams, John. NOR. SELL. (10/-): 1, 2, Andrews; 3, Davies; 4, Ray; absent, Davies. Hyde's special went to the winning Norwich.

Nests of Birds, Poultry, etc., should be regularly sprinkled with KEATING'S POWDER, especially when hens are sitting. Don't forget to do this just previous to the eggs hatching, to destroy the Red Mite. It kills all insects, harmless to everything else.

CAERAU.

This show was held on December 27th, in a good hall. The Canary section was very good, as also were the British birds. The bad weather unfortunately affected the "gate." Mr. D. A. S. Longden judged, and gave the greatest satisfaction. Mr. Jno. Lewis, the secretary, is to be complimented on his able management.

The Critique.

PWLLHELI.

The fifth annual show was held at the Town Hall, on Dec. 27th, and was a most successful fixture. The attendance, too, was very good all day, although the weather was not quite favourable. The entries were about 240, in the 22 classes, and the quality of the exhibits was of the highest order. The room allotted for the cage birds was an ideal one, having plenty of light, and being free from draughts. Mr. Rowlands makes an ideal secretary, and had his work well under control. He received capital assistance from his brother fanciers. Mr. E. R. Roberts took special tor best bird, and several others, with his well known Borders. Messrs. Sheldon and Winnard had a good share of specials and prizes amongst the Norwich, Mr. W. H. Williams gaining a special with his well known Crest. Mr. Nolan won cup for best Yorkshire, also specials for Hardbills, in the British section, and in the Mule class with a good Greenie Canary Jonque. Master J. Williams captured Hyde's special with a good buff Scotch Fancy. Mr. A. Wellings, Prescot, made the awards.

PETERHEAD.

Annual show of the Peterhead C.B.S. was held in the Music Hall, on Dec. 24th, and 25th. The entries numbered 200, being slightly less than last year's. The various classes were well filled, and competition was keen. Much of the success of the show was due to the efforts of the secretary and treasurer, Mr. Alex. Clark, who was well backed up by his assistant secretary, Mr. Jas. Gray, and an excellent working committee, consisting of Messrs. Wilson, Cameron, Morrice, Winton, Clark, McKay, Cowie, Jack, Thomson, Birnie, Fraser, Connon, Park, Sim, and Porter. The Town Council Cup, offered for most points over the show, was won by Mr. J. M. Wilson, Mr. A. Clark being runner-up. The silver-mounted claret jug, presented by Mr. J. Donald, for best young bird in show (bred by a local member), was gained by Mr. A. Clark. Mr. J. M. Wilson was the winner of Provost Leask's gold medal for best bird in show, also the silver medal for best natural colour cock. Mr. A. Thomson won the silver medal for best young hen, with a grand ticked fed hen. Judge, Mr. Wm. Hampton (Brechin), who took great care to have the right birds in the right place. His awards were well received.

DENHOLME & THORNTON C.B.S.

Members' show, held December 18th, at the Bull's Head Inn, Thornton. Mr. F. Self (Clayton) judged, and gave every satisfaction. This being the last show for cup and medal competition, great interest was taken in the event, and the competition was very keen. Mr. N. Kirk won the cup and gold medal for most points, and Mr. J. Clayton gold medal for second most points. Mr. A. Burden won 7/6 for third most points. The cup is held twelve months by the winner, and must be won three times before becoming anyone's property.

TRURO.

The Truro and County F.A. held their 21st great annual show in the large and spacious Market House. The birds were well staged, and free from draughts. The society can boast of a large and representative number of fanciers, and a very large and influential committee of energetic workers, who always take a keen interest in their show, and are blessed with a most capable and painstaking secretary, Mr. James Tippett, who always has the whole Fancy at heart, and it would be difficult to find a better man. The entries on the whole were good, and over 200 cage birds were staged. The entries in the Norwich classes were not large, but several well-known winners were staged. The Yorkshires made a fine display, and contained many creditable specimens, many of them having won at some of the leading shows. The Goldfinch and Bullfinch classes were well filled, and were a feature of the show, and two sets of winners could easily have been found. The Mule and British classes were not large, but some exceptional birds were among them, notably a grand Greenie-Bullie exhibited by Mr. F. Collins, also a grand specimen of the Tree Creeper and the noted Cornish Chough exhibited by Mr. W. Thompson. The selling classes were large, and in the opinion of the judge specimens of good value were among them. The judging was got through in good time, and the awards seem to meet with general satisfaction. Mr. S. Tickell (Bodmin), made the awards.

LLANDOVERY.

Third annual cage bird exhibition, in connection with the Christmas market, was held in a long room adjoining the King's Head Hotel on December 23rd. The exhibits were all well staged, but owing to the cold and damp weather the birds were a little loath to pull themselves together. Thanks to the hon. secretary, Mr. Rhys W. Price, and his stewards, there was no delay in placing the cards on as soon as the award slips had been handed in. The attendance was very satisfactory, fanciers and visitors attending from the surrounding districts. This show next year, in all probability, will, we hear, figure under the C.B.U. list. In the Canary section Mr. John Lewis won 1st and special with a good Yorkshire, and Mr. G. P. Morgan won the 1st and special in the hens. The British birds were in strong force. The Goldfinches, Greypates, and Mules were a treat to witness. The Goldfinch Mule of Mr. Pugh, and the Bullfinch of Mr. G. Anthony were a couple of real beauties. The competition in the British section was very keen throughout. The judge was Mr. W. E. Williams (Swansea).

KENT COUNTY C.B.A.

Members' table show, held in Barton Road Boys' School, on December 22nd. The entries numbered only 37 all told, six of which were absent. No doubt the wretched weather was responsible for the paucity. The quality, however of the birds was very good indeed all through. Mr. Birch was the judge appointed, but was unable to officiate owing to business engagements. Mr. E. Leaver took the Yorkshires (any age), Mr. C. Lockett the Unflighted Yorks; Mr. J. Reeve took the Norwich, and Mr. Abbott the British. The committee take this opportunity of appealing to those members who have not paid their subscriptions for the current year to do so at once, as by so doing they will put a very different complexion on the balance-sheet, and also give the executive encouragement for the coming year, for which a vigorous and interesting programme will be formulated. Suggestions for the good of the association will be welcomed, and any member having any alteration in the rules to propose please communicate same to me at their earliest convenience. The audit is fixed for the first week in January, when the membership list will be revised; and the annual meeting for January 26th, 1910, in Barton Road Boys' School, Dover.

RUGBY.

On Boxing Day a 10-mile radius show, promoted by the Rugby and Dist. C.B.S., was held at Rugby Town Hall, and, in the circumstances, it may be regarded as quite successful. Mr. E. Westley, the hon. secretary, was away for the Christmas holidays, but he had secured a number of members' specials, which were appreciated, and in the hands of Messrs. H. Leng and C. Scaresbrook, the arrangements on the day were satisfactorily carried out. Mr. J. A. Tyler, of Leicester, kindly came over to judge, and in the various classes about 60 birds were placed before him, including a good number shown by novices, whom the society is doing its best to encourage.

NOR., YELL.: 1, 2, Brooks, former typical show bird, nice head, good feather; latter, if anything, even more shapely, and about as hot in col., lacking a trifle in head properties; 3, vhc, hc, Leng, all very decent birds. BUFF: 1, 2, Leng, former el., good head; 3, Savage, hen of good size and nice quality. YELL., 1909: 1, Savage, good head and feather. BUFF: 1, 2, vhc, Leng, bonnie birds, winner clear, with stylish head; 2nd, wing-marked, a trifle smaller; 3, Savage, nat. col., typical, not quite the quality, perhaps, of the winner. NAT. COL.: 1, Grant, good substance; 2, vhc, Brooks; 3, c, Savage. A.O.V.: 1, Westley, nice Cinnamon; 2, Hubbard, Belg. NOVICE, YELL., NOR.: 1, hc, Labraham; 2, c, Veasey; 3, Hubbard; vhc, Johnson. BUFF: 1, 2, vhc, Veasey; 3, hc, Labraham; c, Grant. MULE: 1, Brooks; 2, 3, Scaresbrook, all of Goldie-Canary cross. HYB.: 1, Westley, Goldfinch-Greenfinch. SMALL BRIT. FOR.: 1, Hubbard, Whydah; 2, Labraham, Ribbon-finch; 3, Westley, Avadavats; vhc, Hubbard, Scarlet Bishop; c, Barratt, Lovebird.

MOUNTSORREL.

The eleventh annual open show of the Mountsorrel and Dis. F.S. was held on December 27th, in the Drill Hall. The entries, though a bit disappointing as far as numbers go (several classes unfortunately having to be cancelled), included some really fine exhibits, which were at once a credit to their owners and to the show. Owing to the severely wet weather, the "gate" was not so good as was expected, but the visitors were pleased with the exhibition. Mr. J. Pannell, the hon. secretary, had all arrangements made for the success of the venture, and deserves much praise for his able management. Mr. J. N. Harrison judged.

NOR.: 2, vhc, Ball and Son, Phd. buff, mkd. wings and head, nice quality feather, good shape and type; 3, Orme, cl. buff Phd., good head and chest; res., Thornton, buff mkd. Crest. BRIT.: 1, 3, vhc, Seal, 1st Hawfinch, good size and col., 3rd Siskin, nice bib and cap, well laced, vhc Bramblefinch; 2, Treer, Crossbill, excellent specimen, well shown; res, Smalley, Goldfinch. A.O.V.: 1, Knifton, Green Parrot; 2, res, Seal, light Goldfinch Mule, good size and feather, res. Foreign Goldfinch; 3, Miss Baker, pair of Green Parrakeets.

BOLTON AND DISTRICT O.S.

Annual members' show, held in the large room in the Joiners' Arms Hotel, on December 18th. Some grand exhibits were on view, many of them having done a lot of winning in open competition. A number of leading exhibitors from various towns put in an appearance in the afternoon; no doubt this was a meeting-place for a pleasing event which took place in the town later. Messrs. J. and J. Hopkins won the Whitehead Challenge Cup for most points gained at the three shows in 1909 with 57 points, Mr. J. R. Mitchell running up with 39 points. Mr. T. Seed (Rishton) judged, and his awards gave entire satisfaction.

LONDON AND COUNTIES O.A.

Fourth annual show, held on December 3rd and 4th, at the Sessions House Hotel, Clerkenwell, E.C. The entries were about 140, and were nicely arranged around the room, and plants were placed here and there, which gave the show a very tasteful appearance. We are glad to see that the association is in a perfectly healthy and flourishing state. The hon. secretary, Mr. W. Gilbert, is to be congratulated. Having worked hard, he had everything ready and in shipshape order. He was ably assisted by several members, and during his temporary absence during the morning of the show his duties were ably carried out by those two enthusiastic fanciers Mrs. Morrison and Mr. Quantrell. The Canaries were not over strong, but birds of merit were to be found in the team of Crests of Mr. Willis, Messrs. Bell and Pile in Plainheads, and Mr. Pretty's team of Cinnamons and Lancashires. Also a nice lot of Yorkshires was staged by Messrs. Harwood, Cox, Pile, and Gilbert, but the British birds were very warm. Mr. Quantrell's team of 23 contained some hot stuff, the honours being shared with Messrs. Adamthwaite, Pile, Heine, and Mr. and Mrs. Morrison. Mr. T. Heath judged, and his awards gave general satisfaction.

ALWAYS USE OUR

DEPOSIT SYSTEM.

We are not responsible for the statements made in advertisements, nor of the bona-fides of either buyers or sellers In all transactions the adoption of our Deposit System should be insisted upon.

IMPORTANT.

SEND THE FULL COMMISSION.—If the full commission does not accompany the deposit, the vendor will not be notified of its receipt until the amount deficient, plus the extra postage incurred, has been paid to us.

HOW TO REMIT.—Under no circumstances will Cheques or Post-dated Money Orders be accepted as deposits. Uncrossed Postal Orders must be sent and the numbers taken for safety.

RULES.

1.—PROCEDURE.—The intending purchaser should send to this office the amount of the purchase (our deposit fee included), and at the same time he should communicate with the seller, stating what it is he requires sent on approval. We acknowledge receipt of the deposit to both parties. In all cases the depositor should give his name and address, and also that of the vendor, and must write same clearly and distinctly.

2.—END OF TRANSACTION.—The deposit is retained by us until we hear from both parties that the transaction has been completed. If a sale has been effected, we hand the amount deposited to the seller. If a sale has not been effected, we return the amount to the depositor. The transaction must be conducted by the parties themselves. We merely hold the deposit.

3.—AMOUNT OF COMMISSION.—The fee is 6d for each £1, or fraction of £1, and it must be sent at same time as the deposit.

4.—IMPORTANT POINTS.—The depositor must decide within forty-eight hours of the receipt of the goods whether he will keep or return the same, unless, that is, some other period of approval (of which we must be advised) is agreed upon by both parties. The depositor must at the same time notify us of the fact that he has returned the goods. If the goods are not returned within the said forty eight hours, we reserve the right to send the deposit to the seller after the expiration of that period. And should the seller fail within three days to notify us of the receipt of his goods back again, the transaction will be treated as ended, and the deposit be returned to the depositor.

5.—A SATISFACTORY PURCHASE.—When a transaction has been completed to the satisfaction of both depositor and seller, both parties must at once return the deposit receipts as a guarantee of its completion. The depositor must at the same time instruct us to pay over the deposit to the seller.

6.—GOODS ALREADY SOLD.—If the goods are sold before our deposit note reaches the seller, or, if for any other reason he declines to do business, he must at once return the deposit note to us. Failing its receipt, we reserve the right to return the deposit to the sender after the expiration of three days.

7.—FRESH TRANSACTION.—In case no sale be effected, a deposit is available for purposes of a fresh transaction, provided another deposit fee be paid.

8.—GOODS IN TRANSIT.—Goods in transit are at the seller's risk, and any damage or loss sustained on the journey must be borne by the seller. But goods not approved of must be properly packed and returned by the same means as were used in sending the same.

9.—PAYMENT OF CARRIAGE.—The payment of carriage must be a matter for arrangement between the vendor and depositor. We do not undertake to settle disputes affecting questions of carriage. But in the absence of other arrangements the purchaser is liable for the carriage of the goods, and if the goods are sent on approval and returned, each party pays the carriage one way.

10.—DISPUTES.—In case of a dispute, the decision of the Editor is final.

PREPAID ADVERTISEMENTS

UNDISPLAYED.—6d. for the first sixteen words. One Halfpenny per Word for each word over sixteen. MINIMUM, 16 words 6d.

IMPORTANT NOTE.—Two or more Advertisements coming from the same advertiser, even if sent in different names, are reckoned together, and, after the first Sixteen words, are charged at two words a penny, but no single advertisement, even if accompanied by others, will be charged at less than the minimum Price, viz., Sixpence.

Headlines or Footlines 6d., 9d., 1/-, 1/6 according to size.

Small prepaid advertisements of a general nature and not connected in any way with the Cage Bird Trade are inserted at the rate of ½d. per word throughout. Minimum 12 words 6d.

Advertisements must in all cases bear the bona fide name and address of the advertiser, and no advertisement will be inserted if addressed to a receiving office, or similar place of call.

Postal Orders must be sent as far as possible. All moneys should be made payable to F. CARL.

The Proprietor reserves the right to refuse any advertisement, or to cancel any advertisement ordered for a series, at any time, without assigning any reason for so doing.

Advertisements close Tuesdays first post in each week, and should be sent to the Advertisement Manager, CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet Street, London. Terms for Display Advertisements on application.

WHETHER FOR SHOW,

muling, or singing purposes only you require birds, I think I can satisfy you if you will give me a trial, but even if I don't, you won't be the loser of a penny, because I send all birds on approval, solely at my own risk, on "Cage Birds" deposit system, or on receipt cash, and always refund every penny of your money if fullest satisfaction not given. I have splendid stock genuine Worcestershire Goldfinches, all in full colour, perfect condition, and properly on seed, at 2/- and 3/- each; specially selected show specimens, guaranteed fit to win, 4/- and 5/- each; I also have a grand lot of the real Siberian cock Goldfinches, every one guaranteed in full free song, at 4/6 each; seven 28/-; specially selected exhibition specimens, with full complement of show points, 7/6 and 10/- each; kindly note, I do not purchase Russian Goldfinches from Antwerp, and then say I have the only Siberian Goldfinches in England. I guarantee every one I sell to have been imported direct from Siberia, in single wicker cages, and there is as much difference between them and Russian Finches as between dirty little hens and big bright cocks. The reason I can sell them at same price as Russians are sold at is because I buy first-handed and save middle profits. (See letter below.) I have 30 grand aviary moulted English cock Goldfinches, in full song, all big picked birds, at 5/- each; also 50 aviary moulted hen Bullfinches, guaranteed been flying with above Goldfinches since September last, at 2/6 each. THE HUMAN LINNET.

Gentlemen,—I am not a self-made Linnet King, but get my title from this paper, "Cage Birds." I have sat judge at hundreds of contests, and have won hundreds of prizes. I take interest in my birds, hence my title. I have a grand lot of big fine cock Linnets singing beautifully, 1/- and 1 6 each; not common rubbish. Cock Linnets, singing hard, with back cage, and my secret, and sample of mixture for making birds sing with their wings down, 2/- lot. Cock Linnets learnt under my well-known champion (quality song), only 2 6 each, with fancy cage, secret, and mixture, 3,6 lot; bargain to contest singers; the above can be put in a first-class polished contest cage, instead of fancy cage, for same price, 3,6; they are acknowledged to be the pride of the bird world. Mr. Randles, a well-known contest singer, of Warrington, Lancashire, says, The one I got from you is a topper; you are the man. To exhibitors: I have some extraordinary good birds for show; cock Linnets, very large, well pencilled, feathers like silk, and finger tame, 1/- and 1 6; gems, cannot be beaten, 2/- each. When I say gems I mean it. I don't send out small rubbish. Please read these: 2, Connaught Place, Barnstaple.—Sir,—Received birds safe, very pleased with them. Mr. Gayden to F. Allen. 7, Bellevue Terrace, Hendon, London.—Bird to hand, very pleased in the way it was sent. Mr. Watson to F. Allen. I have some real specimen pear tree cock Goldfinches, with deep square cut blaze, grand shape, 3/- and 3,6 each; gems, 5/- each. My gems are winning all before them. It is an impossibility to get better class, no matter where you send and how much you pay. 5, Mount Pleasant, Stanley.—Sir,—Received Goldfinch safe. I am highly satisfied with him.—Mr. Bramhold to F. Allen. Victoria Hotel, Newmarket,—Sir,—Birds arrived safely, very satisfactory.—Mr. Mitchell to F. Allen. 3, King Street, Musselburgh.—Sir,—Bird arrived all safe, am very well pleased with it, thanks to your prompt attention.—Mr. Lees to F. Allen. Cock Bullfinches with deep rich colour, splendid cap and bars, grand shape, real toppers, 2,6 and 3/-; massive hens, 1 6 and 2/-. Greenfinches, real toppers for shape and colour, 1/- and 1 6. Chaffinches, can win, 1/- and 1 6. Larks, singing lovely, 1/- each. Redpolls, very large, 1/- and 1 6: Look, cock Linnet paired with hen Canary, sure Mulers, only 4,6. Cock Greenfinch and Canary, 3,6. Splendid cock Goldfinch, finger tame, paired up with massive hen Bullfinch, 6/- pair, honestly worth double. Breeders send at once, I have a few grand pairs for disposal. To all bird fanciers: I have had one thousand books printed telling you how to make your Linnets since with their wings down, how to moult, how to train, how to make Larks sing hard, and many other useful items; along with this I give a sample of my secret mixture, for P.O. 1/-. Now, it is not a shilling thrown away when you send to me, so please give it a trial, and prove the value of this offer. Caledonia Terrace, Bonnybridge.—Sir,—I tried your secret mixture on a Linnet and Goldfinch: you should hear them sing now. Please send gem Goldfinch and Redpoll.—Mr. Cooper to F. Allen. 27, Farie Street, Rutherglen.—Sir,—The food I had from you last week is a great success, as my Larks, previous to using it, were only singing very low; now they are all in full time.—Mr. Pick to F. Allen. Gentlemen, have I not given sufficient proof that I am an honest dealer, and send out same as I advertise. I always give 7 days' approval, cash or deposit. Please give me a trial order, and I guarantee you will be delighted, no matter how hard you are to please. I have a few contest Linnets for disposal. Send stamp for particulars. Write at once to the leading British Bird Dealer, Fred Allen, Porter-st. Aviaries, Hull.

says type is not the only item necessary in a good Norwich Plainhead. No, but Mister its a great, great big item, so if your birds are not the right type, then you may just as well not keep them from an exhibition point of view. Judges are now looking more to that most important point—type. And I have them. Large, cobby birds, with rare good heads and short, thick necks, making up a perfect model, those kind that catch the judge's eye at first sight. Fanciers are welcome to view my stock and judge for themselves. Approval, stamp.—Reply, 521, Woodborough Road, Mapperley, Nottingham.

£50 FREE. £50

Don't for one moment think I am a millionairess, for this is only au houest business offer. I offer £50 (fifty pounds) to any charity if any of my tens of thousands of customers can truthfully say that I ever in my business career solicited a single testimonial. Yet I have thousands of the best of testimonials, everyone genuine and unsolicited, bearing original stamp and post mark; these are at all times open for inspection, and will prove to the most sceptical person that for quality, combined with cheapness, I stand alone. The following are a few of the many unsolicited testimonials received last month, every one bearing original post mark, December, 1909. 12, Railway Terrace, Penygraig.—Received birds all right, and satisfied with them; the cock is singing well. Thanking you for the manner in which you served me.—F. Heal to Miss Storey. 12, Park Avenue, Mansfield.—Received birds safe. I am quite satisfied with them. Thanking you for prompt despatch and the quality of birds.—L. Ashby to Miss Storey. Bedford Hospital, Fort William.—Many thanks for Canary, who arrived quite safely after his long journey.—E. Jobson to Miss Storey. 40, Garfield Road, Battersea.—Received bird all right. I am well satisfied with it, and shall be pleased to give you more orders.—H. Lucas to Miss Storey. 104, Bohemia Road, St. Leonards.—Received birds quite safe; am very pleased with him; shall send again shortly.—C. Coleman to Miss Storey. 5, Avebank Terrace, Gargrave.—Received birds quite safe, well packed, and in good health; we are very well pleased with them.—R. Jackman to Miss Storey. Murray Road, Sheffield.—The bird arrived safe, in good condition, and is a capital songster, having already given us a good sample of his song.—A. Carroll to Miss Storey. 4, China Place, Southampton.—Have received Canary quite safe and well; it commenced singing as soon as I got it, and I am well satisfied with bargain.—W. Cotton to Miss Storey. Chadsmoor.—Received bird all right, and am very pleased with him.—W. Platt to Miss Storey. 27, Bridge Street, Mold.—I am well pleased with the bird you sent me; it is a treat. You are so honest in your dealings, I can recommend you to anyone, and shall do all I can to advertise your birds.—T. Howlly to Miss Storey. 61, Heolddu Road, Bargoed.—Birds arrived quite safe; look fine; quite pleased with them.—T. Lolly to Miss Storey. Newsheldon.—Bird arrived in good condition; am very well satisfied, and thank you very much.—A. Brass to Miss Storey. Upton, Northampton.—Birds arrived safe, in splendid condition; am very well pleased with them, and shall certainly send to you again.—H. Bray to Miss Storey. Park Pariad, Porth.—Bird arrived safe; I am fully satisfied with your fair treatment.—B. Judge to Miss Storey. 20, Reservoir Street, Aspwell.—Received Roller in good condition; it began to song on arrival. I am very pleased with it.—W. Polkington to Miss Storey. Merthyr Vale.—Roller you sent me has proved himself a marvellous singer. I am more than satisfied.—J. Williams to Miss Storey. Bod Idris, Conway.—Roller arrived in best of health and condition. I never enjoyed a better Christmas than to hear my bird singing his sweet song.—T. Roberts to Miss Storey. Church Street, Bramton.—Bird arrived safe; many thanks for your promptness.—F. Stevens to Miss Storey. 5, Griffith Street, Mairdy.—Received Norwich hen in perfect health; I am very pleased with it.—T. Jones to Miss Storey. 4, China Place, Southampton.—Received pair of Canaries safe; am more than pleased with them. I shall always be pleased to recommend a likely purchaser to you.—W. Cotton to Miss Storey. If you would like more proof of the high quality of my birds let me send you one on approval. I guarantee to give you the highest satisfaction at the lowest possible prices. Note the following prices. But you must see the quality, it will astound you. Genuine trained St. Andreasberg Rollers, cocks, 7/6, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6; a few contest songsters, 15/-, 20/-, 25/-; hens, 2/6, 3/-, 3/6; Hartz Rollers, loud free songsters, cocks, 5/3, 5/9, 6/3, 6/9; matched pairs, 7/6, 8/6, 9/6; Yorkshire cocks, 6/6, 7/6, 8/6, 10/6; Yorkshire hens, 3/6, 4/6, 5/6; matched breeding pairs, 8/6, 9/6, 10/6, 12/6; Norwich cocks and hens or matched pairs same prices as Yorkshires; neat travelling cages, 3d. each extra; full illustrated price list of birds and cages, 1d. for postage. CONTEST SINGERS are the terms we send our celebrated contest Rollers, and they can win in any competition. The price, 15/- only, and you can deposit your money with Editor for 14 days' trial, at my risk, and don't buy from anyone except on these terms. Send deposit at once, also send to one of the other dealers, and get one, any price up to 30/-, and you will decide to have my 15/- contest Roller, the real champion Rollers, which are only imported by me. Remember the price, 15/- only, and 14 days' trial, my risk, no fancy prices; sterling value only from me. Hartz Roller Canaries, cocks in full song, 4/6, 5/6, 6/6, and 7/6 each; St. Andreasberg Rollers, 8/6, 10/6 and 12/6; hens of best strains, 1/3, 1/9, 2/6, and 3/6 each. Give your orders at the Fountain Head, if you want satisfaction; largest dealers and importers in North of England; send for catalogue, post free; anything alive bought, sold or exchanged.—Northern Aviaries, Preston.

14 DAYS' TRIAL, MY RISK.

FOR YEARS PAST.

I have publicly invited intending purchasers of Rollers to have one of my Leipzig Rollers on a week's trial, and one from elsewhere at any higher price, on similar terms; test them side by side for a week, and if mine is not a far better bird at lower price, return it to me, and have the whole of your money back. I am frequently publishing letters from persons who have done this and they tell me that my birds have beaten birds costing twice and even thrice the money elsewhere. I now have an enormous stock of pure Leipzig Rollers, all in full song day and gaslight, with long hollow and double rolls, sweet silvery trills, water-bubble runs, soft roulades, piccolo trills, Nightingale jug-jug, bell harp and flute notes, etc., etc., and guaranteed entirely free from Titlark chopping, or any other harsh notes whatever, price 6/- and 7/- each; special Bandmasters, which excel in the deep bass and hollow bell rolls, etc., 10/- and 12/6 each. I also have a few special Seifert contest Rollers, fit to win contests immediately, 15/-, 17/6 and 21/- each. These contest birds are exceedingly soft and melodious, with lovely deep "round" rolls, etc., and are guaranteed of same strain, and bred by same man that won first prize of £60, with 6 of these birds, at Hamburg, on Nov. 21st last. Leipzig Roller hens 2/- each, 3/6 couple. I also have a large stock of Hartz cocks (often sold as Hartz Mountain Rollers), in full and vigorous song, day and gaslight, at 4/6 each, seven for 28/-; Hartz hens, 2/6 couple. These Hartz cocks are exceptionally loud, free songsters, real ceiling lifters, and just the thing where a good loud singer is required. Special Roller singing cabinets, with folding doors, 2/6 each. Ordinary singing box cages, 1/- and 1/6 each. The following letters are entirely unsolicited, and full name and address is given with each one, so that any sceptical person can make fullest enquiries as to my statement. "19, The Crescent, Worsley. Dec. 10th.—Sir,—I must say the Roller you sent me has far exceeded my expectations. He is a real good one, singing both day and gaslight, and what music. Yes, he is a gem, and I am more than satisfied.—Yours, C. Ridyard." "Pershore Road, Gt. Hampton, near Evesham.—Dec. 11.—Sir,—Thanks for Hartz cock you sent me a month ago; it is best songster I ever had. Thanking you for honest and prompt dealings.—Yours, Ernest White." "29, Clifford Road, West Stanley. Dec. 6th.—Sir,—Received Roller in splendid condition; this makes the seventh from you in 12 months. It is a champion songster; they have all given every satisfaction. Thanking you for prompt and honest dealings.—Yours, Wm. Roe." "6 Belle Vue Terrace, Penzance. Dec. 8th.—Sir,—Rollers to hand safely; many thanks for sending two such good birds; they are both singing now. It is a pleasure to deal with such an honest man.—Yours, A. Eddy." "Harness Stores, Byfleet. Dec. 2nd.—Sir,—Received three Schoolmasters, all in best of health. All these are singing grand, as I write this card. Thanking you for your selection.—Yours, F. Eyes." "22, Union Terrace, York. Dec. 2nd.—Sir,—Roller arrived safe; my friend is delighted with it, and I think it a beauty. I like your new style of sending them out.—Yours, H. Brough." "0 Derby Square, Preston, Lancs. Nov. 29th.—Sir,—Leipzig Roller arrived safe, and is more than I expected for the money. He started singing before being unpacked, and will sing while I hold the cage in my hand.—Yours, J. Holmes." "Mountain, Pantygasseg, Pontypool. Nov. 30th.—Sir,—Received Leipzig Roller safe. He is singing all right. I give you credit as a packer.—Yours, G. Calder." "18, Henry Street, Hyde, Manchester. Nov. 28th.—Sir,—Allow me to thank you for your business methods. The Roller is singing splendid, as I write this, and his changes of song are a surprise to me, and all who hear him. I have heard birds that have cost three times the money that I would not exchange him for, and I have myself given more, and they were not a patch on the one you sent me.—Yours, J. Thorley." "15, Gordon Road, Finchley, London. Nov. 25th.—Sir,—Please send three Hartz cocks and box cage. The Hartz cocks I had from you last year still sing splendidly, and give every satisfaction.—Yours, W. Green." "51, York Street, Baker Street, London. Nov. 26th.—Sir,—Received the 4 birds yesterday, in good condition. The Hartz cock I am delighted with. He is a beauty. I have heard expensive Rollers that he would bear comparison with, and the Roller hens are fine birds, and would sell for double in any shop about here.—Yours, M. Hollins." Kindly note: All are safely and warmly packed, and sent on full week's trial, on receipt cash, or "Cage Birds" deposit system. I take all risks and refund cash promptly if every satisfaction not given. See British Bird column.

DYKES'

YORKSHIRES.

"More Winners."—Read following, from 23 Middle Street, Seaham Harbour, December 12th, 1909.—The yellow cock has just won 1st and special for best in show. Please send me the following — ready for showing, for enclosed amount. J. Carr to L. Dykes.

For further proof, see my winnings weekly, at all leading shows. Having won during this last few weeks over 50 1sts, and numerous specials, cups, etc., etc., and it is a well-known fact that I have bred and sold hundreds of winners this last few years. If you want to win or stock birds to breed own winners, this is the strain you require: Stylish, leggy yellow cocks, at 6/-, 7/-, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, 20/- each; buff cocks, 5/-, 6/-, 7/-, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, 20/- each; grand racy hens, either yellow or buff, at 4/-, 5/-, 6/6, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/- each; pairs, personally and carefully selected to breed the best at, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-, 25/-, 30/- per pair; all colours, and over 400 to select from, and every bird guaranteed healthy and feathered to perfection.

Norwich, Crests, etc.

I have also some large, cobby Norwich, bred from winning strains, also Crests and Crest-bred, feathered to end of beak, "King's" and "Grant's" Palace strains, at reasonable prices. State wants, or come and judge for yourselves. Easy payments arranged to suit customers own requirements, and birds sent off at once, either show or stock birds, in any of above varieties, all on seven days' approval, my risk, and safe delivery guaranteed, any distance; illustrated price list post free. Travelling cages, 3d. extra. Few recent winners at reasonable prices. Place your orders with the old, reliable breeder, exhibitor, and judge, with a life's practical experience (not on paper); copyists please note, you will then avoid disappointment.

L. DYKES, Reliable Aviaries, 70, Bolton Hall Road,

BOLTON WOODS, BRADFORD.

CUTHBERTSON'S

Yorkshires are still winning; have won during last few weeks 29 1sts, 27 2nds, and 23 3rds; have several winners for sale, and grand stock birds, all on very reasonable terms, cold-room bred, and all on approval; stamp for particulars.—G. W. Cuthbertson, Manor House, Hughington, via Darlington.

CLEAR, ticked, variegated, foul or Green Yorkshires; cocks from 5/-; hens from 4/6 upwards; some splendid birds in stock; seven days' approval.—6, Ash-mount, Great Horton, Bradford, Yorkshire.

SAMUEL DEAN.

H. E. PARROTT'S

Yorkshires; this old-established strain has been winning for many years, at all the leading shows, including the Crystal Palace, and are still winning; if you are wanting show or stock birds, write to me, and I will endeavour to suit you; all cold-room bred and kept; am not seeking to dispose of waster, as any of my winners are for sale; stamp for reply: Parrott, Grove-place, Weybridge.

H. H. TOWERS.

Jubilee Palace strain. Having now arranged my stock, I can dispose of a few pairs or single birds which I can thoroughly recommend; my strain speaks for itself; refer to reports of all Yorkshire Union shows (Bradford East appears this week's issue); speciality, Cinnamon and Green Marks; pairs from 15/- upwards; a few exhibition specimens equally reasonable; satisfaction guaranteed; approval, cash or deposit: 8, Colne-rd., Glusburn, nr. Keighley.

KNIGHT'S YORKSHIRE AVIARIES.

250 highest-class Yorkshires, in all varieties, no other variety kept. Having had 30 years' practical experience in the breeding and keeping of Yorkshires only, intending fanciers and breeders should lose no time in having their coming-season breeding stock whilst the best choice is there for selection. Personally selected and unrelated pairs from 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, 20/- upwards; single birds proportionately; few exhibition specimens, from 20/- upwards; all approval; terms, cash or deposit; all cold room bred, reared and kept; send stamp for full season's price list, to: Jonas Knight, Copy-st., Allerton, Bradford, Yorkshire.

OGDEN BROS.

Our strain again hang at the top in 5 of the biggest competitions in England; again having won the Cinnamon Marked Yorkshire Canary Club Competition, making it our fourth time in succession; also the National Green Marked Yorkshire Canary Club Trophy, valued 10 guineas, and still leading in the Y.C.C. and the 30 guineas Yorkshire Union Trophy and Naylor's Challenge Cup. This gives proof that our strain stands unequalled. Those requiring properly matched pairs certain to breed winners, send to the reliable firm, that holds testimonials of champions bred from our pairs in every part of the British Isles, 12/6 per pair, upwards; all birds sent on approval; cash or deposit with Editor; stamp for reply: Dudley Hill, Bradford.

Halliday & Chittenden

have one of the finest winning teams of Yorkshire Canaries in the country (see show reports during this show season), all of which are for sale; for length, type, position, and quality, cannot be beaten. We have also a large stock of birds suitable for breeding own winners, at reasonable prices: Cocks, yellow or buff, at 6/-, 7/-, 8/-, 9/-, 10/6, 15/-, to 50/- each. Hens, yellow or buff, at 5/6, 6/6, 7/6, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/- to 20/- each, in clears, ticked, or unevenly marked, cinnamon or green; on approval, deposit with Editor, or P.O.O. Inspection invited. Note the address

108, Bolton Hall Road, Bradford.

REMEMBER

I have some clinking specimens, just the sort to breed champions, perfect type, and feathered like wax, including some grand Yorkshire cocks, that can win at local or members' shows, at 12/6, 15/-, 20/- and 25/-, colour-fed to perfection; Buff Yorkshire cocks, at 5/-, 6/-, 7/6, 10/- upwards; yellow Yorkshire cocks, at 5/6, 7/6, 10/-, 12/6 upwards; buff and yellow hens, 3/-, 4/-, 5/-, 6/-, 7/6, 10/-, in clears cinnamon ticked, pure cinnamons and greens, and a few evenly marked. Properly matched pairs, matched to breed your own winners, at 8/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/- and 21/- upwards. Grand value in dealers' lots of five, ten, or twenty pairs.

Plainhead Norwich, colour-fed or natural colour, at the same prices as Yorkshires, including many that have won, and that can win again, in good company.

CRESTED and CREST-BRED NORWICH.—Cocks and hens, at 7/6, 10/-, 12/6, 15/-, 20/- and 25/-; matched pairs, cock and hen, 12/6, 15/-, 21/-, 25/-.

Lancashires, Coppies, and Plainheads, grand birds at right prices; see current price list. Specially selected Yorkshire and Norwich songsters, at 6/-, 7/6 and 10/- each.

In addition to the above, I have Scotch Fancies, Border Fancies, Cinnamons, Dutch Frills, cage-moulted Linnets and Goldfinches, and Sib-bred hens. Further large arrivals of Hartz Mountain Rollers, Siberian Goldfinches, etc. Remember, full week's approval with every bird sent out. Travelling cages, 3d. extra.

If you require cages, aviaries, or bird-room appliances, send stamp for my 52 page Descriptive Catalogue, which fully describes and illustrates cages, aviaries, etc., printed in colours, and has been described by fanciers and the Press to be the most complete and compact birdy catalogue published, or current price list of birds only, post free:—

George Taylor, Successor to

E. TAYLOR,

The Yorkshire Bird Specialist,

3 & 7, Thornton Road,

BRADFORD.

Only Address, no Branches. Tel. No. 5014.

The Champion Exhibitor of HARROGATE.

I claim the above title, as I have won more prizes, silver cups, medals, etc., etc., than any Novice, AMATEUR, or Champion in Harrogate, with Canaries, in OPEN COMPETITION. Not Novice Classes.

My prices are such that I defy the competition of those men who claim they know, but whose experience in the cage bird Fancy is nil. Yorkshire cocks, Yellow or Buff, 5/6, 6/6, 7/6, 10/-; Yorkshire hens, Yellow or Buff, 4/-, 4/6, 5/-, 6/-, 7/6; matched pairs, 10/-, 12/6, 15/-, real bargains: genuine trained Hartz Mountain Rollers, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-. Send at once, and be convinced who is the man to give you full value for your money.

GEO. HY. BARNWELL, Breeder, Exhibitor and Judge, 13, Lowther Arcade, Harrogate.

CHAMPION YORKSHIRES.

Important Notice. If you want long, slim, straight, upstanding Yorkshires, with feather like silk and in the prime of condition, write or call and see the finest and largest stock in London; every cock bird in full song, and on six days' approval. I have them in all colours. Yellow cocks, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/6; Buff cocks, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6: Yellow hens, 4/6, 5/-, 5/6, 6/-; Buff hens, 4/-, 4/6, 5/-, 5/6: Note the address, Wm. Shaw, 97, Essex-rd., Islington, London, N. Five doors from Cross-street. All cars stop at Cross-street.

AMBLER'S WINNING YORKS.

Owing to illness have decided to offer for sale (except few pairs for breeding) all our champion Yorkshires, including one of the best stock pairs living, £5, worth double for one season's breeding; long stylish unflighted Ticked Buff, rich colour, £3 3/-, can win, gem; clear Buff, winner only time out, feathered like wax, £2 10/-; Buff hen, winner, £2 2/-; also some clinking pairs, long racy birds, perfect type, and feathered like silk, from 15/- to 50/- per pair; single birds proportionate. Please note this strain is one of the oldest and purest in the Fancy, and is the study of a lifetime, having bred, sold, and exhibited some of the biggest champions that have been winning for over 30 years. What we offer are real high-class birds, and this is a chance seldom met with to secure such Yorkshires, as many of them cannot be matched at double the price; approval; satisfaction guaranteed.—Messrs. Amblers, late of Bradford, 138, Westoe-ster-road, Morecambe

A FEW OPINIONS

Received in 1910

83, Derby Road, Ipswich.—We held our annual show on Boxing Day, and I am pleased to tell you that I was successful in winning a special and 1st with the Crested cock, and 3rd prize with the hen, for which I am very much obliged to you. I drew the judge's notice, also our members to the pair of birds I had from you, and they were all astonished at the price I paid for them. W. Harris to W. Rudd.

2, Leopold Street, Lambeth, London.—Received birds safe, and very pleased with them. Shall want some more later on. E. W. Ovenden to W. Rudd.

210, Netherton, Findochty.—I am very pleased to say that the bird arrived here quite safely, and I am highly pleased with it. J. Flett to W. Rudd.

19, Hendre Road, Llangennech.—I received the birds safely, and everything all right. I am perfectly satisfied. T. Williams to W. Rudd.

Bective Abbey, Robinstown, Navan, Ireland.—The birds arrived all right, they are a pair of beauties. J. Crossen to W. Rudd.

Combe Bank Lodge, Brasted, Kent.—I received bird and cage yesterday, and I am very well satisfied and pleased with both, and shall favour you with another order when I require some. S. Strickland to W. Rudd.

Sea View Road, Upper Parkstone, Dorset.—Bird arrived safe, and I am highly delighted with it, it started to sing as soon as unpacked. Thanks for sending such a fine one. Shall be pleased to send to you when wanting more. E. W. Allan to W. Rudd.

I beg respectfully to call attention to the following:—

A good free singing Canary for 5/-, also Champion Norwich or Yorkshire Songsters, 6/6, 7/6, 8/6, 10/6. Cages 3d. extra in all cases, and all sent on one week's approval to any part of Great Britain. I pay all carriage back, and either refund your money in full, or exchange the bird, whichever you prefer. This seems to me straight sailing enough for any reasonable person to be satisfied with.

To Beginners.

If you cannot afford a big price, send for a pair of my correctly matched Norwich at 8/6 or 9/6; and now note this.—In most cases where you send for pairs at this price, you are sent two buffs, often both marked birds—this is where you do not get what is required—well, I send you one marked, and one clear, one buff, and the other yellow. Travelling cage 3d. extra. Then for 3/6 I will send you a Double Breeding Cage, fitted with everything complete, for an immediate start. Total for Birds and Cage 12/3 for 8/6 birds, or 13/3 for 9/6 birds. But I would strongly recommend you to have my Cage No. 100; it has sand drawers, and is fitted with sanitary furniture throughout, and the price is only 5/-.

My special matched pairs of prize-bred Norwich Plainheads at 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, and 20/-; Crested ditto, 15/-, 20/-, 25/-, and 30/-; Yorkshires, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, and 20/-; Lancashires, 25/-, 30/-, 40/-; Cinnamons, 8/6, 9/6, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-; Lizards, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-; Border Fancies, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6.

NORWICH CRESTED AND CRESTED-BRED IN GREAT NUMBER AND RARE QUALITY AND VALUE.

For Lancashires, Lizards, Cinnamons, Dutch Frills, Scotch Fancies, Border Fancies,

SEE MY FREE COPYRIGHT ILLUSTRATED LIST.

Easy Payments by joining my Original Bird Club.

The first ever brought to the notice of fanciers; the first payment system, with its many objections, is double as old as some of those who claim so much for it. To use an old saying, it is as "old as the hills," but has neither their beauty nor usefulness.

BOOKLET FREE.

Finest Talking Parrots. I only deal in Parrots that will make first-class talkers; no rubbish. I am willing at all time to send my Parrots on four week's trial and three months' talking guarantee. Why? Because all my Parrots are young, strong, and reliable. My lifetime has been spent among Grey Parrots, both at home and abroad. I guarantee every customer every satisfaction. Grey Parrots are my special fancy. I have trained them, know their wants, and can give every purchaser a bird that will please him in every way. I can supply grey talkers, not thinkers, that will say almost anything, at reasonable prices. Before you purchase a grey or green Parrot, send for my Booklet, entitled "Talking Parrots." All my birds are sent on four weeks' trial, at my risk. Send postcard for catalogue.—Mrs. Forster, Princes Park Aviaries, Violet Street, Liverpool.

PARROT PROBLEM

solved. For full proofs send postcard at once for my large book, "Parrot Prattle," now containing 168 pages. This is the most wonderful book ever offered free of all charge to all Parrot fanciers. (This "Parrot Prattle" is registered copyright, and all infringers and imitators will be proceeded against). It contains hundreds of testimonials from all parts with full names and addresses, many interesting facts, and gives valuable advice and hints to all Parrot buyers. Full details of our original system of selling Parrots on four weeks' trial, at our risk, which we were the first to introduce. We sell Parrots of all descriptions on four weeks' trial, at our risk, before settlement. Cheapest and best in the Kingdom, and any Parrot sold by us and not giving full satisfaction, will be exchanged any time within twelve months. Remember we lead and others try to follow. Write to other dealers as well as us, and judge for yourselves. Lists of Parrots for sale and above book post free on receipt of postcard. Telephone No. 40 Morecambe.

YORKSHIRE UNION OF C.B.S.

Meeting held at Bradford East Show on January 1st, Mr. R. Halliday (president) occupying the chair. After a lively discussion with regard to one of the minutes (referring to an irregularity at one of the shows) the minutes were passed. Bradford East O.S. applied for permission to allow their challenge trophy to be presented to the winner at the annual prize distribution of the combined societies. This application was granted. The council decided that the gold (novice) medals should be purchased by tender, and several firms were mentioned for the secretary to write to, asking for tenders for same. Two objections came up for consideration. One was from Halifax dealing with a case in which an exhibitor in the novice classes resided in the same house as a champion exhibitor. This being against the rules of the Union, the council decided that the exhibitor in question must forfeit all prize money won at the said show. The other objection was held over for the next council meeting, in order to allow certain witnesses to attend. The Brighouse Society's application was again gone into, but unfortunately owing to the majority of the societies not having held a meeting since the last council meeting, when it was referred back for their consideration, it had to be again postponed until the next council meeting, at Great Horton, on January 15th. The societies that have not already done so, should consider this question by all means before the next council meeting, as it is a very important one, and one which will undoubtedly bear considerable weight in the future government of our shows. Now that we have entered upon a new year, it would be advisable for all societies connected with the Union to try and arrange for their meetings to be held during the first fortnight in each month, as this would facilitate the business of the council, so that when any important question is referred back to the societies, they can deal with it expeditiously and thereby remove many obstacles which hinder business under the present system. There are only about half-a-dozen societies that hold their meetings during the latter half of the month, and I feel sure these could meet the wishes of the council, and arrange for their meetings to be held during the first fortnight. Some have altered them since last year. Another item which should not be lost sight of now, is Mr. H. J. Chittenden's scheme (which he brought before the council some time back), with reference to all societies holding shows, arranging their classification early, and then printing it in the Union Handbook, thus saving each society a considerable amount of expense, and giving each member of the Union a handbook that shall contain nearly everything worth knowing about management, shows, rules, members' names, and addresses. It would, in fact, be a Union encyclopædia. A few items of new business brought the meeting to a close, the president kindly wishing all the delegates present a prosperous New Year. I, too, heartily wish the Yorkshire Union and its members a bright, happy, and prosperous New Year.—H. HILL, Secretary.

Holmes, 21; 4th prize, Mr. W. Mackwell, 14; 5th prize, Mr. T. C. Crawhall, 13; 6th prize, Mr. A. Lloyd, 7. "Illingworth Cup": Messrs. J. Haigh and Son, 97; Mr. A. H. Waters, 55; Mr. Alf. Grey, 43; Mr. A. Humphries, 44; Messrs. Greenwood and Pickles, 43; Mr. H. Snowden, 24; Mr. Geo. Harland, 16; Mr. J. Eyre, 15; along with others lower in points. "Ramsden Special": Champion section—Winner, Mr. A. H. Waters, 148 points; runner-up, Messrs. J. Haigh and Son, 142. Novice section—Winner, Mr. H. Snowden, 107; runners-up, Messrs. Greenwood and Pickles, 9. CAGE BIRDS AMATEUR PRIZES: 1st prize, Mr. H. Snowden, 107 points; 2nd prize, Messrs. Greenwood and Pickles, 94 points; 3rd prize, Mr. A. Humphries, 57 points.

Meeting of committee held on December 18th, at the Talbot Hotel, Halifax, Mr. F. Hammond occupying the chair. The following new members were accepted: Messrs. H. Snowden (Morecambe), F. A. Hargreaves (Stockport), T. Tesseyman (Leeds), and Messrs. Clayton and Smith (Driffield). Points gained in pair class at Newcastle not to count for competitions of the O.N.P.C. Points gained at York Show to count from 1 to 6. Winners of prizes gained in O.N.P.C. competitions to have the option of selecting to the value stated in year book except where already allotted. The secretary was instructed to write winners of same for their selections. Decided to join in with the other specialist clubs again in prize distribution. The following were elected to represent us: Messrs. A. Haigh, F. Hammond, and O. Mitchell. Decided that a gold medal, to the value of £1 1s., be awarded each winner of the "Illingworth" cup, and that a member be entitled to receive only one medal, and in the event of the member winning it more than once, each win to be recorded on medal awarded. Same committee as for prize distribution are to purchase club prizes. Date of annual meeting decided for same date as prize distribution. Notice of proposed alterations to rules, etc., submitted to be brought forward at general annual meeting, viz.: "That any society desiring the club's patronage must give all particulars in reference to money prizes to be awarded at their show"; and that no society's application be considered who award less than four money prizes, the same to be not less than: 1st prize 10s., 2nd prize 6s., 3rd prize 4s., 4th prize 2s. Also additional bye-law to be inserted in the year books: "That the secretary of each society receiving the club's patronage be required to forward to the club's secretary, free, a catalogue, with awards marked, by first post possible after judging." A vote of thanks to chairman brought meeting to a close. All subscriptions are now due, and the secretary would be pleased to receive same in order to balance up. Will members whose subscriptions are owing kindly forward same on?—O. MITCHELL, Hon. Sec.

Twitterings.

I find CAGE BIRDS of great interest, writes Lady Edith Douglas Pennant, and beg to renew my subscription.

We regret to hear that the secretary of Whitburn C.B.S., Mr. J. Forrest, has recently been laid up through illness.

Wood Green report states that Mr. E. J. Gill's Crest was awarded special for best in show, and two others, whereas the bird belongs to me.—C. W. PENNY (London, N.).

Our membership for 1908, writes Mr. F. E. Hawkes, hon. secretary of the Liverpool Bird Breeders' Association, was 62, but we start 1910 with a total of 77 fully-paid-up members.

I have been elected secretary of the Barnsley and Dis. C.B.S., and all communications should in future be addressed to me at 15, Wright Terrace, Grace Street, Barnsley, writes Mr. F. C. Sims.

I have now taken over the hon. secretaryship of the Ilford F. and F.S., writes Mr. W. H. Drew, 379, Romford Road, Forest Gate, E. Our new headquarters are the White Horse Hotel, Ilford Broadway, Ilford.

The date of our next open show was given incorrectly by me in last week's CAGE BIRDS, writes Mr. W. H. Wright, hon. secretary of the Carlisle and Dis. C.B.S. It should have been January 2nd, 1911, and not January 1st.

We have decided to extend entries closing to first post January 14th, as schedules have been delayed by printer, writes Mr. W. Geddis, hon. secretary, Larne and Dis. C.B.A. Any fancier can have a schedule by sending his address on a postcard.

Kindly announce for the benefit of exhibitors who have applied for schedules that these were not ready until January 4th, but that all were posted as soon as received, writes Mr. Daniel John, secretary, Llanelly Show, so that fanciers will understand the delay.

I have resigned the secretaryship of the Stocksbridge and Dis. C.B.S., and Mr. Fred Elliott, Old Haywoods, Deepcar, near Sheffield, has been appointed hon. secretary in my place, to whom future communications should be addressed, writes Mr. Harry E. Wilkinson.

Kindly rectify a clerical error in the report of our members' show in last week's issue of CAGE BIRDS, writes Mr. H. Hill, secretary, Bradford East O.S. It says, these prizes will be presented at the third annual tea and concert on January 8th; this should be January 18th.

I have relinquished my appointment with Messrs. Fox and Lewis, Ltd., writes Mr. E. S. Lugg (Lewisham), and have joined the well-known firm of Messrs. Spillers and Bakers, Ltd., of Cardiff, London, and Newcastle-on-Tyne, who are opening out a bird, seed, and food department in connection with their extensive London factories.

The 12th annual members' show (under C.B.U. rules) of the Manchester and Northern Counties O.S., is being held this Saturday (January 8th), in the drawing-room of the Free Trade Hall, where visitors may depend upon seeing an excellent array of birds. The schedule comprises no less than 62 classes, the judge is Mr. H. W. Battye, and the exhibition will be opened at 12 o'clock noon.

There is an error in the Prescot Cage Bird Show's schedule, writes Mr. John Platt, the hon. secretary. Class 14 should read: Border A.V. hen, yellow or buff, except even-marked. Will intending exhibitors kindly note?

The Coventry Godiva C.B.S., writes Mr. W. H. Bray, the hon. secretary, have decided to hold their next annual show (under C.B.U. rules) on October 15th, 1910, when we hope to receive the continued support of fanciers.

Our year is now up, so that if anyone wishes to become a member of the Guisborough and Dis. "Priory" C.B.S., will they please send name and address to me, at 58, Bolchow Street, Guisborough, Yorkshire, writes Mr. R. Mays, the hon. secretary.

At a meeting of the Morriston and Dis. C.B.S., writes Mr. W. H. Lewis, the hon. secretary, it was decided to alter the date of our annual show from the third Thursday in November next to December 8th, which date we are hoping will not clash with any other society's. Will all fanciers take note of this, and we hope they will rally round us as they have in the past. We thank one and all for their past patronage.

The Leadgate and Dis. C.B.S. are holding their first annual members' show in the Church Square Hall, Leadgate, on January 8th, writes Mr. J. A. Turnbull, the hon. secretary. We have a good entry up to the time of writing, and a cup presented by Master T. W. Walton, son of our chairman, will be competed for with three nominated birds gaining most points. Our judge, Mr. J. Hands (Crookhill Ryton), will find some keen competition.

OBITUARY.

Mr. JNO. PUDNEY (Kidwelly).

It is with profound regret, write Messrs. Davies and Wilkins, that we have to report the death of one of the most enthusiastic members of the Kidwelly F.S. in the person of Mr. Jno. Pudner (of Pudner Bros.) who, after a long and painful illness, died on Christmas day. He was a faithful member of the society, and took great interest in your CAGE BIRDS. This last season he was successful in Hybrid breeding. He had won a great number of prizes with his celebrated Norwich Canaries and British birds. I think all bird fanciers will sympathise with his parents, relatives, and the Kidwelly fanciers in their irreparable loss.

Dr. BOWDLER SHARPE.

Ornithologists will learn with regret of the demise of Dr. R. Bowdler Sharpe, the distinguished head of the Bird Room of the British Museum, and probably the foremost ornithologist of his day, who died on December 25th last, aged 62 years. Dr. Sharpe's knowledge of birds was marvellous, and no one ever brought a bird before him, no matter from what part of the universe, without his being able to identify it, and say whence it came. Dr. Sharpe practically built up the national collection of birds, which to-day stands easily first among collections throughout the world. When he entered the British Museum, in 1872, the Department of Zoology possessed some 30,000 specimens of birds. At the present time 400,000 would be under the mark. Dr. Sharpe was certainly a born naturalist. Even as a child he was "mad upon birds." He was educated at Peterborough and Loughborough Grammar Schools, and when he came up to London he had already done some original work on birds. He began his life work with a humble clerkship at Messrs. W. H. Smith and Son's, the well-known publishers, but after a while made his way into Mr. Quaritch's, in Piccadilly, where he had good opportunities of seeing the finest books on birds. In 1869 he was appointed the first librarian of the Zoological Society.

Dr. SLOAN (Chirnside).

It is with deep feelings of regret, writes Mr. J. Patterson (Chirnside), that I have to report the death of Dr. Sloan, who died here on December 31st in his 30th year. He was an ardent lover of nature in every form; every bird and flower found in him a friend. During my long enforced illness he was my constant attendant, his cheery way making my life happy. Deceased's general hail-fellow-well-met disposition endeared him to everyone. He truly gave his life for others, being without fear and without reproach, and never saying a word or doing a deed which those whom he leaves behind would wish to forget. Much sympathy is felt for his young wife and two little ones who mourn his loss severely.

I am compelled to sell all my birds on account of my ill health, writes Mr. J. Sykes (Halifax). I am very sorry to have to part with them.

I have bred 19 young in two seasons (including two winners) from my natural-colour marked cock and one hen, writes Mr. G. Notley (Bedford). He has also won two firsts and special, two seconds and v.h.c., and now the couple are ready to start business again.

The annual old show of the Green Canary Association is being held this Saturday (January 8th), at the Caledonian Schools, Oldham Street, Renshaw Street, Liverpool. 68 classes (including 9 for British birds and Mules) are provided, and Messrs. A. Hirst and J. W. Bancroft will place the awards.

Crystal Palace Cage Bird Show schedules will be posted to known exhibitors on Tuesday, January 11th. Any exhibitor not receiving a copy by Wednesday, January 12th, should apply for one. Advertisements inserted in catalogue only at following rates:—Full page 30s., half-page 15s., quarter-page 7s. 6d.; breeders' cards and trade cards, 2s. 6d. each.—J. W. Important Notice is now in course of preparation, and will be published early in February, as usual, and be on sale at the forthcoming Crystal Palace Show, and in the hands of all subscribers, we hope, by Friday, February 4th next. To enable us to keep our word we ask the generous co-operation of readers in sending particulars required in its compilation, also their advertisements, at the earliest possible moment. Any suggestions for new features or for the improvement of present features will be welcomed, and receive every consideration.
To All Our Readers.

Secretaries of All Societies

devoted to the interests of the cage-bird hobby should send us full particulars of same at once for inclusion in our Alphabetical List of Cage-Bird Clubs. We want the full name of the Society, the latest list of its officials, the place and time of meetings and the nights, the entrance fee and the subscription. As this is the only directory to those associations catering for cage bird fanciers in existence, no society can afford to be missing from the list. Members themselves should make a point of seeing that their society is included. Secretaries who have changed their addresses should not fail to notify us. We want our list to be thoroughly up-to-date, and thoroughly complete.

who have officiated at any recognised show can have their name and address inserted in our list of judges by sending us particulars on a post card, stating what varieties (if any) they specialise in. There is no charge whatever. Any judge at present on our list who may have changed his address during the past year should notify us at once. This list, remember, is the only complete one of its kind, and is universally consulted by show officials.

To the Bird Trade.

Our directory to the bird trade is a feature that no dealer in birds, or foods, or medicines, or appliances of any kind whatsoever, can neglect. It is a permanent record of his address, as well as of his specialities, and forms an invaluable guide to the fanciers in his own town as well as all over the world. No charge is made for the inclusion of any bona-fide trader, but the name can be thrown up in heavy black type on payment of 1s. (one shilling).

TO ALL BREEDERS AND EXHIBITORS AND ADVERTISERS GENERALLY.

For Breeders' Cards, and other displayed Advertisements, business bringers from All over the World, see the low terms quoted on page 642 this week.

These are Advertisements which at a very low cost will bring you business for a whole year.

Write us at once for any particulars you may require.

THE MANAGER, "CAGE BIRDS ANNUAL,"
154, FLEET STREET, LONDON, E.C.

There is a slight printer's omission in our schedule, viz., Class 72, which should read: Mule, any other colour, or Hybrid, writes Mr. Chas. C. Hodgson, hon. secretary, Northallerton Show, January 22nd.

My brother bought a Goldfinch on the day our King was married (we were both boys then), writes Mr. G. Cripps (Oxford), and this bird we kept for over 11 years. It was always fed upon hemp seed, with plenty of green food in season. I have now four Goldies which I bred indoors last year (two cocks and two hens). They were fed and brought up by the Goldies in just similar manner to a nest of Canaries.

Through business arrangements I have been very reluctantly compelled to give up the Fancy, writes Mr. John S. Hill, 17, Beauvale Road, Wilford Grove, Nottingham, and I have left Swinefleet, near Goole, and come to this address. Some of my birds have been taken charge of by my brother, and the rest I hope to advertise shortly. However, I should not like to miss my CAGE BIRDS, and hope to keep in touch with all old friends in that manner. It has been a great wrench to me, and you can be assured that, whenever opportunity presents itself, I shall again take up my old hobby of bird-breeding.

Rare Insectivorous Birds of Norfolk.

By W. LOWNE.

The Warbler that Walks.

THE GRASSHOPPER WARBLER.—This is a summer visitant to Norfolk arriving in April and leaving us again in September. It is not at all common anywhere. Its powers of concealment are very great. The note of the species, if once heard, can never be afterwards mistaken for the sound of a Grasshopper or cricket, however striking the resemblance; besides, the length of time for which it is continued, provided the bird is not disturbed, is much greater.

I soon desired to obtain some Norfolk specimens. I have never had more than three adults, but I hand-reared a nest of young ones some three years ago, which I kept till the following October, but I was unsuccessful in moulting them.

These birds are met with at Hickling amongst the herbage and growth on the land which surround the Broads, where they are found by the marshmen. I have received nests and eggs from these men, who find them when cutting the rough grass where these birds frequent. And it is only these men who are successful in finding the nests of these ventriloquists. Should you catch sight of a bird of this species, it is generally crouching amongst the thick growth, as if trying not to be observed.

These birds, in captivity, have a peculiar habit of walking much after the manner of the Water Rail. They are easily distinguished from other Warblers by the wedged-shape tail, and the markings on the back.

Rare Flycatchers.

THE RED-BREASTED FLYCATCHER.—A young female of this rare species was shot at Rollesby, a village nine miles from Yarmouth, on the 10th of December, 1896, at rather an unexpected time, being so very late for a bird of this species. Another was seen by a good observer near the sea in the following September. This made four specimens for Norfolk.

THE PIED FLYCATCHER.—This species I consider worthy of a place in my list here. But it undoubtedly visits us annually in the spring, and again towards the autumn, as far as my own observations go.

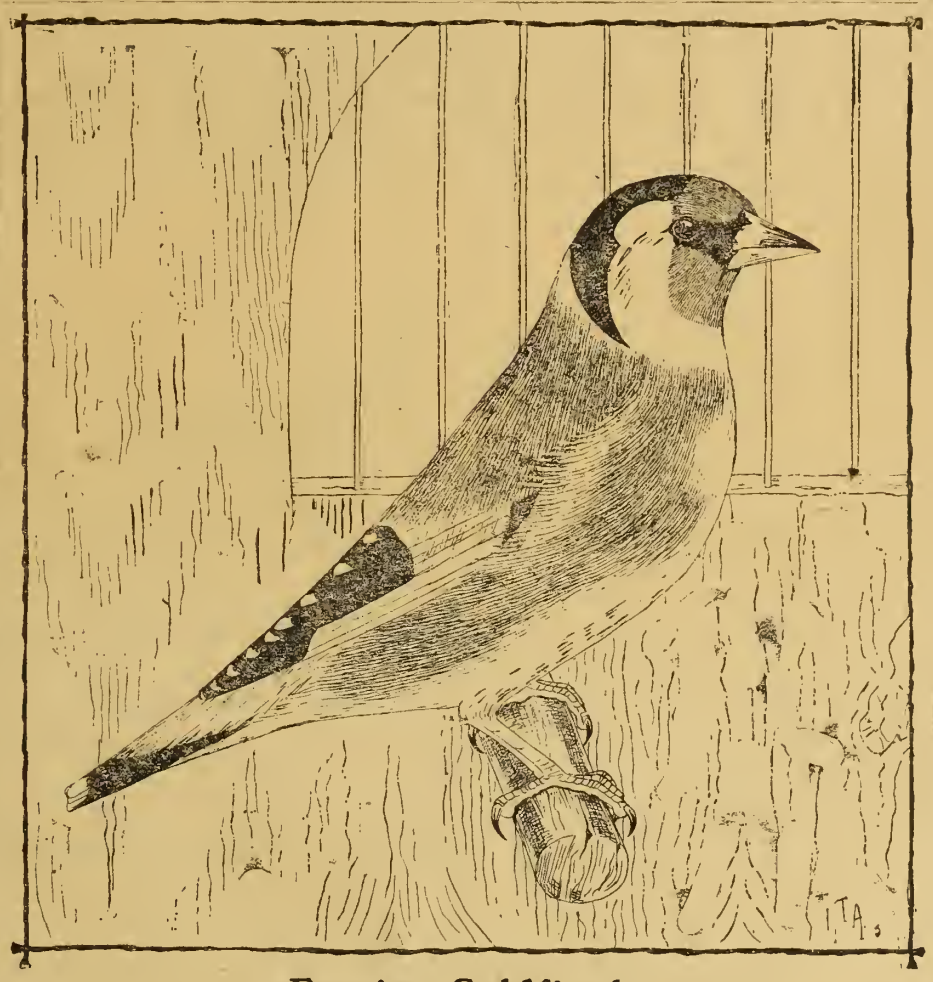
It is said to have nested with us, as Mr. Rising, of Horsey, stated he obtained a nest with eggs in 1848. The following year was remarkable for the number of these Flycatchers that were met with in different parts of the county, and recorded in the "Zoologist." I have occasionally, during the last 26 years, had an adult specimen brought me to be preserved.

Some three years ago, on September 15th, I caught one of these birds in a spring trap. It was in company with two others hawking for insects along a row of willow trees on our denes. Its plaintive note could be distinctly heard when the bird was hunting for food. Last spring I had an adult one brought in which soon settled down to cage life. It secured first prize at Peterborough Show in October, in a strong class. But it went off in colour, as it did not moult.

A Redstart that Winters Here.

THE BLACK REDSTART.—Until the year 1848 this rare species had probably not been noticed in the county of Norfolk, but on the 31st of October of that year an adult female was picked up near the Battery at Yarmouth. Two more were obtained the first week in November of the following year. But between January and March of the next year an unusual number were met with in various parts of the county.

This bird has always been considered a winter migrant, being with us when its allied species, the Common Redstart, has left us, together with other soft-bill migrants, to winter in a warmer climate.



The specimens I have met with have generally been recorded in the months from October to February. One adult male I exhibited at the Crystal Palace, where it secured first prize. This bird was caught in January, 1903. In this year some were seen on the 2nd of April, and again on the 11th two females were brought me alive.

These birds appear to be more contented when caged than the Common Redstarts. They seldom get into the habit of breaking their tails and so damaging their plumage as the last-named generally do. I moulted an adult female which was afterwards sent by our old friend Mr. J. Hills to Sydney, where it was very successful on the show bench. Another specimen I sent to Scotland, where it secured several prizes for its new owner. As hens they are not to be despised for showing.

White and Blue-headed Wagtails.

THE WHITE WAGTAIL.—Though often looked for in this county, this species has been met with on but few occasions. In spring it may be best known by its light grey back, which colour is continued to the root of the tail; but at other seasons it is rather difficult to distinguish from the Pied Wagtails.

A pair was seen at Feltwell in September, 1883. Some few years afterwards two were met with on our golf links. I have had two which were brought me alive, but I found them to be much shyer and more timid than the Pied, and would not settle down to cage life.

Foreign Goldfinch.

First Prize at the Scottish National Show for Mr. D. M'Lennan (Edinburgh).

THE BLUE-HEADED WAGTAIL.—But few examples of this rare species have been met with in Norfolk. The first is in the Norwich Museum, and was taken at Sheringham in May, 1842. The next example occurred at Yarmouth in April, 1851. They have been seen in the adjoining county in company with Yellow Wagtails.

A female was obtained at Stalham in May, 1873; another was taken at Blakeney, in September, 1896; and one was brought me alive by a local bird-catcher in the spring of that year, one which he described to me as a good old Yellow. This bird I kept for some months, but it was so very wild there was no possible chance of its ever being tamed. So I now have it in skin form.

THE RICHARD'S PIPIT.—This species has been taken less than a dozen times, and all are recorded as being met with at Yarmouth. The months of November and April are mentioned as being the time of year these rare Pipits have been taken. Five of them were shot by one gunner at different times, which is some twenty years ago. Two have been taken at different times to my knowledge by bird catchers. One of these is now in my possession, and was caught on the 21st of October, 1907. These birds are easily distinguishable from any of the other Pipits in being much larger and very long on the leg.

THE SCANDINAVIAN ROCK PIPIT.—This is a doubtfully distinct species, but whatever rank it can be finally assigned to, it has occurred three times in Norfolk. Two were met with near Norwich in 1864, and one at Horsey by Mr. Booth, of Brighton, in March, 1871. Some naturalists consider it a Rufous-breasted form of the Rock Pipit. I have met with several of the ordinary Rock Pipits, which generally put in an appearance here in the month of October. Those in plumage have been of a very dark ground colour, but I have never met with any to convince me of their being anything different from the common Rock Pipit.

THE TAWNY PIPIT.—A female of this species was netted on Yarmouth Denes on the 9th of October, 1897. It was in somewhat faded plumage. It was exhibited at the Norfolk and Norwich Naturalists' Society's meeting by Mr. Southwell, who took the opportunity of giving a resume of the status of Norfolk ornithology. This specimen is believed to be a new addition to the Norfolk list.

THE WATER PIPIT.—A female of this species again was shot near the beach, and was pronounced by Mr. Howard Saunders to be a Water Pipit, as indicated by the outer pair of tail feathers which were more than half white, as also were the tips of the second pair. The plumage was much worn. It is the first specimen identified for Norfolk.

THE SHORE LARK.—The first recorded specimen of the Shore Lark in Norfolk, and probably the first ever recognised in England, was the one referred to by Yarrell in the year 1831. This bird was shot at Sheringham in the month of March. A second example some few years later was procured at the same place. One was shot at Yarmouth in November, 1850.

Next in order of date come those that were met with at Blakeney in the first week in March, 1855. A further interval of seven years now elapsed without any more examples being observed in the county. In the winter of 1861 and '62, however, between the first week of November and the 11th of January no less than five were obtained along the coast. Of these birds, singularly enough, all proved to be males. Another was secured at Yarmouth in 1862, and others are recorded as being taken in 1865, also at other seasons.

The first recorded in my own notes was in the year 1880, when two pairs were secured on our denes. A great demand arose by local collectors for these (then called rare American Shore Larks) up till a few years later, when most collections contained one or more. After this the bird catchers turned their attention to taking the birds alive, they being more valuable to exhibitors as show birds. I have had a number of them at various times, and have been very successful with them on the show bench.

Although these birds are difficult to moult in captivity I have kept one in perfect health for three years without its showing any signs of moulting, either in the spring or autumn.

There was but one female to my knowledge caught last autumn, although it has been stated that these birds have been met with up to the month of March. I have seldom had any fresh caught specimens after the month of December.

They are very silly birds, and can be caught by any novice who cares to risk setting his nets on the rough ground which they frequent—generally amongst refuse and dirt, where they, no doubt, meet with insects. But I have generally found them feeding on a grass seed on our denes, which are a fine feeding ground for such birds. These birds are distinguishable from any other kind of Lark or Pipit, as they crouch on the ground and run much after the manner of mice.

THE WALL-CREEPER.—This bird may be considered as doubtful a Britisher as any I have mentioned, but the occurrence of one in Norfolk (it was taken at Stratton Strawless, as long ago as October 30th, 1792), it is said by some entitles it to a place in the Norfolk list. The interesting series of letters from Gilbert White to Robert Marsham were entrusted to the Norfolk and Norwich Naturalists' Society, which brought this interesting occurrence to the notice of local ornithologists.

The Smallest Britisher.

THE FIRE-CRESTED WREN.—This is the smallest of our British birds. There are but three recorded instances of this rare species having been actually obtained in Norfolk. The first one is referred to by Yarrell as caught on the rigging of a ship a few miles off the coast of Norfolk in the early part of October, 1836. The second was procured at Yarmouth in November, 1843, and the third I received about twenty years ago from a fisherman who caught it on board his boat, although when brought to me it had been dead some time, and was in a dried-up condition.

The mark which distinguishes this species from the Goldcrest is a buff band which runs across the forehead. Numbers of Gold Crests reach our shores in October every year, and frequent gardens and the furze bushes on our denes. Many come to grief, however, being an easy capture for some cats—I have known one cat to capture half a dozen of these tiny mites in a day.

Concluding Notes.

Since writing my paper I have received the following Norfolk notes for 1907 from Mr. J. H. Gurney, of Keswick Hall, near Norwich, which notes are reprinted from the "Zoologist":—March 29th, a Black Redstart was caught by Mr. Wyrley Birch in a glass porch at West Bilney Lodge; May 4th, a Hoopoe was seen at Lammas by Mr. Walter Rye; May 8th, a handsome adult Red Flycatcher was seen in a garden near Northrepps; May 23rd, a Grasshopper Warbler's nest with eggs was found near Fakenham.

The month of October brought news of more Black Redstarts having been seen; also a Bluethroat Warbler on the 10th near Blakeney, which occurrence was a rather late one. During a gale on the 12th of the same month a flock of Richard's Pipits seemed to have been blown to the coast when some half a dozen were reported as seen. On the 29th of the same month again another example of the Yellow-browed Warbler was obtained, and on the following day a Red-breasted Flycatcher was identified. The last day of the month brought a new addition to the Norfolk list—the Desert Wheatear, which brings the total list of Norfolk birds up to 317, which, I think, will compare favourably with that of any other county. The Desert Wheatears have been expected for some time, but they do not appear to have been identified either in Norfolk or Suffolk until the capture of this bird. This specimen is recorded as being the second taken in England. The bird is stated to be an adult one.

On the same date (October 31st) a Fire-Crested Wren lost its way, and was caught at Yarmouth. November brought news of Grey Shrikes, a Waxwing, and a Nutcracker being seen between Yarmouth and Lowestoft. A Cream-coloured Fieldfare, a Cinnamon Redwing, and a Silver-coloured Blackbird were all secured in the county.

In bringing my lecture to a close, I thank you for your kind attention, and hope it may prove to have been of interest to you, so that you do not consider your time wasted. This is, I may say, my first venture before a meeting of this kind.

The Management of Scotch Fancy and Belgian Canaries.

By THOMAS SMITH.

The Belgian Canary in its most popular days did not receive the attention it deserved in Scotland. Its most ardent admirers were content to breed a single pair, to supply their own wants in the way of crossing with the Scotch Fancy Canary to keep up the back of that variety.

Where are the Belgians?

Now fanciers are in the position that they can hardly get a genuine Belgium. Dealers who were wont to visit Antwerp—the home of the Belgian—say there is no use now in going to Belgium, because the class of bird worth breeding from cannot be secured. The breeders of real Belgians have either paired their good stock away, or have given up the Fancy, and their places are not being filled by breeders of the same calibre; so that now the loss is felt by every breeder of the Scotch Fancy Canary, the cry is heard everywhere: "Now that we cannot get the right stamp of a Belgian, how are we to obtain the requisite shoulders and drive?"

It is certainly most unfortunate that proper Belgians are not available when in great demand. It has been suggested that the Belgian might be resuscitated by putting together a pair of large Scotch Fancy Canaries with the heaviest tops that can be got, for the sole purpose of importing shoulder and drive characteristics. The circle of the body and wing, it is said, need not be taken into account.

I can quite perceive that it will be well nigh impossible to carry out the proposal, but as it would be for the benefit of the Scotch Fancy Canary, and for the good of the Fancy at large, strong effort should be made to raise up a Belgian that shall prove a credit to fanciers, and put the Scotch Fancy Canary on the pedestal it once enjoyed.

Points of the "Hump-back" Canary.

As previously mentioned, the chief point in a Belgian Canary is the head, which should be small and neat. Too much stress cannot be placed on these qualities. The Belgian of thirty years ago was famed for its small neat head. The neck should be long and thin; it cannot be too long, in fact, or slender; the length of neck adds to the droop. The droop should be direct, and so pronounced as to give the bird the appearance of doing its very best to touch its feet or the perch with its beak.

The shoulders should be high, broad and massive. These qualities were never more sought after than to-day, consequently their acquisition is in great demand, and ought to be cultivated at all costs. The shoulders should be padded between the pinions, it being no easy matter to breed out the hollow which is too often to be found in the average Scotch Fancy Canary. The back should be long, broad and straight, and the body long and straight and tapering. It must be long, to keep in the size in the crossing with the Scotch Fancy Canary. The body is usually straight and tapered, and while there is no objection to one's adhering to this an inclining to the circle need not be a disqualification.

The chest ought to be deep through from back to front, and clean cut out in front. These qualities are of the greatest importance and should be developed to the fullest degree. The wings should be long and fitted into the body neatly, meeting evenly at the tips, so as to present a complete and finished aspect. The tail should be narrow and straight, and the legs long and straight for preference. The thighs should be well covered with feathers.

The Quality of Feather.

A difference of opinion exists as to the quality of feather. The most popular kind is the smooth and close fitting feather. The closeness of the fit affords one the best means of getting to know the actual size of the bird, and its properties, and that is much sought after in these days when fanciers wish to know what they are getting when making a purchase—especially a specimen upon which so much depends for years to come.

A rough feathered Belgian is not to be despised, however, if it excels in other qualities, but it looks larger than its tidy neighbour, and due allowance has to be made for the shaggy feather in estimating the size.

Pairing for Type.

It would well repay a breeder to put up a couple of pairs, unrelated, and as near to the true Belgian type as can be found, and to breed them with the object of founding a pure Belgian Canary, upon which reliance may be placed. The best of Scotch Fancy Canaries in by-gone days, which were superior to the present-day winners, descended direct in many cases from a single Belgian Canary, which founded a strain famed for excellence of quality and merit. Therefore, great stress should be placed upon the Belgian type of Canary.

A Scotch Fancy Canary with very good quality and void of heavy shoulders and decided droop, lacks that which makes it a true Scotch Fancy Canary of the style which is sought after far and near. There are fanciers who can remember how eagerly the return of the dealer or fancier who crossed in search of Belgians was looked forward to. Those who had the first look at, and pick of, the consignment, considered themselves fortunate. We would like to have a repetition of the experience of those times, when the breeder was filled with that splendid enthusiasm which carried him forward with noble aspirations, and enabled him to produce large, heavy shouldered, massive Scotch Fancy Canaries.

It is acknowledged on all hands that Belgian qualities are required. Very well then, let us have them. And should ever the proper Belgian be secured again, let us preserve and keep it.

Something Worth Having.

Pure Belgians are something worth having. No bird is more easily trained to show itself. Almost as soon as it takes to the perch it displays its properties. At about five or six weeks of age the young bird can be run into a show cage having one perch, and the cage has only to be held up, when the bird's legs will become rigid, the back and tail will become stiffer, and the bird will strain every nerve to exhibit itself to the delighted gaze of its owner. The winning Belgian Canary must be free, that is, quick and ready to show when required.

The slow bird, if bred from reliable parents, may be as good as the successful Belgian for breeding with, and should not be despised. But with the experience the Fancy has had in the disappearance of the real Belgian Canary, one cannot be too careful in guarding every Belgian quality one can get hold of. Belgian blood is indispensable to the successful breeding of the Scotch Fancy Canary.

The Belgian Canary, too, is fairly hardy, and can stand our climate as well as any other Canary. It should be carefully handled; the cage, too, should not be lifted by the top, as it frightens the occupant, and upsets it. Some specimens, upset in this manner, take some time to recover. The Belgian should be kindly and carefully handled.

Canary Breeding for Beginners

By CLAUDE ST. JOHN.
Post Free 7d.

A practical, up-to-date guide to Canary Breeding, designed specially for the use of the beginner in the hobby.

Contains many helpful illustrations, and deals very fully, and in an easily-understandable manner, with the choice, sexing, and mating of the birds, feeding for condition, the cages and their fittings, the bird-room, egg-food, nest-building, rearing, and moulting the young, colour-feeding, training for show, etc.

All the details of bird-breeding explained, while it shows the way out of all difficulties likely to confront the breeder.

CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet St., London, E.C.

Nests of birds, Poultry, etc., should be regularly sprinkled with KEATING'S POWDER, especially when hens are sitting. Don't forget to do this just previous to the eggs hatching, to destroy the Red Mite. It kills all insects, harmless to everything else.

ORNITHOLOGICAL ODDMENTS.

Author of "The World's Birds."

The Crested Dove.

I must confess that I think that on the whole the Doves are, with the exception of our common tame Collared Dove, a decidedly uninteresting lot of birds, and I am not at all surprised that so few people care for them. There are, however, some other species to be found here and there that can claim some distinction, and of these the chief is certainly the Australian Crested Dove, which does not seem to be so well known in aviculture as it deserves. This species is not only elegant in form, but handsome in colour—the two things very rarely go together in Doves—its delicate browns, greys, and dull pink being set off by two metallic white-edged bars on the wing, somewhat similar to the decoration so common in the duck tribe. In this Dove, however, the bar, in addition to being double, has a very wonderful play of colour; in some lights one part is bronze and the other purple, while in others the colours are green and crimson.

A Good Bird for the Open.

Although this bird, like Doves generally, stands confinement well, its full beauty can never be appreciated unless it has a great deal of room, although it is only about the size of the common tame Dove. This is because one of its greatest charms is its activity of movement; it runs nearly as fast as a Partridge, and shoots along on the wing so fast that one has hardly time to say "there it goes" before it has gone. This is, of course, when one sees it in the open, and it has been successfully tried at complete liberty in the Zoological Gardens, where a number were turned out some time ago by the Avicultural Society. They have bred in the open, and it has struck me that they have been rather more in evidence during 1909 than the year previous, in spite of the cold and wet. Some, of course, must have fallen a prey to cats, and some have undoubtedly strayed; I saw one myself, in the year of their liberation, which had been captured at Alexandra Park, and was then in a dealer's shop, still wearing the ring which was put on all the specimens before their liberation. These birds, although a delight to aviculturists visiting the Zoo, were not noticed at all by the general public, as far as I could see; but this was, I think, solely because there are so many other attractions there; in an ordinary public park they would be much appreciated, I feel sure.

Behaviour of Green Bulbuls.

The gold-fronted Green Bulbul, about which I was writing the other day, has always been a great favourite with me, and there are several points about it to which I should still like to direct attention. One is that this is one of those birds which do well, and look well, both in a large and small space. It has a strong, graceful flight, and hovers well, and at the same time, though very short on the leg, it hops about actively and constantly, and will keep its condition for years in a cage, while being a particularly hardy bird, and like all fruit eaters, easily fed. It particularly likes anything it can lick up with its long extensible tongue. Like most of these honey-sucking birds, it is gifted with strong individuality, which often takes the form of a savage and domineering temper. A fierce specimen is quite inadmissible among birds weaker than itself; but, to do the bird justice, it is no hypocrite, but lets you know at once when introduced into the company of other birds, whether it is going to behave itself amicably or otherwise, and adheres to its chosen policy consistently.

A Favourite of Nature.

It is curious to notice how attractions and advantages seen at times to be showered on some particular species, while others are left out in the cold, as it were. In the case of this bird, Nature has been prodigal of her gifts; though active and courageous, it is endowed with plumage which is of the highest protective value, making it invisible as soon as it alights among the leaves, so that one rarely sees it in a wild state in India, though it must be a common bird from the numbers kept captive. Though inhabiting a genial region, it is so thickly clad with soft plumage that it feels like a ball of wool when taken in the hand, and, though its plumage is exceedingly beautiful as well as good for concealment, it is a bird of great vocal powers and an accomplished mocker. Rutledge told me the late King of Oude had one which could sing the song of the Nightingale completely, which is as good as anything the sober-plumaged mocking-bird can do.

Wild Bird Life.

The Woods in January.

During each of the four seasons there is a peculiar charm in woodland scenery that the true lover of Nature and wild bird life cannot resist. In the very early spring-time, when the buds begin to show traces of the green clothing of the bare twigs, and in the summer, when added to its other charms are the pleasure and delight we feel when hunting through the underwood and saplings for hidden nests—the woods have innumerable attractions. But in January the summer beauty has vanished; everything is gaunt and bare, cold and dreary. And yet in spite of this, if we seek the woodlands in the proper mood we shall find much of interest, and plenty to note and investigate.

The shelter given to wild bird life by the green canopy of summer is no longer present, and we are able to watch the antics of the tiny Titmice at the very summit of the tall trees, where they spend hours passing from branch to branch, searching around every bud for tiny insects which one would hardly think existed at such an altitude. While standing quietly against the trunk of some giant beech, we see the plump Ring Doves preening themselves in the winter sunlight. Their plumage is full of delicate beauty, with a touch of extra colour on the breast and neck, considerably enhanced by the golden light. Unlike the Crow family, they sit for a length of time without moving, quietly digesting acorns and beechmast, or the food collected in the neighbouring fields.

Blue-Headed Wagtails in Kent.

The doings of the Wagtail family are just now particularly interesting, as the birds are constantly on the move. As they are undergoing considerable alteration in plumage, identification is by no means an easy matter. A few Blue-headed birds have lately been seen in the south of Kent, where they have probably nested this summer, for no doubt they do so in this district, and along the Sussex downs, and may be counted as one of our breeding species.

Evidence for the Owl.

In the Leeds Museum there are about a dozen specimens of the castings of the long-eared Owl. Not one of these betrays sings of birds being the Owl's victims. They are composed entirely of mice fur and beetle casts.

The American Sparrow.

In the great blizzard which swept America twenty years ago, multitudes of Sparrows were destroyed, and the friends of the birds point to the devastation done by the caterpillars and grubs during the following summer.

Dabchick and Moorhen.

The tiny Dab-chick is scientifically known as the "Lesser Grebe." He has large powers of adaptability, and wherever the mournful croak of the Moorhen is heard, one may be pretty certain that the Dabchick is not far off.

Where Birds Feed.

That the sea shore provides food for many birds besides Gulls and Waders is evident by the presence occasionally of Linnets, Twites, and other Finches, besides Larks and Pipits. These may be met with, especially during the winter months, when birds are not nesting, and therefore not tied to one district.

Rearing a Cuckoo.

When wild birds feed each other, either courting in the spring or attending to the wants of the young, they are generally both upon the same level, being nearly of a size, but when the dainty Pipit takes up the task of rearing a big greedy Cuckoo, he is unable to feed him in the usual manner, and so takes the liberty of using the younger bird's shoulder as a perch, and from this position feeds him with ease. So quickly is this performed, that one has to have sharp eyes to detect the operation.

Migrating "Resident" Birds.

A large proportion of what are termed resident birds leave our shores in the autumn, the young birds especially, and one may see large flocks along the south downs composed of Robins, Wrens, Chaffinches, Hedge Sparrows, Buntings, etc., for several days before they depart further south. Any of these, if caught upon the Continent, become food, and strings of them may be seen exposed for sale in the market places. If our northern birds simply migrated to the south of England, the district would be overcrowded, and many would starve to death for want of food.

The Shows.

BRADFORD EAST.

The Bradford East O.S. held their second annual show on New Year's Day in the Park Chapel Schools, New Cross Street, West Bowling, under the rules of the Yorkshire Union and the patronages of the Y.C.C., C.M.Y.C.C., and N.C.M.Y.C.C. Entries came up well, totalling 425 from 110 exhibitors, and an average of 10 per class, which, taking into consideration the holidays, etc., is very gratifying. Mr. E. Radley (Skelmanthorpe) officiated as judge, his awards leaving little room for complaint. Mr. H. Hill, as secretary, had everything well in hand, and was backed up by a strong band of workers, including amongst others Messrs. Rushworth, Blakey, Dinsdale, Stobart, Cruise, Lowes, and Hammond, all cards being up a few minutes after completion of judging, and all prize-money and specials reckoned up ready for paying out within half an hour. The premier special of the society, "The Bradford East Rose Bowl," which is for competition each year in the Puffighted classes (competitors to be the breeders of the birds shown), was won by Mr. Lister Briggs, one of the members, with his 2nd prize winner in the buff class, a bird that for type and quality will be hard to beat. Sandiford's medal for hottest fed bird was secured by Messrs. Holroyd Bros.- and that for the best fed bird, fed on Ramsden's feed, was won by Mr. J. Naylor's Norwich. Messrs. Ogden Bros. were winners of special for most points in open classes, Mr. J. Bailey being runner up. The special for most points in Novice was secured by Mr. J. Thomas, Mr. J. Naylor taking second special. The show was officially opened at 3 p.m., by Mr. Lister Briggs, supported by Messrs. Rushworth, Cruise, Hill, and a few other members.

DOUGLAS (I. of M.).

Annual show of the Manx C.A. took place in the Derby Castle on Boxing Day (St. Stephen's Day). The cage birds numbered close upon 200, and were grandly staged on the balcony, making a very pleasing display. The Norwich classes contained some grand birds for type and quality, while the Yorks. were a very fine lot, much in advance of last year. The winner of the cup for best bird in show (shown by a member) was secured by Mr. Gill, with a very nice 4-pointed Goldie-Can. Mule, shown in grand form, after a tight race with Mr. R. Caley's ticked yellow Norwich; the latter gentleman secured the special for most points in the section, and Mr. Witherspoon that for second ditto, while Messrs. Kelly and Sons won special for most points in British. Judging was over in good time, and cards affixed as each class was adjudicated upon. Mr. A. C. Brotherhood (Newport) made the awards, and left little to be desired in his selections.

CREST: 1, sp, 2, Witherspoon, leader, nice grey Crest, of good size and droop, followed by a dark of nice width and length. C.-B.: 1, sp, 2, Witherspoon, good big body, nice width of skull, 2, loses in head only to winner. NOR. CL. DALBEATTIE.

The twenty-fourth show of the Dalbeattie O.A. was held in the Town Hall on New Year's Day. The entries in our section were slightly back upon last year's, but the quality reached the high water mark. The cage birds were staged in a lesser hall separate from the other stock, and were well suited both as regards lighting and space. Border fancies were an excellent display, and the Norwich made one of the best shows ever seen here. The Crests, however, were not quite so good as the Plainheads. The outstanding class was that for British Goldfinches, the winner in which gained the British bird medal. Foreign Finches were also good. Bullfinches were a very fine lot. Mr. G. C. Robertson, as secretary, is to be congratulated upon his most excellent management. Mr. A. McMeeking (Glasgow) judged, and his awards gave general satisfaction.

CARLISLE.

Carlisle and Dis. C.B.S. held their 24th annual exhibition and competition, in the Queen's Hall, Victoria Viaduct, on New Year's Day, and it proved a great success, the entries coming up splendidly, and the gate being all that could be desired. At times the room was packed with visitors. We are very pleased at the result, as the committee and officials headed, of course, by the energetic and untiring secretary, Mr. W. H. Wright, who was thoroughly master of the situation from early morning till the room was cleared, all worked hard, and did their allotted duties in a manner calculated to ensure success. Amongst others we noticed very busily engaged were Messrs. Lawson, Atkinson, Robson, Cranston, Dawson, Garrick, Dockerty, Fraser, Gill, Harrison, Herring, Johnstone, McFarlane, Nixon, and Reddy. The show was opened by Mrs. F. W. Chance (wife of the Member of Parliament for Carlisle), with a pretty speech. The secretary afterwards presented her with a bird and cage on behalf of the members. As to the birds themselves, the quality throughout was of the highest standard, and found the judges no easy task in selecting the winners, particularly in the Border Fancy section—about the strongest lot we have seen for a long time. The judges were Messrs. McCreadie, Goulden, Stanger, and Maddison, and their awards gave every satisfaction.

HYSON GREEN (Nottingham) C.B.S

Annual exhibition held on December 11th, in the large hall of the Cricket Players' Hotel, Lindsay Street. The room is the best in the district, being large and lofty, and well lighted and heated. There was a record entry, and record takings at the gate, the room being well packed with fanciers from near and far. This society is to be congratulated on possessing such an able secretary as Mr. W. Cottingham. The manner in which he performed his duties deserves the highest praise. This also applies to the committee, who are real fanciers. President Mr. R. Rhodes, vice-presidents, Messrs. J. C. Ley, J. Shipston and T. Oliver; chairman, Mr. E. Wolfe; vice-chairman, Mr. G. Hill; hon. treasurer, Mr. W. Elsey; committee, Messrs. G. Sharp, J. T. Birch, J. Breffitt, W. H. Banks, F. Wilfis, J. Bertie, A. E. Garton, and A. Barnes. Mr. G. Sharp won Sandiford's medal for hottest bird in show, Mr. W. Cottingham special for best British bird. Birds in the Gift class realised over £5. Mr. R. Rhodes judged the Crests and Foreign, and Mr. J. Bertie the Norwich, British, and Mules, and their awards gave every satisfaction.

ELGIN.

The Elgin Association held their 24th annual show in the Corn Market Hall on New Year's Day. The entry was in advance of last year, as was also the quality of the exhibits, and the weather being mild made them look their best. The light at judging time was good. The best possible arrangements had been made by Mr. A. D. McCaskie, who is an excellent secretary, always most obliging, and he had the cards up immediately the judge's slips were handed in. Mr. J. Strachan (Aberdeen) judged, and seemed to give every satisfaction.

In the advertisement this week of Mr. B. Hollins, the well-known Hull bird specialist, will be found particulars of a new scheme upon which he is embarking, none other than the establishment of a Zoological Gardens in that seaport city. This means that the whole of his present stock is to be cleared at considerably reduced prices.

I have disposed of the whole of my surplus stock, bred from the best of blood, to Mr. E. J. Davies, of Cardiff, writes Mr. S. E. Tonkin (Cardiff). Have had good breeding season this year, having bred 45 with 5 hens. I always look forward to CAGE BIRDS every Friday, as it contains very useful information, and I wish your paper every success.

Allow me to thank you, writes Mr. A. J. Slade (Camberwell) for the publication of the excellent sketch of my bird "Beauty," one by name and nature, and a great favourite. It came as a surprise Christmas card, and I feel sure it will be so to my large circle of brother fanciers. I might say that this bird is a cock; kindly note this in your next issue.

The C.B.U. in the North.

Does Trouble Loom Ahead?

There seems every possibility of there being stirring times in the North in the near future, judging by a communication which has reached us from a correspondent who journeyed to the great Scottish National Show, in the company of some of the leading fanciers of the Newcastle district. He writes: At Newcastle Station, the secretary of one of the leading local societies told me that they were going to leave the C.B.U. this week, for that was practically decided on at a committee meeting held last week. After that they intended calling a conference of two or three members from the various Northern societies, with a view to forming a federation for Durham and Northumberland only. I asked them what was the matter, and told them they were nearly all strong C.B.U. men at the time I myself was fighting against it. They declared that they were now sick of it, as it was of no use to the Fancy at all. They asked me what I thought about it, and I replied that the Union could stand for me if only Rule 17 were thrown out, but so long as there was coercion I was not in favour of it. On arriving at Morpeth, the fanciers there joined us, and shortly afterwards Mr. A. Grey, the well-known Plainhead exhibitor, made a speech condemning the Union, and advocating the holding of shows in our district under our own rules, fewer shows every year, the different societies taking their turns in holding an open show. The chairman of Newcastle Society, Mr. Curra h, followed, and in a long speech condemned the C.B.U., and asked for a vote from the company present (about 30 fanciers) on the Union. The company voted unanimously against the Union. The scheme is to be formulated in a proper manner, and sent on to you for publication.

I made so many sales from my last advertisement in "Cage Birds," that I consider the cost practically nothing.—RICHARD THOMSON (Glasgow).

I am well pleased with the result of my advertisement in "Cage Birds." I have sold my birds, north, south, east and west.—E. L. A. CROW (Lowestoft).

Through my last advertisement in "Cage Birds," I sold £38 15s. worth of birds, including several of my noted winners at the Palace, etc. This speaks well for "C.B." as an advertising medium.—C. E. BROWN (Bristol).

Kindly thank all who replied to my advertisement in "Cage Birds." There were so many (from all parts of England), I could not cope with all. I should think there is hardly a town in the kingdom where "Cage Birds" is not known.—S. CLIXBY.

I have had such a lot of replies to my advertisement which appeared in your valuable paper "Cage Birds," last week, that I am unable to answer all. I have sent the birds advertised to a gentleman at New Malden, Surrey, with, I believe, satisfaction to both of us. I wish "Cage Birds" every success in the coming year.—A. PARKE (Lowestoft).

Once again we hope to break all records with

"CAGE BIRDS."

This will celebrate the Eighth Anniversary of our Natal Day. It will be the most expensive and largest issue of the paper ever produced.

ITS CONTENTS INCLUDE:

An Exquisite Real Art Supplement
Printed by Messrs. W. H. Smith & Son.

2 Coloured Plates, full size of "Cage Birds"
AND
A Beautiful and Novel Calendar in Colours.
Printed by Messrs. John Swain & Son.

The artists employed on the number include:

Messrs. Norman, Goodchild, Rankin, Berridge, Chatterton, Aitken, & Miss L. M. Medland.

The articles will include contributions of practical value and intense interest from

W. E. Teschemaker, B.A., Frank Finn, B.A., F.Z.S., Wesley T. Page, F.Z.S., G. Yates, M.R.C.V.S., T. H Ferrar, Oscar Smart, etc.

The price of the issue will be as usual, 3d., or post free, carefully packed flat, between boards, 6d.

You will be well advised to order your copy AT ONCE, as the demand, although we intend printing 50,000 copies, is certain to prove phenomenal.

ADVERTISERS! do not miss this unique opportunity.

Remember, no advertisement of less than Sixpence in value can be inserted in this costly and widely circulated number.

The present actual sales of "Cage Birds" are some thousands weekly larger than they have ever been in the history of the paper. Never have we had so many friends, and it is, therefore, opportune for us to put on record our grateful thanks for all benefits received, and for all assistance rendered us by our co-workers in the cause.

Heavy Woodcock.

Woodcocks are plump, heavy birds for their size, weighing about 12 ozs. each. Exceptionally heavy ones are occasionally met with. Yarrell gives a well authenticated instance of one which was killed weighing as much as 27

The Magpie as a Talker.

Of our British birds the Magpie is the best of the talking tribe. His vocabulary is a long one, and with a little careful tuition he may be made as laquacious as a Parrot, and has a much more refined way of expressing himself. In addition to which his inquisitive habits make him particularly interesting. In a wild state he does nothing but chatter.

Post-Mortem Examinations.

Rules which Must be Observed.

As I have been honoured with the post of post-mortem expert to CAGE BIRDS, as successor to the late lamented and well-known fancier, Mr. J. North (Reading), I crave the indulgence of your readers, who in future may favour me with post-mortem specimens to examine for cause of death, to point out to them precautions to be observed when sending birds in transit:—

I.—To pack securely in tin, wooden, or cardboard box.

II.—To send letter apart from package accompanied by post-mortem fee. This letter should give in detail the duration of illness, symptoms shown, nature of food received, whether the owner has any other birds in his or her possession, and if any of these show signs of illness.

III.—Last, and most important, to dispatch without delay the remains of any bird or birds that have died. As post-mortem changes rapidly take place in small cage birds (due to decomposition), this should be strictly observed, otherwise it often conceals the real nature of the disease. Where disease is thought to be of an infectious nature, contributors would do well to arrange for a reply by letter, which might obviate further losses.

The Scottish National Show.

We have received a photograph (taken by the flashlight process) of the officials at the Scottish National Show, but it is not of a nature which lends itself to reproduction in an ordinary issue of CAGE BIRDS, so we are holding it over for the Special Number next week.

Echoes from Paisley Show.

That entries were down, compared with last year; that Sunday coming between the show dates was the nightmare; that exhibitors were afraid to risk their champions for three days; that Fulton's win was a popular one; that the Love cup will adorn his sideboard now; that he is a young breeder of three years' time; that Montgomery, of Corker Hill, was happy; that everybody said he looked so; that his buff hen, winner of the Crichton cup, is a Green; that the word "Belgian" is not understood by "Scottie"; that he thinks it means first crosses; that the judges think the same; that the Belgian classes were stocked with Scoteh Fancy first crosses; that it would be better to say Belgian or first crosses; that some good birds changed owners.—SCOTS FANCY.

Questions and Answers.

DOUBTS AND DIFFICULTIES SOLVED BY SPECIALISTS.

Queries will be answered under the following Conditions:—

(1)—All questions must be clearly written in ink (or typewritten) on one side only of paper, and must conclude with either the correct name of querist, or a pseudonym, or initials.

(2)—The proper name and address in full of querist must always be written on a separate sheet of paper and enclosed with the query. In no case must the address appear on the query.

(3)—Queries intended for different specialists must not be written on the same sheet of paper.

(4)—Queries must not include or be included in orders for books, instructions re advertisements, or any other matter for publication.

(5)—The department to which the queries refer must be stated in bold letters on the left-hand corner of the query.

(6)—If an answer in the same week's issue is desired, queries must be posted to reach us by Monday's first post at latest. Queries will be dealt with in the order in which they are received, and only as space permits. The earlier queries are received the better attention they are likely to have.

(7)—Queries relating to illnesses of birds, except enquiries as to cause of death (for which see Post Mortems) will be answered by return of post on receipt of a postal order for sixpence and an addressed stamped envelope. Queries of an ordinary nature will be answered by post, if desired, on receipt of a postal order for one shilling and a stamped addressed envelope.

(8)—All who require letters of complaints written to advertisers must state grounds for doing so clearly and fully, and enclose a fee of sixpence, otherwise their letters will not receive attention. All the fees received from this source will be handed over in full to the "Referee's" Poor Children's Dinner Fund (London).

(9)—All queries must be addressed the Editor, "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C. Only queries so sent will be answered. Postcards are not admissible.

THE following gentlemen represent CAGE BIRDS staff of ADVISORY EXPERTS. Queries must in no case be addressed to any of them individually, but to the Editor.

Canaries.—Claude St. John. British Birds, Mules and Hybrids—G. E. Weston. Foreign Birds—Wesley T. Page, F.Z.S., M.B.N.H.S., &c., Park and Lake Aviculture—Frank Finn, B.A., F.Z.S. M.B.O.U., &c. Wild Bird Life—H. Norman.

NOTE.—If an answer is required concerning the proper mating, etc. of Norwich, Yorkshires, Crests, Cinnamons, Greens, Borders, Lizards, Scotch or any other variety of the Canary family, we shall, should the querist desire us to do so, be pleased to submit his question for answer to some leading specialist of the day on the variety concerned.

CANARY QUERIES.

Five in One.

C.C.C.—(1) Yes, I should say it is quite possible for a Canary to be frightened to death by a mouse entering its cage. If a very nervous bird the "possibility" may well become a "probability." It would all depend upon the temperament of the bird and the ruling circumstances at the time. I have seen a Canary attack a mouse which had entered its cage, and get the worse of the encounter, which looked like being disastrous for the bird had no one else interfered. (2) There are numerous ways of clearing mice out of a birdroom, each of more or less merit, according to the geography of the place and the judgment with which means are employed. Perhaps, on the whole, you could not do better than try the "Virus" remedy (see advert. in our pages). (3) I do not believe Canaries or any other birds can see in absolute darkness. Even nocturnal birds seem to require a certain amount of twilight or gloaming to get abroad. Canaries, I fancy, cannot see so well as humans in twilight. (4): Yes, you could mate a Canary with a Redpoll, and the food need not be altered. (5) The Editor will no doubt answer this under "General," or you should consult our list of show dates fixed, and the ANNUAL, to see what shows are near your locality.

Chewing Up Seed.

A.W.N.—As the bird appears in good health this habit of cracking and breaking up seed without eating it may be due to pure mischief. This is more likely to be the case if the hen is getting into a rather forward condition, as at this season when birds begin to freshen it is not uncommon for one here and there to work off some of its energy in trying to chew up its seed box or the wooden bars of the cage. See that its beak is not in bad need of trimming, and then, in addition to the staple of Canary seed, give half a teaspoonful of summer rape separately every second day for a fortnight, and twice each week give a morsel of bread and milk sprinkled with a little soft sugar, and a pinch of gold of pleasure seed. Give a spray of watercress daily when fit for use, and at other times substitute a bit of sweet juicy fruit instead—a grape (with the skin broken), bit of orange, peas, banana, or apple. Keep cage scrupulously clean and well strewn with fresh gritty sand. Let it bathe freely if it does not suffer from chill afterwards. In the drinking water give six drops of dandelion juice and a pinch of Epsom salts daily for three days, and afterwards six drops of tincture of gentian and four of aromatic sulphuric acid for a few days. The seed enclosed was a fair sample, but a small proportion of it was none too well ripened.

Neither Life Nor Song.

A Worried Reader.—I do not think you will succeed in restoring it to its former health and song. When the complaint gets well-established it is extremely difficult to cure. Try the following treatment, however, for two months and report progress, referring to this reply. You say you are sure he is fed properly, yet I am certain the mixtures are not proper nor suitable. They do very well for occasional use. Give now a staple diet of plain Canary only. Every second day give a half-teaspoonful of summer rape separately, and every alternate day for the next fortnight (you may stop giving it earlier if the moulting ceases quickly), give a similar quantity of crushed sponge cake with four drops of sherry and two of cod liver oil emulsion well mixed in it, and a pinch of gold of pleasure seed sprinkled over it. Add also on these days a few grains only of hemp. Give a spray of watercress or a bit of banana four times a week. Keep cage well strewn with clean gritty sand, and in a position free from draught and extremes of heat and cold, but not too warm. In the drinking water give six drops of syrup of rhubarb and a pinch of Epsom salts for three consecutive days, and afterwards six drops of tincture of gentian and four of tincture of steel every second day until feathers cease dropping. When the moult has ceased stop the sponge cake and additions, and give instead a small teaspoonful of either of the seed mixtures you have been using twice each week. Also get a chemist to mix you an ounce of the following mixture, and give in the water fifteen drops every alternate day for a fortnight, then omit it for a week, and give again for another fortnight. Mixture: Oxymel of squills, Ipecacuanha wine and glycerine, equal parts, chlorodyne, a half part, plus ten grains of iodine potassium and thirty grains of chloride of ammonium. Give this in the water only. If given direct into beak (a practice I do not advise), it must be further diluted with equal parts of glycerine and one drop at a time given.

Chronic Diarrhœa.

Long Sammy.—Attend very carefully to the sanitary conditions of cage and perches. Keep floor thickly strewn with sawdust, or sand, the former preferably, and renew it frequently, burning what is removed. Also keep the perches scrupulously clean, and wash out cage with a solution of Jeyes', or carbolic fluid, about twice a week, until bird is quite recovered. See all your seeds, etc., are of sound quality, and not contaminated by vermin; and if the water supply is not above suspicion boil all before use. Keep bird caged by itself, and isolated from all healthy ones. Keep it in a comfortable position, with plenty of fresh pure air, but not overheated. Feed on a mixture of two parts Canary to part summer rape, as a staple, and give a little crushed unsweetened biscuit with two drops of cod liver oil emulsion mixed in it, every second day for a week. Three times a week give a morsel of ripe banana, but withhold all green food for the present. In each two tablespoonfuls of drinking water give six drops of syrup of rhubarb and a pinch of Epsom salts for two day, and afterwards six drops of tincture of gentian and four each of tincture of opium and aromatic sulphuric acid daily until the diarrhœa has quite ceased. Then add six drops of dandelion juice and one of eucalyptus oil, well shaken together, to its water for a few days, to break it of the habit of imbibing so freely, which is an indirect result of the long continued diarrhœa.

Good Feeding Breed.

A New Hand.—There is really no such thing as a good feeding breed, or a best feeding one. It is more a question of strain and individualism, whilst management plays a large part. Good, bad, and indifferent feeders will be found in every breed, and in none are bad feeders universal. Even Crests and Belgians, two breeds generally supposed to be notoriously bad parents, will, I know, very often feed and rear their own young in the best style, and as well as could be desired; on the other hand, such hardy, free breeders as Norwich will absolutely shirk these duties at times. The best method for a beginner to avoid this nuisance, assuming, of course, that the birds are properly managed, as is constantly being set forth in our columns, is to begin with a pair or two of a hardy breed, such as Borders, Norwich, or Yorkshires, and to procure the stock from a known breeder whose stock is not addicted to the baneful habit. Hens bred from hens which are bad feeders are much more likely to shirk their duties than those which have been bred from hens for one, two, or three generations which were good feeders.

Canary Querists should send to our publisher for "Canary Breeding for Beginners," 7d.; "House's Canary Manual," 1/2; and "Yorkshire Canaries," 1/-, post free.

Weak on Legs.

Anxious (Rochdale).—You should have said what condition of body the bird is in. It is possible its condition may be due to excessive fatness, in which case you would need to put it on a strictly limited and plain diet, coupled with a liberal supply of green food, and frequent aperients when green stuff ran scarce. A suitable course for reducing fat has been given several times lately, so I need not repeat it; but assuming the bird is not too fat, I think the wisest course is to put it out of its misery, as the prospects of doing it any good are not rosy. Still, try what the following will do: Keep it in a moderate-sized cage until it is better able to get about, when you should gradually increase its sphere of action and induce it take more vigorous exercise. See the cage is kept scrupulously clean, well strewn with gritty sand, and give a piece of cuttlefish to nibble at regularly. See the perches are well made, and placed, and not too large. Attend to claws, and if overgrown wash feet well in warm solution of boracic acid, and cut back claws to proper length. Feed on a mixture of two parts Canary to one part summer rape as staple, and every second day give a half teaspoonful of a mixture of equal parts hemp, inga, millet, broken groats, rice, and broken sunflower seeds; and on the alternate days a similar quantity of crushed sponge cake with four drops of port wine and two of cod liver oil emulsion well mixed in it, and sprinkled with gold of pleasure seed. After first week give each extra only twice a week. In the drinking water give ten drops of syrup of rhubarb and a pinch of Epsom salts daily for three days, and afterwards six drops of tincture of gentian and four of aromatic sulphuric acid every second day for a fortnight, and on the alternate days twenty drops of chemical food, continuing latter for a month. If a valuable bird, you might try the effect of 15 drops of lactophosphate of lime and iron in the water instead of the chemical food.

Brevities.

Seed Samples (Nemo).—No. 1: Is small, but bright and clean and sweet, a very fair quality. No. 2: Also small, not so good flavour, contaminated with a variety of other feeding stuffs, and not quite so clean; only moderate quality. No. 3: Nice and clean and bright, very sweet and well-ripened, but rather small. Apart from its small size, it is an excellent sample. No. 3 is the best of the lot, but No. 1 is not very far behind.

Disreputable Appearance (Thos. Griffiths).—Sorry your birds have all acquired such a shocking appearance. But you may even now congratulate yourself the consequence was no worse, as you might well have found your birds, or a number of them, asphyxiated and beyond help. The only way to remove the grimy appearance is to hand wash the birds. Dissolve a teaspoonful of borax in each quart of water used (the first basin), as this will help to get up a good lather. You will also need to thoroughly clean the cages before washing the birds, or they will soon be as bad as ever again. If your birds had not been used to artificial heat, and your aviary is snug and draught-proof, you would have done better not to put the lamp in.

Canary Samples (Lynx).—No. 1 is very small indeed, and therefore excessively dear at the price named. Its only good point is that it is quite sweet and appears clean. No. 2 is not quite so well ripened, but as it is sound and very sweet and clean, and also much larger, it is to be preferred before No. 1. When sending samples for inspection, especially during times of heavy pressure in the post office, you should see that they are well packed in stout packets that will stand some rough handling. One of your packets was broken in the post, and the other was very frail and damaged. Correspondents should note this.

Hygiene (W.C.).—Provided the room is well and efficiently ventilated, the number of birds should not in any way affect the health of an adult sleeping in the room. As the greatest number of birds are likely to be present during the middle of summer and onwards until autumn, when the weather is favourable, you might keep the top sash of window lowered from one to three inches, according to the prevailing weather, night and day. This could only prove beneficial both to birds and the person occupying same room. By the bye, if you have a blind drawn down before window at night there is almost certain to be a keen draught deflected into the end cages, when the blind is down, when the wind blows into the window. See to this and counteract it by again turning the draught from the cages by a small curtain or screen.

The Finishing Touch (C. J.).—Do not imagine you can put "the finish on feathers for show purposes" by spraying with any solution of cosmetic. If the requisite quality is not there naturally, bred in the feathers, no amount of spraying will put it there Proper and skilful hand-washing with soft rain water, a good soap and a small pinch of borax in the first water, and a few drops of glycerine in the third water are all that is required. This should be carried out about 4 or 5 days before the show, and the birds allowed to bathe each day afterwards. If they do not they may be slightly sprayed two or three days after washing, once each day, with filtered rain-water, in a pint of which a small teaspoonful of glycerine has been well stirred. Do not overdo the glycerine; drop in the water just about half a dozen drops, or even omit it altogether, and you may get the best result.

BRITISH BIRDS, MULES AND HYBRIDS.

An Ailing Linnet.

G. Clayton.—I certainly advise you to take the Linnet out of the hop cage and put it into a decent sized one wired at the front only. The compartment of the double breeder would do very well, but a wooden slide should be used if possible. It is no good thinking of breeding operations (or letting the hen Canary do so) until the Linnet is quite well and stout in song. Feed him up judiciously, letting him have a little cracked hemp frequently, likewise a little maw and a pinch of niger. Try a lengthy course of treatment as follows: Get one ounce of tincture of benzoin (friar's balsam) from a chemist, and stir four to six drops into two tablespoonsful of drinking water, changing it daily. I shall be glad to hear the result.

The Greater Wheatear.

Skiver.—There is no British bird known as the "Greater" Wheatear. It is quite true, however, that individuals are to be found amongst Wheatears that greatly excel in size their brothers and sisters. They excel so markedly as to constitute practically a parallel case with the British and Siberian Goldfinches. But I believe I am correct in saying that no scientific distinction (in the way of a distinguishing Latin name) is accorded these large-sized Wheatears. The latter is the form of Wheatear which breeds up in Greenland and other parts of the Far North. We get many of them down here during the period of migration, but they never seem to arrive until after their smaller brethren. No doubt it is these Falstaffs amongst Wheatears that you intend to indicate when you speak of the "Greater" Wheatear.

A Fractious Linnet.

Hilda.—The only way to "force" a bird to take a bath is to grab it by the scruff of the neck and plunge it into the water. Moral suasion, I am afraid, is utterly useless. Your Linnet appears to be a very naughty kind of Linnet—won't sing, won't bathe, won't do this, won't do the other. I should feel very much inclined to invest in a new one, and forget all about the "old love"—let him fly out of the window. If it really is a cock bird, then you ought quickly to get him into stout song by giving him in addition to the stock mixture a heaping teaspoonful of cracked hemp one day and ditto of my "tit-bit" mixture the next day, seeing that the latter contains a proportion of niger and maw seeds. Keep this system of feeding up for some time. Grow a few summer rape seedlings for him, too. He will probably take to the bath when some summer weather comes along.

A Redpoll and a Bullie.

B.E.P.—If your Redpoll is in field plumage and shows any trace of red in its breast feathers, then the latter is a sure indication that it is of the male sex. If your bird sings freely and regularly, that is a sure sex sign too. The fact that it feeds the hen Bullie is also a good sign, though it is true that two hens sometimes feed one another (two cocks very frequently do this). There is just as much likelihood of field-moulted Redpoll and hen Bullie breeding successfully as there is of two house-moulted specimens doing so, especially in a large outdoor cage such as yours. It is not at all unusual, however, to find these two species settling down so quickly to cage life; rather the contrary, for neither Redpoll nor Bullie usually make much fuss about it. From May onwards is the Hybrid breeders most hopeful time. Let them have plenty of early dandelion leaves (free from frost), and seeding heads, likewise groundsel, chickweed, and shepherd's purse. These are the things to ensure "breeding form."

British Bird Querists should purchase our "British Bird Manual," published in two parts, "Hardbills" and "Softbills," price 1/- each, or in cloth cover together, 2/3 post free.

We are Seven.

C. C. C.—Seven questions all at once, eh, what? 1. A cock Redpoll may agree well with a cock Bullfinch, or a cock Chaffinch, in a good-sized cage. They might quarrel (a) in the spring time, or (b) if they previously have been used to having a cage entirely to themselves. 2. The Bullie and Redpoll will sometimes eat mealworms (especially during the moulting period). The Chaffinch is always fond of one or two, however; the Bullie comes next. 3. The "best and quickest way to get a supply of mealworms" is to buy them from a dealer. Starting a mealworm box is a tedious business, even if undertaken at the most favourable period of the year (i.e., the summer), for quite six months need to elapse before it can be said to be "in working order"—fit to begin to be used. 4. Probably the hen Greenfinch is the best to try breeding with in a cage. Speaking for myself, however, I don't see much fun in breeding Greenfinches; I would sooner try Goldfinches, even with the more slender chance of success. 5. A cock Redpoll will mate easily with a suitable hen Canary. 6. The coloured plate given with the recent Christmas number surely ought to help you to tell easily whether the bird you mention is a Chaffinch or a Bullfinch. The latter has a big black cap and short swollen beak. 7. Note the reply to "B. E. P." this week.

Brevities.

Magpies and Shrubs (Joe).—I must confess that I cannot at the moment say whether Magpies have bred in an aviary. I cannot call to mind having read of it, but will try to find out definitely. I know that the Jay has done so, however. It would need a very large aviary, doubtless. Evergreens are the most likely things to withstand the beaks of Finches. It is a good plan to sow bird seeds (canary, charlock, summer rape, etc.), to provide them with greenfood.

Sexes of Goldfinches (no nom-de-plume).—A coloured plate of cock and hen Goldfinches was given with our last Birthday Issue; possibly you could buy a copy of it. The hen has the butt (shoulder) of the wing ash colour, or greyish black, whereas in the cock it is a jet black, sometimes with a greenish, metallic sheen. The cock, too, has a longer, stouter beak, and bigger blaze; the latter, in the hen, very seldom extends back past the centre of the eye (the under-blaze).

Seed Sample (Seedsman).—The sample you send is not German rape, but charlock, which is not infrequently substituted for it. It is very much cheaper. Charlock bears a great resemblance to German (or summer) rape, but has a shiny appearance, which is absent in the other; further, it has a very hot taste when chewed, and this at once distinguishes it from genuine summer rape, which possesses a pleasant, sweet, "nutty" flavour.

FOREIGN BIRDS.

Answered by WESLEY T. PAGE, F.Z.S. M.B.N.H.S., etc.

Treatment for Scarlet Tiger Finch

Hairdresser.—The Common Avadavat, or Tiger Finch, is not difficult to keep fit, providing it is kept free from draught, and its cage is sufficiently large to allow the bird to take exercise. The temperature of any ordinary sitting-room should be ample—a cold room would be hardly suitable for a newly purchased bird, which I take yours to be. I do not consider any pair of birds should be kept in a smaller cage than a Canary-breeding cage. Get a cocoa-nut shell nest and hang this up in the cage; supply them with a little hay and moss, and they will convert it into cosy sleeping quarters. I am afraid it is suffering from the effects of the voyage to this country; give it for one day either a little Dinneford's Magnesia, or a few grains of Epsom Salts in the drinking water, the former for preference; repeat the dose as may be required, to keep the bowels moving freely, but the voidings must not be allowed to remain watery loose. Diet: Canary, white and spray millet seeds, a little of such ripe fruit as they will take, and a little sponge cake, moistened with boiling milk, will be a help if they will take it; keep cage tray covered with gritty sand.

Macaw in Poor Plumage.

Hawkes.—I think, with the exercise of a little patience, this bird will come all right; it is evidently in rather low condition, and the deformed feathers evidently cause some little irritation. I would try persistently putting the tail the proper side of the perch. By all means continue to use the spray and some quassia solution in the water might make the feathers distasteful to the bird—that is in such parts as it uses its beak on. Continue to use the chemical food, boiled maize and flowers of sulphur, also an occasional dose of Dinneford's Magnesia to keep the bowels moving freely. So long as you do not give tea, coffee, or milk slops, or animal food, all the items of diet you name are quite permissible. Give the Parrish's Food five or six times a week. Boiled maize can be given every other day if it cares for it; the rice and quaker oats may be given. Spray it daily except during very severe weather, then twice a week is ample. Give it as much ripe fruit as it will take—it will be very beneficial. I trust as the moult progresses, the bending of the feathers will cease. The price you name for a talking Amazon would certainly not be dear. It often happens that a change of domicile will cause a Parrot to cease talking for a time, but it will ultimately settle down and begin to talk again. Let it have plenty of company, so long as it is not scared, and it should soon respond to such treatment if it has ever talked.

Parrot with growth on Abdomen

Doonan.—As your vet. has seen it, I take it the growth cannot be removed, and all you can do is to keep the bird as fit as possible, and try to absorb the growth. So long as the skin is not broken paint the growth with Tincture of Iodine, use a camel-hair brush, and well cleanse it for each occasion. To keep up its strength give Parrish's Chemical Food in the drinking water, and continue this for some time. Supply boiled maize every other day, after boiling, drain away all moisture possible, and well dust over with flowers of sulphur before supplying to the bird. Give the bird such ripe fruit as it will eat, and in addition supply it with seed mixture, a few nuts and plain biscuits. Keep a piece of clean cuttlefish in the cage, and supply grit either in the seed mixture or on cage tray. In case of any sudden weakness, give a little, very weak, brandy and water (chilled) as a stimulant. I can say what the outcome will be: if the growth is malignant it will ultimately kill the bird—if not, the growth should gradually disappear with the above treatment. Report progress in two or three weeks' time.

Brevities.

Green Parrot Ill (Southampton).—Stop the cod-liver oil and quinine. Give Dinneford's magnesia in the drinking water (one teaspoonful to each ounce of water), till the bowels have operated freely, and then repeat as necessary to keep them so, but the voidings must not be allowed to remain watery loose for any lengthy period. When not giving the magnesia, well colour the drinking water with Parrish's chemical food. If it will eat, give it a little boiled maize—this only keeps fresh one day—boil till soft, drain away all water, and dust with flowers of sulphur before supplying to the bird. Bathe the nostrils with diluted glyco-thymoline, and put a little honey and borax in the mouth, with either a feather or camel-hair brush (which must be well cleansed for each occasion), two or three times daily. Diet: See other replies in this issue re Green Parrots.

What to Keep with Budgerigars (Darlington).—In such a cage it would be dangerous to keep any Finch-like birds, and there is not much choice of suitable Parrakeets. I consider it would be far better to keep to Budgerigars, as when they have young out of the nest, the compass of your cage will be fairly occupied. You might keep either a pair of Madagascar or Blue-winged Lovebirds with them, but both species are shy breeders in captivity. A pair of Cockatcels might also be kept in lieu of either of the above, but my advice is, confine yourself to green and yellow Budgerigars; the two varieties will give a pleasing change of colour.

Show Cage for Hanging Parrot ("Scrindit").—One of the ordinary box show cages, in which the front and half the top is wire, would be the most suitable, and I should prefer the water tin inside, but, of course, if the bird is already used to the water hole and tin outside that arrangement is the better. Colour is largely a matter of taste; in the present instance I think a neutral tint would be the best for the inside, for the outside I consider black cannot be surpassed. For general purpose a show cage enamelled pale sage green inside and black outside suits the majority of foreign birds as well as any.

Grey Parrot Out of Condition (J. Peel).—Keep the bowels moving freely with occasional doses of Dinneford's magnesia, and also put it on a course of Parrish's chemical food (for directions see other replies in this issue). I should stop the boiled rice, and in addition to the seed mixture, supply ripe fruit, plain biscuit, and a few nuts. Cuttlefish should always be in the cage, and grit either mingled with the seed mixture or scattered over sand tray.

Young Budgerigar Ill (Budgie).—Cage this bird up separately, and put Dinneford's magnesia in the drinking water daily (one teaspoonful to each ounce of the drinking water), till the bowels have operated freely, but the voidings must not be allowed to remain watery loose. Follow this by putting it in a course of Parrish's chemical food; give it a crust of stale household bread or piece of plain biscuit. Unless it is pneumonia, in which case its condition is hopeless, it should gradually improve under the above treatment. A box-cage would be the most suitable, and it must be kept out of draught.

Blue-fronted Amazon Ill (W. H. Baker).—Stop giving table scraps, milk pudding, and slops of any kind. Give this bird Dinneford's magnesia, Parrish's chemical food, and boiled maize, exactly as advised to "Southampton" in this issue. Also keep the nostrils well cleansed with diluted glyco-thymoline. In addition to the boiled maize, supply seed mixture (canary, millet, dari, paddy rice, oats, maize, hemp, and sunflower seeds in equal parts), ripe fruit, few nuts, plain biscuit, with cuttlefish, water and grit. Report progress a fortnight hence.

Foreign Bird Querists will find in our handbook, "Foreign Birds for Beginners," 1/1, and "Budgerigars and Cockatiels," 6d. post free; a mine of information of use and interest.

PARK AND LAKE AVICULTURE.

Ostriches for Breeding.

W.—Mr. C. Hagenbeck, the great animal dealer, thinks ostriches can probably be profitably kept in this part of Europe, and he is doing well so far with his at Stellingen, near Hamburgh; but then he has special facilities for covering expense by making a show of the place. They only need artificial heat when quite young. You would do well to get his book on "Beasts and Men" (English abridged edition, recently published), where he gives an account of his method with ostriches. You could, I have no doubt, get eggs from him, and certainly stock birds.

POST MORTEMS.

Mr. G. Yates, M.R.C.V.S., 525, Caledonian Road, Holloway, London, N., will examine and report upon dead cage birds for a fee of 1s. 6d. each bird; for reply direct, 2s. 6d.; analysis, 21s. Subjects for post mortem examination must be sent packed in a box direct to Mr. Yates, with the fee, this and any accompanying letter being kept from contact with the dead bird. Any bodies sent to the office of this paper will be thrown away, and if a fee is enclosed the loss will be the sender's.

S. T. Jones (Lynton).—Subject: Canary. Cause of death: The exciting cause of death was pneumonia; both lungs were engorged with blood, showing also a congestive condition. Pneumonia in these small cage birds is often very sudden in its onset, and the primary symptoms often overlooked, running its course in a very quick and fatal manner. There was nothing suggestive of infectivity either clinically or microscopically. It is a disease which is very prevalent at this season of the year, due to the adverse climatic conditions which prevail.

E. H. Stonelake (Bristol).—Subject Cock Canary. Cause of death: Death arose from "impaction of the gizzard," which I found to be several times its normal size, and its walls considerably thinned, due to the pressure brought to bear upon it. This condition varies from that of obstruction, inasmuch as it is brought about by atony or weakness of the walls of that organ, and is of a nervous origin. It is a pity you had not adopted some suitable remedial measures, such as a gentle laxative given in the drinking water, either sulphate of magnesia or sulphate of soda, 10 grains to an ounce of water, combined with two drops of tincture of nux vomica as a nerve stimulant, when I have no doubt your bird might have been saved. Your surmise as to inward trouble was, unfortunately, only too correct.

E.E.M. (Wimbledon).—Subject: Canary. Cause of death: There was no evidence of disease of an infectious character. The Canary died from congestion of the lungs, probably brought about by atmospheric influences, and the fact that you had only had it such a short period serves to show that it had not become accustomed to its new environments.

E. A. Stickland.—Subject: Hen Yorks Canary. Cause of death: This is a case of some interest, but owing to lack of information you have given me as to the history, and duration of illness, symptoms noticed, etc., has rendered its diagnosis somewhat difficult and prolonged. Unfortunately, post mortem changes had so rapidly set in that microscopical examination of the blood was rendered impossible by the presence of putrefactive bacteria. There was extravasation of blood in the brain, and on its surface, due to local bœmhorrages, and fatty degeneration of the liver, meaning a conversion of the true liver substance into fatty particles, which interferes with the function of that organ. It is suspiciously a bacterial, and probably infectious disease. Should you possess other birds, it would be a wise proceeding to use some means of disinfection.

GENERAL.

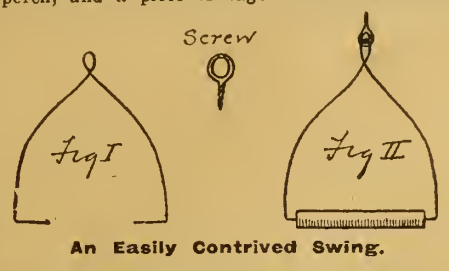
Answered by the Editor.

Mouse Traps (R. J. Charlesworth and many others).—We really cannot illustrate any more mouse traps. We have already done so very fully, yet still they come. Their number and variety astound us!

A Letter (R. Nairn).—Accept our thanks for your kind wishes.

Thrushes and a Suggestion (Berman).—Please to hear our specialist's advice proved so beneficial to your thrushes. We will think over the suggestion you very kindly make, though we are afraid it is hardly possible for us to carry it out.

Show in N.W. District (C. C. C.).—Most of the London shows have been held, and we do not know of any open shows still to come in the N.W. district. There is the great Crystal Palace Show (note the advertisements) on Feb. 4 to 8 inclusive. There will be various small shows confined to members of the local societies, of course, from time to time.



A Yarn (G. Whitten).—Thanks; we will try to find a corner for it.

A Simple Bird-swing.
Sent by Mr. W. Hornbrook, 74, Easton Road, Bristol.

Enclosed is a sketch of a simple, home-made bird-ring. To make it, get a piece of bamboo cane 4ins. long, about the width of a bird's perch, and a piece of cage wire about 12ins.

A Perch and Redmite Trap.
Sent by Mr. W. Thompson, 11, Darland Terrace, Chatham.

I enclose an idea of a detachable perch and red-mite trap combined. They can be fixed to the ends of breeding cages so as not to cross one another, and allow the dropping to corrode on them; at the same time they allow a parting slide to be put in without disarranging them. Get a piece of sheet brass 1½ins. sq., and with a hack saw, such as fitters use for cutting metal, make four cuts, ¼in. from each end and ½in. through. Then get another piece the same size, and cut it as shown in middle of illustration. Then lay C on B, and bend over A. Turn D at right angles to C, and bend round D to form a tube to slip the wood perch in. Solder up the seam, and drill a small hole in tube for the mites. If any reader cannot make it out, I will willingly send pattern on receipt of a stamped address.—W. THOMPSON.

Under the White Rose.

BRADFORD East O.S. second open show on New Year's day proved a thorough success, and the society's officials were very pleased at the support they received from the Fancy. Over 16 per class is not a bad entry. The rose bowl which is offered for competition in the unflighted classes proved a big attraction. These two classes contained no less than 54 birds, of which 29 were yellows and 25 were buffs, and of these 43 were exhibited by their breeders (the winner of the bowl has to be the breeder of the bird). The winner turned up in Mr. Lister Briggs' buff bird, which was placed 2nd in its class, and this gentleman is to be heartily congratulated on his achievement.

THE show was officially opened at 3 o'clock by Mr. Lister Briggs, supported by Mr. Rushworth, Mr. Cruise, Mr. Hill (secretary), and others. Mr. Briggs in a few appropriate remarks declared the show open. Mr. Rushworth, Mr. Cruise, and Mr. Hill responded, the latter complimenting their member, Mr. Briggs, on his success in winning their "Challenge Rose Bowl"—a feat he had promised them he would accomplish.

THE Show season is now drawing to a close. The C.M.Y.C.C. completed their list of fixtures on Saturday last, and I hope next week to give the full results. In the premier competition Messrs. Ogden Bros. lead the way, Mr. H. H. Towers being second, Mr. A. Cooper third, and Mr. A. Jowett fourth. The running throughout has been very close, and there is not a very great difference in the scores at the finish. "STRAIGHT 'UN."

Another Sad Disaster to a Fancier's Stock.

SIR,—It is with much regret I write to inform you that Mr. Hale, of Hindhead, Surrey, has lost the whole of his stock of Crests and Crest-breds, 35 in all. I visited him on Christmas Day, and saw all the birds dead. Mr. Hale's bird-room was out of doors, and, being in a very cold spot, he had it heated with hot water pipes. But the flue cracked and all the birds were suffocated with the fumes of the coke fire. He is only a working-man fancier, and intended sending six of his birds to the Palace this year, so it is a great loss to him; but he wants to join the Fancy again as soon as he can find the means to do so.

Prize Money at the Y.C.C. of Ireland Show.

SIR,—Your issue of January 1 contains a letter from Mr. O'Neill in which he complains of his cheque being returned. I am sorry to say such is a fact, but lest some of my friends might think I had misappropriated the funds of the Y.C.C. of Ireland, the following is an explanation of the occurrence. The expenditure in connection with the show amounted to £10, for which we hold no funds to meet; this was paid out of the entry fees, etc. When paying prize-money cheques were issued for the total prize-money. A week after cheques were issued I had occasion to pay a bill, and I sent over to the Bank to enquire how my account stood, and I got back the enclosed note (note enclosed for perusal), which shows I had £4 18s. 11d. still to account. Unfortunately some of the gentlemen who got cheques held these back for nearly a fortnight. In the meantime I had made use of the balance to credit. Altogether I paid out £5 out of my own cash. The chairman and secretary of the Y.C.C. of Ireland are aware of this.

How to Make One's Own Birdlime.

SIR,—I have before now heard of people anxious to make their own bird-lime, and never having seen my way of making it recommended, I give it. It is very simple compared with the glowing account of some who spend as much as six or eight hours in sweet content waiting for pure linseed oil to thicken. Get a pound of rosin (lump preferred), melt it in a saucepan with a little linseed oil, let it simmer till it turns black (generally in about a quarter of an hour); when it has got cold, test it. If then it is too stiff, add enough raw linseed oil to bring it to the right consistency. Of course, before adding the new linseed oil to thin off with, the rosin must be melted down again. When it is boiling on the fire, keep a strict eye on it or you will get the chimney swept at the same time and place (as the police say), as it is very quick to boil over, and once any of it gets in the fire, it is all up with the bird-lime, at least.

A. B. CATCHER.

Help Wanted from Skylark Keepers.

SIR,—The Skylark is my favourite bird. I spent pounds upon it and I refused to give in, though I can't keep one over six months. The only one I had left has died suddenly to-day. I paid 7s. 6d. for him last August, changed his food last Friday, but I find him nothing but a handful of feathers (wasted to nothing), though with a box full of food. It is with every one the same. I have paid as much as 25s. in six months, and all have wasted away. But I will try another after readers' kind advice. This is my mode of feeding: A packet of soft food, meat meal, coarse oatmeal and crushed hemp mixed, and Canary seed. This mixture is sometimes given with potato, and greed food in season, chopped meat and gravy. This last bird has been in the kitchen since last September, with fire and gas, but hung low down; still, the room has been very warm, and this last few days he has been put out of doors. I have got a large stock of mealworms which he has been having, four and five a day, two days a week; yet the bird is nothing but feathers. Will some reader kindly give me the secret through your paper; or, if a reader should be near me, I will pay his fare if he is a Lark fancier, to see if my kitchen is suitable. Should the bird be out of doors altogether? Or is my feeding wrong, so as to cause some disease that makes them "go light." I have got one of Sandiford's crushing machines, and sometimes I crush up dog cakes and add to the mixture. At the same time, my Thrushes, Starlings and Blackbirds are as strong as can be. But my real fancy I can't get to thrive. Now, will any reader kindly help me for the new bird which will arrive this week? The cage has had a good cleaning. This cage is the largest bow front that is made, takes a turf twelve inches across, sand-tray is 12 by 12 inches, and it is 14 inches high.

Ought a Rule to be Strained Sometimes?

SIR,—Mr. Battison accuses me of politely informing him that it was too late for his birds to be received and that the rules of the Association must be carried out. I wish Mr. Battison would confine himself to the truth, as when he was summoned to a committee meeting of the West London Fanciers' Association he told them that I had not the courtesy to speak to him, which was also untrue, as I greeted him with the usual "Good morning" as I did the rest of the gentlemen present. No other words passed between Mr. Battison and myself. Five minutes later Mr. J. Dewhurst, junr., deputising as secretary, for his father (who was ill), came in. After a conversation with Mr. Battison, Mr. Dewhurst asked me what I thought about accepting the birds. My answer was, "You know the Rules of the Association. I shall have nothing to say in the matter." With that he informed Mr. Battison that he could not accept his birds; also the birds of other members, and these gentlemen have taken it as the secretary's duty in carrying out the rules. In fairness to myself I may say I am an amateur, and Mr. Battison a champion, so that our birds would not meet for competition only in the cup class, for which he had no entries, but the fact that I had the honour of winning the Norwich cup might have caused some pang of spite. I trust in future Mr. Battison will make sure that he complies with the rules of any society he may belong to or show under. While we are always pleased to retain old members and to enrol new members, we claim the right to ask them to comply with the rules. I might say that the committee have passed a vote of confidence in the secretary, Mr. Dewhurst, and think he did the right thing. I thank you in anticipation of my answer to Mr. Battison's letter coming before fanciers, letting them judge which is right, the man who carries out the rules or the man who tries to break them.

An Elderly Orange-breasted Waxbill.

SIR,—I should be interested to hear from any of your readers if the age record of my Orange-breasted Waxbill, who has just died, can be beaten. On October 20th, 1900, I bought a pair of these tiny birds from a travelling firm. I put them in a cage with a pair of Avadavats and provided them with two rush nests. On March 5th, 1905, the hen Orange-breast died. But the widower chummed up with the other pair, and all were happy. In a month or two I bought a very large French aviary cage for my room, and turned the little trio in among several Weavers, small foreign Finches, and an Indigo Bunting. All went well till January, 1906, when within a day or two of each other the Avadavats died of sheer old age. Then, and not till then, the other birds bullied little "Scrap," chasing and worrying him mercilessly. The second morning after the last Avadavat died, I found him lying on the cage floor, his face to the wall, having apparently made up his mind that life was not worth living. But as he still breathed, I hastily got a small cage ready, and determined that he should spend his few remaining days, or hours, in peace. I placed him in a semi-conscious condition into the cage, and hung him in a sunny window, only a few feet from the aviary. He revived, and lived in perfect health and happiness, coming out from each moult brighter in colour, until November 26th of this year, when I found him dead in his little nest, having been in my possession nine years and five weeks. And now for the recipe for this long life, which I give gratis to all readers of CAGE BIRDS. Promise your bird's skull to a collector of these gruesome specimens. I promised "Scrap's" skull to my brother when I thought every hour would be his last. But "Scrap" was much hurt at the idea, perked up at once, and said: "I think you are very horrid, but I'm not going to die, so there!" and lived for nearly four years longer! A niece of ours amused us much by calling the bird "Skully," and giving him this advice: "Don't you die for a long time, and when you feel you can't live another moment, throw yourself down from the perch with a bang, so that you break your skull, and do your uncle!" But, happily, "Scrap" did not take this wicked advice. I may mention that all my foreign birds live in a room, sunny, but unwarmed, with the window open day and night, with very few exceptions. The thermometer in winter often went below 40 degrees.

How to Put on the Brake.

SIR,—For the last few days I have noticed something wrong with my brother's hen Canary, for it is building a nest, which is a strange thing for the time of the year, I think. He will be glad if anyone will tell him how to hold this hen back.

ANNIE HURST.

A Word for the Evenly-marked Norwich.

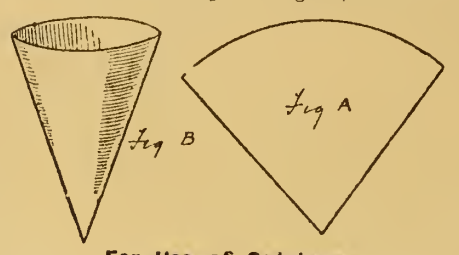
SIR,—Next to Crests, this birds stands highest in the estimation of fanciers. Well it may, for it is most difficult to breed. There is always dark underflue cropping up when it is least expected, and when it is not wanted, or else the reverse—a white feather springing up in the middle of a dark wing. A four-marked bird has two eye marks and two evenly marked dark wings. A six-marked bird should have in addition to the other markings a dark mark on each side of the tail. Most fanciers avoid breeding from a six-marked bird, as the six-markings are a sure indication that all the dark underflue has not been bred out. There is a great difference in breeding for Crests and breeding for eye-marks. For Crests you want to keep all the dark colour you can on the head; but when breeding for even-marked birds you want to get rid of every dark feather on the head, except those immediately surrounding the eyes. It requires even more care in selecting your first pair for breeding even-marked birds than it does for breeding Crests; a good selection the first year is equal to two years' start. Here you have an advantage over Crest-breeders, as you may always freely cross with a yellow bird, with a gain to the quality of feather.

JOHN BRADBURY.

Ought a Rule to be Strained Sometimes?

SIR,—I should hope no other exhibitor has (through utter neglect of his responsibilities) had the same experience as your correspondent, Mr. Battison. Had he been a novice, one would not have wondered at his disgust, but just imagine 23 years of exhibiting, and an up-to-dater, and has only just heard of rules being enforced! Why strain a point for one exhibitor? Perhaps he is an habitual laggard, or, on the other hand, a pot-hunter, seeing that his birds were entered at Watford and West London for following days. Is this taking an interest in the society of which, I take it, he has been a member for 23 years? Thank Goodness there is one society which enforces its rules irrespective of persons, and for this the fancier resigns "after such treatment, which makes good fanciers wonder with disgust." Yes, Mr. Battison, good fanciers do wonder with disgust at the selfishness of some fanciers. There are no doubt two sides to the question, and I hope to see replies from the officials of the society, as I consider their action a step in the right direction as to the duties of members of societies. No society can afford to lose members; however, the West London having lost one, I should be pleased to join that society, to make up for the loss, if you, sir, would forward my name to the secretary, Mr. Lack. VERITAS.

(We have sent our correspondent's address to Mr. J. Dewhurst, who is the secretary of the society.—EDITOR.



The Welsh C.B.C. Patronage and Swansea Show.

SIR,—In consequence of the resurrection of Mr. Jones, kindly allow me a short space in reply to his amusingly evasive gibberish contained in your previous issue. To a certain extent, Mr. J., I have already substantiated my assertions, by forwarding your "clearly-written rules and transient classification" to our worthy editor for his inspection and eventual verification, and undoubtedly cage-bird fanciers have long since deduced a right-minded conception concerning the point at issue. I entirely fail to determine your seemingly increasing anxiety regarding the identity of the society that your patronage was practically forced upon. Have you any qualms of conscience respecting it, Mr. J? Perhaps you have been extending your under-acting influences even further afield than Swansea and boycott-experimenting with some other society. However, for the present, I will refrain from gratifying your evident anxiety, not desiring to implicate anyone, also being confident that I am infinitely capable of contesting unaided, even such an evidently accomplished mathematician as yourself. I also beg to enlighten you, that, notwithstanding your misrepresentation that I am not representative of Swansea fanciers, and conscientiously assure you that the before-mentioned ridicule at the expense of the W.C.B.C. is openly participated in not only by Swansea fanciers, but is prevalent also among the ranks of your own world-renowned society. Consequently I easily venture to predict a regeneration of the W.C.B.C. ere long in underacting principles. In my first letter Mr. J., which your infantile brain was incapable of comprehending, I did not accuse the W.C.B.C. as a body, despite your inventions, but I mentioned its officials only. Therefore realising that you are representative of your society, and its instigator and prime mover, I consequently favour you personally with my attention. It was you, Mr. J., who despatched a wire to CAGE BIRDS practically on our show date, to herald that contemptible act, the withdrawal of your patronage, and also previous to our show advised your members of your intended boycotting attempt. If this is the manner the W.C.B.C. encourages and uplifts the Fancy, it is full time for it to be deposed, as its patronage is "Tanto buon che val niente." Regarding your personal complimentary epithets, Mr. J., and your expressions of "love," I simply smile at them, realising that they are just the natural outcome of one "Non Compos Mentis." Finally allow me to inform you that though you refuse to continue corresponding, I am fully satisfied, realising, as I have before-mentioned, that I have attained my ultimate desire in exposing to the Fancy the tactics of the W.C.B.C.

A Contrivance for the Feeding of Brace Birds.

SIR,—I enclose a sketch of an idea I have for feeding my brace birds when I am out bird-catching, and I find it very useful. All you have to do is to cut out a piece of tin as shown in Fig. A, with a pair of pliers, turn it into the shape of Fig. B, and then solder up the side, and you have the thing complete. The point you push in the ground so that the birds can get at their food.

Shows and Societies.

Are there Too Many in Certain Districts?

SIR,—Having carefully read Mr. de Maillet's letter on the above, I should like a few words on the subject respecting a complete reform, though I am afraid it will never come to pass. I have visited shows at various times for over twenty years, read of the alleged mixing-up of awards, and of trouble among exhibitors of birds wrongly carded, and of the dissatisfaction at times re judges, railway delays, secretaries' scoldings, and all such like criticism. Well, some one will say, what would you suggest to bring about a reform in the Fancy and these shows? I will endeavour to give an answer as briefly as I can. I think each town or city should have one club only (including the suburbs within its boundary), each member to pay the secretary-general 2d. per week personally, or two stamps by post, as a hard and fast rule, with no arrears whatever. For the show season no entry fees should be charged to any member in that city and its districts, entries from outside the boundary to be charged 6d. per bird. As regards shows, several should be held during the season for Yorkshires only of all descriptions, several for Norwich only, one or two for various birds, say grand variety exhibition Lizards, Lancashires, Borders, Foreign and British, etc. (excluding Yorkshires and Norwich). Now, as to prizes, the same to be paid out of the town or city's own private fund, and admission money. For each show only one first prize (value £3) should be allowed, one second prize (£2), one third prize (£1), and one fourth prize (15s.), all other noteworthy birds in that show to be marked "excellent merit," vhc. and hc. Thus the four winning birds could be taken from their first place to some small table, with their special gilted cards. What our judges will say to this idea it is hard to think. My opinion is that if it could be managed on some scale like this, and every member do his duty, it would do away with endless trouble and anxiety in many directions. As for the troubles in despatching birds, and the railway companies' faults, I think it would be wise not to meddle so much with transits, as at the conclusion of shows it is no light work to be laughed at, which secretaries and all who are officiating have to do. Any other voluntary monies offered by outsiders or friends should be added only to the amounts given by the head club on to the 1st, 2nd, 3rd, and 4th prize winners with their gilted cards only. In conclusion, I shall look out for some hard blows at my suggestion, and for various questions. Yet I don't think I should ever alter my opinion on the affair, but would certainly fall in with any similar idea or suggestion.

JOHN H. JOWETT.

A Problem for Breeders of Yorkshires.

SIR,—I have a few Yorkshires and would like to improve them; they are not good enough for show. Would a cross with a Belgian hen and a Green Cinnamon cock build them up? I am told that millet seed and groats are good things to bring up young birds on. Is this correct?

Cage Bird Union: District No. 1

The Wallsend Sensation.

SIR,—In reply to "Novice's" epistle in your issue of last week, let me say at once that my communication of the week previous was addressed to the C.B.U., No. 1 district, and was not sent by me for "Novice" or any other individual to start a personal discussion over the matter. Also I wish to inform "Novice" that he does not know what he is talking about when he says I ought to give an apology to the C.B.U. I would like to know what for. As to his sneering remark that I have got off lightly, I ask him what chance has he had, or any other reader, to judge or offer a fair opinion on this matter when only a small part of the proceedings of the C.B.U. was published. As for having any grievance against the C.B.U., "Novice" is entirely wrong. The only grievance (as he calls it) is that I want my evidence and explanation put before your readers, as it explains all there is in it, and by reading the same, "Novice" and others will see that I don't need to offer any apology for getting off so "leniently" (as he seems to think). Neither "Novice" nor any other party could or did prove that the marks were put on the perches either to set the C.B.U. at defiance or to influence the judge in my favour. Could that have been proved, then I would not have got off as leniently as "Novice" infers, neither would I have received my prize money so readily from Wallsend Show. In answer to "Novice's" remarks anent the motions of the Border Fancy Club, let me tell him these will be discussed where they should be, at the B.F.C. annual meeting at Carlisle.

HENRY BENNET.

How to Catch Hawfinches.

SIR,—I notice in CAGE BIRDS that one of your readers wishes to know how to catch Hawfinches. I have pleasure in stating what I have seen done with regard to catching birds that gather together in the way described. That is, get four pieces of wood about 2 inches wide and 3ft. long, or as long as is desired, according to the number of birds that gather together. Put the wood together in a square, nail a piece of netting on one side, and get a prop to hold it up in the air, with a piece of string attached long enough to pull when you are out of sight, but watching the birds. Sprinkle a few seeds to draw the birds' attention, and when you see as many as you require to catch picking up the seeds, pull out the prop and the birds may be caught underneath the net. I have seen birds caught in a similar manner.

F. PRATLEY.

SIR,—Having noticed a correspondent asking how to catch Hawfinches, there are only two ways that I know of that are successful, one is by the net trap and the other by bird lime. The chief thing is to find out what the birds are feeding on and bait the trap with the same. The traps should have a wire frame, as the wooden kind will most likely be disappointing in the result. The trap made with wire is oval, and the net is laced to frame all round, making it impossible for a bird to escape. The wooden frame traps have corded sides, and the birds escape under the cords. He can either cover the trap or not, as he thinks fit. He will find no difficulty in catching the birds by these means. But as they are very wary, he will find trap cages and clap nets of very little use. Another correspondent mentions some "sharped" Goldies. If he gets in touch with the owner of a threshing machine and gets some thistle heads and puts them down where the birds are, or somewhere not above a hundred yards or so away, they will very soon find it. Then put down the trap or traps, having saved a few special heads and dried them for the purpose, as when dried these heads open, showing the down, whereas those that have laid out of doors on the damp ground will be closed. Pin the heads on a cork, fastening the cork to baiting wire. There was such a party of Goldies near here some time ago, that I and a friend spent some days trying in vain to catch them. But as a last resort, I tried the above plan and caught twenty-seven birds. Your correspondent will find that for all birds of a wary nature the spring net trap comes in very useful, but they are not suitable for taking birds by the score, as it is seldom you get more than one bird in one trap at a time. But you will find that if you have half-a-dozen traps down on the bed they will all be occupied as they go off silently on the soft ground; and they do not frighten the others away. I trust the above hints will dispel the difficulties which beset our two friends.

A. BIRD CATCHER.

Am I a Novice?

A Yorkshireman Seeks Advice.

SIR,—In answer to "One who does not know," I beg to say that his winning a "first" in an open mixed show would not debar him from competing as a "novice" under the O.N.P.C. rules, as he would be eligible to compete as a "novice" until he had won three firsts in the "open." As to the question of a first won at a mixed show, according to our correspondent's letters, it seems to have been more of a "members'" show than an "open" show, and I would not care to voice my opinion on it, without further particulars.

OLIVER MITCHELL, Hon. Sec. Open Norwich P.C.

SIR,—On looking over my copy of CAGE BIRDS last week, I came across correspondence from an exhibitor who signs himself "One who does not know," asking if I will be kind enough to answer the question as to whether he is a novice or not, after having won a 1st prize at a mixed show in open classes. Well, to be candid and to the point, according to the rules of the Yorkshire Union (rule No. 37, 1st portion), he can no longer show as a novice. This rule distinctly states that "a novice is one who has not previously won a novice medal or a first prize in open classes at any show." Therefore, according to our rules, he has lost his status as a novice. But surely this is not going to debar him from being a fancier? The fact that he took a first prize ought to be a stimulus to him to go on and accomplish greater things. The man who often accomplishes the greatest things is the one who has set out with a lofty ideal, therefore, I think your correspondent made a big mistake in selling out his stock simply because he had won a first prize in open competition. I can assure him that many fanciers would sell out the stock that they have in order to purchase a bird that could win a 1st in open classes. As a Yorkshireman, go into the struggle with the grit and determination which is such a characteristic of the county of broad acres, and I feel sure that you will look back with a world of pleasure on the day when first you took a 1st prize in open classes at an open show.

H. HILL, Hon. Sec. Yorkshire Union.

The Fancy in Queensland (Australia).

SIR,—In looking over my CAGE BIRDS, I find you have a report of our last Brisbane Show. How you got the report from this far-away land beats me, though I have often spoken of your paper at our meetings. I want the members to see the style of birds that win at home, for I think we are behind the times. I have been a fancier for over fifty years, and I always like to keep in touch with the Fancy. Our Yorkshires are much too stout, and also have not the necessary length. It is also being asked what constitutes an even-marked bird? Well, I must say that they are all "blotch" marked, but the bird wins which is nearest to it. They have no Cinnamon-marked birds out here, and I myself, when I show, generally win with Cinnamons. I have not shown the last two years, but having bred a few good ones this season, I intend at our next show to do so. We are not well off out here for Plainheads; also all other sorts except Yorkshires and Crested stock. Most of our Yorkshires are deficient in head properties, very flat-headed, instead of a nice bullet head. I would like you to publish in CAGE BIRDS what length a Plainhead Norwich can be, so that I can show it to our members, and this will give us something to go upon. I came from Sussex, and when a boy have played the truant to go into the fields with the bird-catchers and their nets, and saw hundreds of birds caught on the South Downs over fifty years ago. I read all your paper with great interest.

THE BRITISH BIRD FANCY IN DANGER.

The Need for Immediate Action.

On page 604 of last week's issue were given particulars of a decision arrived at by Mr. Biron, the magistrate presiding at Old Street (London) Police Court, which threatens to very seriously affect the interests of all keepers of British birds. The case was one in which two dealers, Messrs. Preston and Flowers, were fined for "having in their possession Larks and Chaffinches recently taken," and this notwithstanding the fact that the said birds were legally taken, i.e., in the open season in an unprotected district. Mr. Biron interpreted the Act under which the prosecution was instituted by the Society for the Protection of Wild Birds to mean that no persons could legally have in their possession any wild (recently taken) British bird, if it was of a species protected by the bye-law in operation over the district in which he resided. To give an illustration: if Goldfinches are protected in Essex, no one living in that county must be in possession of a freshly-caught Goldfinch, even though the said bird was caught in a county wherein they are not protected. In other words, only persons living in unprotected districts can legally keep Goldfinches, or Linnets, or Larks, or other such species; in districts wherein they are protected, no persons—whether private individuals or dealers—must be in possession of them.

The serious nature of this decision will be apparent to all our readers; it is startling, to say the least of it, so far as they are concerned who delight in keeping British birds as pets. It can be made use of to practically kill the keeping of British birds in while its effects upon the bird trade cannot be other than disastrous.

An Appeal to Our Readers.

But the questions naturally arise:

Are we to accept this magisterial dictum as a just interpretation of the law?

And are we to sit down quietly to this tyrannous action on the part of the Society for the Protection of Wild Birds?

We answer the first question ourselves by saying that we have obtained the opinion of high legal experts that this decision is NOT in accordance with their interpretation of the provisions of the Act, and, further, that if the case be taken to appeal, there is every likelihood of its being upset.

The second question we have to leave in the hands of our readers. The S.P.W.B. has taken action against two people who are but moderately blessed in the matter of means, and whose resources (the case has already cost them no small sum) are unequal to bearing the strain of the legal costs inseparable from the proper conduct of the appeal of which, we may say, they have seen to it that due notice has been given in the proper quarter. They now appeal to our readers for subscriptions to enable themselves to have the facts of their case adequately thrashed out before the High Courts; and they appeal in the confident anticipation that the verdict will be in their favour, and so remove the cloud under which the British bird Fancy now rests as a result of Mr. Biron's astounding decision. We intend to ask a well-known and highly-respected fancier to act as treasurer to this Defence Fund, and every penny subscribed will be utilised for no other purpose than to enable Messrs. Preston and Flowers to fight the W.B.P. Society in the interests of the whole British bird Fancy. Donations, however small (or large, of course) will be duly acknowledged in the columns of CAGE BIRDS. It is intended to instruct a well-known Barrister-at-Law to conduct the case. That the "sinews of war" will be readily forthcoming from the host of British bird fanciers in the British Isles we have not the slightest doubt. It only needs a trifle from each to enable the case to be carried to, we hope, a triumphant conclusion. The need of funds is urgent, however, so do not delay; send your contribution at once, addressed to the Editor, CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C., and state clearly in your letter that it is intended as a donation towards the "Preston and Flowers Defence Fund."

I have had some good exchange offers in reply to my advertisement in "Cage Birds."—T. LOVELL (Long Buckby).

I always find a quick market for things I advertise in your splendid paper, "Cage Birds."—ROWNSLEY (Gt. Horton).

Kindly thank all applicants for my show cages and case advertised in "Cage Birds." There were too many for me to reply to all; which proves what a good advertising medium "Cage Birds" is.—C. NEVISON (Bedale).

Notes from Erin.

I DEEPLY regret having to announce that Dr. J. P. Lavery (V.P. of Dundalk C.B.S.) has suffered a great loss in the death of Mrs. Lavery. All fanciers will sympathise with him in this sad bereavement.

SLIGO O.A. Annual Show was one of the finest exhibitions held in Ireland this year, and the South of Ireland fanciers were well represented. Mr. Keating (of Dundalk) won special for best Yorks. in show, and great credit is due to him, as this is his first season in champion classes. Mrs. Taylor (of Portrush) won 1st prize in the Open Cinnamon Classes. This is Mrs. Taylor's first season to exhibit, and her win has been very popular, and we wish her every success. Every credit for the show's huge success is due to Messrs. Tighe and Mulligan.

DURING the past week I have heard much murmuring and discussion regarding the treatment supporters of a recent Dublin show received. I am reluctant in mentioning names, but I consider it very unfair of any committee to receive and retain entrance fees from exhibitors, and not forward to the winners their prizes. The society referred to guaranteed to pay prize money within seven days from date of show, yet weeks passed, and at the end of this time cheques were duly received, but on some of these being presented for payment they were returned from the bank dishonoured. I know of at least half a dozen cheques so treated, and I know that the secretary and treasurer have been written to, but so far have treated the correspondence with silent contempt.

THIS seems to me a curious way of carrying on business, and surely will not help to make a society popular and future shows a success. Would it not have been better if the society referred to (finding that they were in financial difficulties), had written to the prize winners and asked them to relinquish their winnings? I am sure if the fanciers who supported the show had been approached and matters explained, the difficulty would have been overcome, as it is all our ambition to keep the club together. The question is: What steps are the committee going to take? Their action is looked forward to with much interest, and it is to be hoped that they will come to a speedy and satisfactory settlement in the interest of our club and the Fancy generally.

IN my last notes I referred to exhibits having been returned in the early hours of a Sunday morning from the Ulster O.A. Show. It was then thought that the committee were to blame for the delay, but I am pleased to be in a position to put this matter right. The railway company is again the culprit. The birds referred to were packed and delivered in good time for the 5.30 p.m. train, but the railway company would not forward them in consequence of the indemnity notes not having been forwarded, and as no such notes were forwarded by two or three of the Dundalk fanciers, the secretary (Mr. Stewart) could not rectify matters. Consequently the birds had to be taken to the booking office and booked to their owners carriage forward in the usual way, and by the time this was done the evening train was well on its journey. There was nothing for it but to let the cases be forwarded by next train. I am sure Mr. Stewart and his assistants were put to considerable trouble, and on behalf of the gentlemen mentioned above, I return them sincere thanks for their kindness.

I RECENTLY observed in the correspondence column a letter from an exhibitor at the recent Dundalk Show complaining of several drinkers having been withheld. I notice the writer states 24 drinkers were sent to show and only 12 returned. Yet, on a hasty perusal of the Dundalk catalogue, I can only find these fanciers with 12 entries. It is strange that they should have sent 2 drinkers for each cage. The hon. secretary and treasurer, Messrs. Gaskin and Keating, both well-known and respected fanciers, have informed me that they only received 12 drinkers, and 12 drinkers were returned.

I AM sure fanciers will understand how easy it is to get drinkers mislaid at a large show. However, this was not the cause of the Lurgan fanciers not getting their own drinkers returned from Dundalk. There was one exhibitor's cages objected to in consequence of having glass drinkers, and the superintendent of the show very wisely had all drinkers removed from all exhibits before the cages were placed on the judging table, and after the birds were judged and again staged in their respective places, the drinkers were immediately returned. This was the cause of strange drinkers having been on our cages. Would it not be advisable for us all to adhere to the rules and have both standard drinker and cage? I think it would be advisable if judges were instructed to disqualify any exhibit shown in a cage, or with a drinker, not authorised by our specialist clubs.

I HAVE heard much comment recently, especially amongst novices, owing to several societies not sending out prize cards. Secretaries should know that many of our novices would prefer a prize card to a money prize.

*A Lamented Pet.

My dada has a birdroom, where he keeps a lot of nice Canaries. Mama used to have a dear little pet Bully, which was allowed to run about as it pleased on the floor, and enjoy the tit-bits it could find. One day my little brother went into the room, and when he came out he forgot to shut the door. Our pussy was about, and seeing poor Bully, walked in and killed it. We were all so sorry to lose such a dear little pet in such a sad way.—Sent by Jessie Hitch (age 8), Thuscombe, Stroud.

*A Nest in a Sleeve.

In the month of June a mower hung up his coat under a shed near the barn, and two or three days elapsed before he had occasion to put it on again, when, thrusting his arm up the sleeve, he found it completely filled with some rubbish, as he called it, and on extracting the whole mass, found it to be the nest of a Wren completely finished, and lined with a large quantity of feathers.—Copied and sent by Bertie Haddon (age 10), 5, Oakley Street, Kettering, Northants.

The Peasant's Mistake.

In one of the suburbs of Vienna dwelt a poor peasant, his wife, and children. Not far away dwelt a rich merchant, who owned a wonderful talking Parrot. One day the Parrot made its escape and alighted in the peasant's garden on a tree. The wife caught sight of it and ran into the house exclaiming, "Oh, John, there is a great monster hovering about our garden, with such a peculiar head and face." Upon hearing this the man ran with his gun, and shot at the Parrot and brought it down to the ground dead. The next day the wife cooked it, and it was much enjoyed by all. About a week after, the owner of the Parrot came and told the peasant the green bird was his Parrot. "Well then, why on earth didn't it say so?" replied the peasant.—Sent by May Walton (age 13½), 14, Abney Street, Highfields, Leicester.

ENGLISH & WELSH BORDER F.C.C.

Annual Meeting.

Annual general meeting held at Altrincham on December 16th, Mr. Swarbrick (Preston) in the chair. The members of the Cheshire district present asked to be transferred to the Northern Division; as this was not unanimous it was decided that the Cheshire members be allowed to nominate which division they wished to show in, the nominations to be sent to the secretary in writing before the show season, and remain in force throughout the season. Mr. Bayly asked why the motion re plain seed for show cages, carried at last general meeting, was not put on specials cards. The secretary explained that it was an oversight on his part. It was decided that in future nothing but seed be used in show cages, or points would not count for specials. Letters were read from Mr. Norman offering to draw a model more nearly life-size than the present one, Mr. Norman being of opinion that this would give breeders a truer idea of the Border. The secretary was instructed to thank Mr. Norman for his kind offer, and to ask him to draw a model that could be submitted to the Scotch Club, as nothing could be done in this matter unless both clubs were agreed. The further development of the matter was left in the hands of the secretary. The secretary then gave a financial statement, pointing out that the club was a long way from being good financially. Nearly all the members present gave donations, and it was decided to make a strong appeal to all members who had not already subscribed, and so get the society financially sound, all the members present recognising that the usefulness of the society depended largely on its financial position. Dr. Thomas (Liverpool) then presented Mr. Bayly with the Toronto medal won by him at the International contest. Mr. Bayly having suitably replied, a hearty vote of thanks was accorded the chairman and secretary, which brought a thoroughly businesslike meeting to a close.—S. HADWIN, Sec.

THE SHOWS.

SWANSEA.

Show held in Mackworth Hotel, on December 27th. The show was held out in the stock room, which suited the purposes splendidly. The weather was extremely dismal, and no doubt affected the numbers of sightseers at the show. Many well-known specimens were seen behind winning cards. The Borders and British contained the largest numbers. The hon. secretary, Mr. Alf. Hitchings, assisted by a willing and hard-working committee, soon had things in working order, and much credit is due to him for the manner in which the show was arranged. Mr. D. A. S. Lougden judged the whole of the classes, and gave great satisfaction.

LIVERPOOL (Amalgamated.)

This show was held at Bootle on January 1st. The St. Leonard's Hall is well adapted for a show, being well lighted and free from draughts. The entry was not so good as in other years, but as this has been the case all round in this neighbourhood this year, it is not to be wondered at. That indefatigable secretary, Mr. Hunt, had everything well in hand in good time, and the judging was over and cards up before one o'clock. Mr. S. Hadwin (Liverpool) judged the Yorkshires and Borders, and Mr. J. W. Bancroft (Sale) the remainder, and their awards were generally well received.

PAISLEY.

The fifty-sixth annual two-days' show and competition of the Paisley O.A. was held in the Drill Hall, on January 1st and 3rd. The hall is admirably adapted for show purposes. Competition was open to the United Kingdom, and being a popular event, some of the foremost fanciers and breeders were represented. There were 186 classes in all, and although the number of exhibits was not up to that of former years, the quality throughout was, if anything, above the usual standard, the judges having a difficult task in placing their awards. The cage birds were ranged along the sides of the hall and across the top end, where there was abundance of light, and plenty of room for both visitors and exhibits. The hall was crowded on both days, and quite a host of ladies graced the show with their presence. The arrangements, as usual, were most complete, and were admirably carried out by Messrs. R. W. Robin (President), J. Taylor (Vice-President), John E. Pottie (Treasurer), James Laidler (General Secretary), and A. M. Baird (Cage Bird Secretary). The sales, though not a record, were quite satisfactory. The entries all over showed a decrease from last year's owing to the Sunday coming in between the dates. Exhibitors appeared afraid to run any risks. The same experience was felt at the Edinburgh National, and also at Dunfermline. Secretary Baird and his able band of workers had everything in spanking line order, and left nothing undone. In the Scotch Fancy section, although these showed a reduction in numbers upon last year's, they were a good lot and, as usual, a section of much interest. The judges for this section were Messrs. R. Menzies (Edinburgh), J. A. Stewart (Glasgow), A. Somerville (Neilston), G. Fulton (Partick), A. Livingstone (Paisley), and J. Kelly (Paisley). The Norwich and Cinnamons came under the eye of Mr. A. Maleolmson (Glasgow): the Borders and Yorkshires were ably handled by Mr. J. Smillie (Riccarton); and the Mules, British and Foreign bird classes were judged by Mr. G. Marlin (Hamilton). The Crests and Norwich were a good lot, but showed a decrease on last year's entry. The Borders were a fine lot, some very smart birds being staged. The Mules and Hybrids were a good lot, too, and the British were also a fine average lot, about the same number as last year. In the Scotch Fancy section Mr. J. Fulton won the handsome cup presented by Mr. Thomas Love (Paisley) for best young bird bred and owned by a member residing in the Burgh of Paisley, with a buff green hen, a nice typical bird—a most popular win. This being Mr. Fulton's third year as a breeder, he has every reason to feel proud of his early signal success. Mr. Fulton also owned the runner-up for this cup. Another popular win in its section was the Crichton cup, won by the well-known breeder, Mr. Wm. Montgomery, with a grand Scotch Fancy buff hen, of great style and hard to beat, Mr. W. McClure's yellow pied cock bird being the runner-up. We heard no grumbling concerning the judges' awards.

PLYMOUTH.

The Cage Bird Show, held in connection with the Western F.A. took place on January 5th, at the Market Place, Plymouth. The wants for this section were well cared for in a corner of the exhibition room, the birds being well screened from draught, this being an improvement on former years. There has always been a prejudice amongst fanciers against showing at former exhibitions, on account of the somewhat exposed situation of the staging for cage birds, but this year nothing could have been better than the arrangements which were made, and great credit is due to the secretary, Mr. W. E. Chapple, and to Mr. R. B. Tope, who fixed up the show. The cage bird members of the society are but few, and the result was, in the matter of entries, somewhat disappointing, but the care evinced for the comfort of the birds should certainly ensure a much bigger entry on another occasion. Mr. W. E. Chapple was a very courteous secretary, and was well backed up by a small committee, of Messrs. Watson, Brock, and Wills. Mr. T. Pope (Plymouth), made the awards.

BARNSLEY AND DIS. C.B.S.

Members' annual show was held on New Year's Day in the large club room at the Clarence Hotel, and this being a Cup show, competition was exceedingly keen. Mr. A. Green kindly presented cup and medal to be won outright for most points, and Mr. F. Taylor was the lucky winner with his noted team of Norwich, which need no comment, many of them winning at open shows. Also Messrs. Williams, J. Simmons, and A. Green staged some splendid Yorkshires. Mr. Williams, who is only a novice, with luck should do well next season. The room was nicely decorated, and gave everything a tasteful appearance. Mr. W. Robson judged, and his awards gave entire satisfaction. The society is progressing by leaps and bounds. The society held an open show this season, and the society is still in a flourishing condition.

BURRY PORT.

Show held January 4th, in a very roomy and well lighted hall. It was very well arranged, and everyone present could get a splendid view of the exhibits. Mr. E. J. Maunder, the capable hon. sec., and Messrs. Davies and Ray, were very much in evidence, the success of the venture being due to their untiring efforts. In most classes the quality was far above the average. In the Yorkshires some splendid specimens were seen. The Border class was also very keen, and so was the Norwich, and the British were extra, T. W. Richards staging a fine team of Goldies. Mr. D. A. S. Longden placed the cards, and gave the highest possible satisfaction.

KILMARNOCK.

Kilmarnock O.S. held their 58th annual show on January 1st and 3rd. Despite the heavy rain there was a fair turnout of visitors. The entries in cage bird section were similar to those of the last few shows held. All the Scotch Fancy classes had unfortunately to be cancelled for the second year in succession, and if breeders of this variety do not turn out at the shows a little better in the future, they will find that most shows will cut these classes out altogether. The Crest section was poor, too, only one bird being shown. The Norwich, though few, were very good, and the Borders were out in fine numbers, as also were the British. The show was most admirably managed by Mr. John Blane, the secretary, who was ably assisted by a grand committee. The judges were Messrs. R. Price, J. Calderwood, T. Findlay, and A. A. Manchan, whose awards appeared to give every satisfaction.

SHETTLESTON, (N.B.)

Second annual show of the Shettleston and Dist. C.B.S. was held in Hill Street Hall on December 18th. The entries were a little short, as compared with last year, but this was more than balanced hy the exceptional quality of tbe exhihits, and it is to be hoped that fanciers in this district will join the society, and so give it the support it deserves. The officials, including President Berry, and the genial secretary, Mr. Devlyn, left nothing to bc desired for the comfort of the exhihits, and the visitors; one and all worked well. The Yorkshires and Border Fancy sections were strong, and grand in quality, and the British birds made a fine show. Mr. A. Muir (Glasgow) judged, and his awards gave every satisfaction.

WISHAW, N.B.

This old established Association took its initial step in the cage bird direction on New Year's Day, and its show was held in the Factory Buildings in close proximity to the station, which is on the main line between Glasgow and Carlisle, and therefore easily got at. The Factory is a suitable place for a large show such as is held here. There is plenty of light, and the building was comfortably heated by hot water pipes. The weather looked dull in the morning, which did affect (no doubt) the judges in the execution of their work, which was by no means light. However, by mid-day the clouds cleared off and things looked brighter. Fanciers visiting this show could not but be deeply impressed by the remy and obliging nature of the organisers, the President, Mr. McLauchlan, the vice-president, Mr. McFarlane, the treasurer, Mr. Nimmo, and last, but not least, the ever-obliging secretary, Mr. W. H. Livingstone, with his assistant, Mr. Jas. Watson, and a strong committee, consisting of Messrs. Graham, Sorbie, Irving, Brownlie, Nimmo, Gibb, Mitchell, Watson, J. Nimmo, Cole, Walker, and Small, who all worked in a manner worthy of the utmost praise and support of fanciers. The classification was very good for a first attempt, and considering the amount of support given, it would be worth the while of the committee to consider a larger one for next year, as in many cases, especially in the Norwich, Border, and British bird section, two sets of winners could have been found. This, along with the dull morning, must have given Mr. McLay (Kirkintillock) some trouble to find the winners. The Scots Fancies were judged by Mr. Nisbet (Galston). Although the quality was there, it seemed as if breeders of Scotch Fancies were afraid to turn them out. With the classification given them here, and a capable staff to look after them, the society surely merits better support in the future. The adjudicating started shortly after 10 a.m., and was got through in nice time, and, judging from the small amount of grumbling heard, the awards of the judges seemed to meet with general approval.

SCOT. FCY. YELL. CK. CL., ETC.: 1, vhc, Allardice, 1, splendid piebald, fine reach and grand top-end, outstanding bird; vhc, good green, nice drive, inclined to be slow to work, perhaps owing to the dull morning; 2, Higgins, another nice one, but not quite so stylish or so steady; 3, Higgins, similar to second in type, hut a wee shade smaller; 4, Dunlop, another good cl. yell., tight in feather and thick throughout; hc, Hunter; c, Reid; good class all through. BUFF: 1, Gemmell, large hen, of nice quality, wins; 2, Williamson, another good one, shorter than winner, grand substance for a hen; 3, Watson, similar in type to 1st, feather inclined to frill at breast a trifle, nice one; 4, Arnott, nat. col. variegd., good size, but a trifle too loose in feather; vbe, Lamb, nice thick ben of good quality; hc, Morrison. CREST: 1, sp for best Nor., 2, Nimmo, good griz., leads, well staged; 2, nice wings, mkd. dark erest, top piece inclined to lift just a little, hut nice wing feather, must have pressed hard for premier position; 3, Rennicks, another good griz., fine size, well staged, well placed; 4, Roy, another dark crest, varieg., nice one; vhc (name missed), good green. C.-B.: 1 (name missed), slashing varieg. ck., plenty of feather and size, nice skull and lash, easy winner; 2, Nimmo, another variegd., closer in feather than leader, nice head, good one; 3, Watson, green, of nice quality feather, fine head properties, good stock bird; 4, R. H. Livingstone, another varieg. of fine size, heaten only in head properties, still a good one; vhc, Cringles; hc, Rennicks; c, Stirling; good class all through. BORD. FCY. YELL. CK., CL., ETC.: 1, sp for best bird, 3, Walker, neck-mkd., fine, jaunty little fellow, leads, perfect beauty, tight as wax; 3, nice cl., smaller than leaders perhaps, hut a sweet one; 2, 4, Haddon, grand grassy green, well placed, nice one; 4, also good one, worth its place; vhc, Small; hc, Goldie aud Withers; c, Allardice; a grand class. BUFF: 1, Haddon, slightly mkd., tight as a fiddle-string, good one; 2, Walker, grand cl., must have pressed the winuer hard, very good 2nd; 3, Shearer, very nice eyes and wing mkd. hird, grand type and quality, deserved its place; 4, Shields, nice cl., inclined to cross wings at times; vhc, Patterson; bc, Inglis; c, Allardice; all good birds, many good ones left out. YELL. HEN: 1, Richmond, nice green, fine col. and type, grand wings and tail; 2, Shields, some thought lucky to heat some of those behind it; 3, Allardice, nice eyes and wing-mkd. yell. of superior type; 4, Patterson, fine, jaunty little tkd., tight as wax; vhc, Walker, even mkd., of nice type; hc, Anderson; c, Lawrie. BUFF: 1, Shields, grand, tight-feathered little gem of rare type and quality, wins; 2, Walker, another sweet little hen, tight as a fiddle-string, a topper; 3, Taylor, yet another good one, slightly tkd., feather like wax, well placed; 4, Cargill, another nice buff of fine quality and feather; vhc, Small; hc, Gentleman; c, Richmond; all good birds, another set of winners could have been found in this class. SELL. CK. (10), HEN (8): 1, Haddon; 2, Walker; 3, 4, Lawrie; vhc, Shields; hc, Allardice; c, Small. BRIT. GOLDFINCH: 1, spbest Brit., Conkie, grand Goldie, fine square-cut blaze, rich tans, good whites and huttons, tight as a drum; 2, Hillier Bros., another nice one, scarcely so good in blaze, hut a nice ouc; 3, Clark, fine one, in grand order, must have pressed for 2nd position; 4, Adam, another nice one, larger than 3rd, but not quite so distinct in mkgs.: vhc, Hamilton; hc, McLuggage, nice birds, hut not yet in full col.; c, Williamson, overlooked surely, grand Goldie, fine blaze, tans and whites. BULLFINCH: 1, Clark, very nice Bullie, fine size, large clean cut, dark cap and mkgs., good one, well placed; 2, Brannigan, wee bit smaller, not quite in such nice condition; 3, Williamson, larger, similar to winner, would have made a creditable 2nd, too; 4, Nisbet, fine one, but wild; vhc, Conkie, another good one; hc, Bullock; c, Arnott. LINNET: 1, Morton, topper, steady as a rock, easy win, a credit to its owner; 2, Gentleman, another nice Linnet; 3, c, Williamson, 3, very similar bird to second; 4, Conkie, good Linnet, steady as a rock; vhc, Brannigan, another very nice one; hc, Arnott. GREENFINCH: 1, Hillier Bros., nice sized, well staged Greenie of fine col., wins; 2, Morton, larger, but not quite the col. of winner; 3, Shankey, another very nice Greenie of fine size; 4, Small, also good; vhc, Conkie, clinking yell., in spanking order, many present thought an easy winner; hc, Allan; c, Arnott, a good class. SISKIN, ETC.: 1, Morton, fine Twite leads, good size, nice mkgs., seemed just a trifle soft when we were taking notes; 2, Shields, nice, steady Siskin, fine col. and mkgs.; 3, vhc, Dick, very good 'Poll, well up in size and mkgs., well defined bib; 4, Conkie, another grand Twite, well deserves its position here; hc, Hillier Bros.; c, Kean. Mule, fine size, good one, unsteady when we were taking notes; 3, Chambers, nice dark Goldie Mule, fine size, grand col., shows parentage well; 4, McLuggage, Goldie-Bullie Hyb., not one of the largest, but very good in col. and mkgs., and deserved its place; vhc, Lawson, another dark Linnet; hc, Allan; c, Gentleman; many good birds were left out of the tickets here. A.O.S.: 1, 4, Shankey, Hawfinch, of rare size and substance, wins, rich in col., distinct in mkgs., fine bib, steady as a rock; 2, Conkie, splendid example of the Bearded Tit, wins its position well, good one; 3, Gamble, Starling of fine size and spangling, in very fine order; 4, nice Yellowhammer; vhc, Arnott, grand Misselthrush, well mkd., very unlucky to meet such good birds; hc, Dunlop; c, Lockhart. FOR.: 1, Arnott, fine Goldie, nice face and mkgs., rich tans, good whites; 2, Watson, nice green Budgerigars in tip-top order; 3, Clark, beautiful pair of Zebra Finches, steady, and well staged; 4, Owens, another good all-round Goldie; vhc, Aitken, lovely little exhibit, a credit to its owner.

LEEDS C.B.S.

What can be considered the most successful members' show in the history of the elnb was held on Boxing Day at St. George's Schools. This was the final show of a series of five at which members have competed with six highest birds for a long list of specials, at the head of which the three-guinea cup, kindly presented by Mr. W. Turton, who will be remembered as an enthusiastic and successful exhibitor of British and Hybrids. It is no doubt due to the competition for this valuable special that we bave had such a good entry at these shows, having had no less than 1,011 entrics at the five shows. The entries on Boxing Day numbered 225 in 34 classes, and the judge, Mr. F. King (Leeds) had a tough job separating tbe winners, hut he got tbrough in good time, and his awards gave entire satisfaction. The Turton Cup was won by Messrs. Chew and Stokoe, with 191 points, and the other specials as follows: Mr. D. Duncan, Jun., 165; Mr. F. Farrar 146, Mr. J. Owen 135, Mr. Buckley 133, Mr. H. J. Mennard 122, Mr. W. Johnson 111, Mr. D. DUNFERMLINE.

The annual show of the Dunfermline and W. of Fife O.A. was held on New Year's Day, and Jan. 3rd, and taking into consideration the numerous fixtures being held nt the same time they received their usual complement of entries in return for the splendid schedule issued. Scotch Fancies were a shade down in numbers, but better quality has seldom been on view. The Norwich Plainheads, and Crests were fine classes; we have seen larger numbers, but the quality on this occasion was very good. We were sorry to note the winning crest bred in the 15s. selling class dead, but the committee are in no wise responsible, as their care of the exhibits was untiring. We have never seen birds with more food in their cages, and all were well watered. The Borders were strong classes, and some good ones were on view, but the feature was the British birds, a record, we should think, for this well-known Fifeshire fixture. All the classes were good, and some gems were on view, many well-known winners being forward here. Taken all over, the show was up to those of former years, and the birds were very comfortably staged, free from draughts. The judges were: Messrs. Smith and Merrilees, for the Scotch Fancies; Mr. Lambie, for the Norwich and Borders; and Mr. Pettigrew for the British and Foreign birds; and taken on the whole their awards were well received. The committee ably assisted their well-known secretary (Mr. Templeman), who had everything in apple pie order. Mr. Burt, the president, was in close attendance, and having come through all the grades of show management, he is specially adapted for the position he fills so admirably.

A Pleasure in Store.

SUPERB BIRTHDAY NUMBER.

The Scottish National Show.

Just as we go to press we receive from Mr. J. Winter, the secretary, the following additional particulars:—Gate money £45, tickets sold £5, total £50; sales money £50, catalogues sold £22. Dewar Shield, for best in hall, won by R. Armstrong (Tynedock), with dark crest, "King of Kings." Gibson Challenge Cup, most points in Borders, H. Bennet (Kelso). Toronto Medal, best team of three Borders, A. Gilchrist (Coldstream); B.F.C.C. Medal, P. McKenzie (Kelso), and B.F.C.C. novice, R. H. Mugford (Swansea). Aitken Cup, for best Norwich, Dr. R. Herd (Morecambe), with his buff variegated cock. S.P.C. Medal, best cock, G. Mitchell (Brechin); ditto hen, A. G. Cameron (Kelso). Foreign Bird Club Medal, Miss Peddie Waddell, with pair of Bourkes Parrakeets; the Foreign Trophy was also won by Miss Peddie Waddell. Sandiford Cup, J. Smeaton (Prestonpans); Ramsden's Goblet, L. J. Arrighi (Edinburgh); Ramsden's Match-box, for Mules, Duncan and Logan (Coldstream); ditto, British, S. L. Cocks (Peterborough); Ramsden's Medal, J. Winter (Edinburgh); Patterson Cup, best young Scotch Fancy, R. Menzies (Edinburgh); Bennet Cup, best young Border, T. Miller (Portobello). Your report is correct re the Howie disqualification, as I hold Mr. Howie's signature to a paper admitting that his birds were artificially coloured, but he said he did not do it, neither did he know who had coloured them. All his birds were disqualified.

Owing to the severe pressure put upon our columns by the reports of the many New Year, etc., shows, we have been compelled to hold over some news items and gossip which reached us, concerning the great Scottish National fixture, until next week.—EDITOR.

The Scottish National C.B.S. holds a magnificent New Year Exhibition in the Edinburgh Corn Exchange.

The eighth annual exhibition of the Scottish National Cage Bird Society was held on Dec. 31st, 1909, and Jan. 1st, 1910, in the Corn Exchange, Grass Market, Edinburgh, and will rank as one of the most successful ever promoted. The Scottish National has the enviable reputation of being one of the finest shows in the kingdom, and this present fixture certainly left nothing to be desired, for the display of exhibition birds was really wonderful.

Perfection Approached.

We have never yet seen a hall more admirably adapted to the holding of a cage bird show than is the Corn Exchange, exceptionally spacious, lofty, and quite free from any possibility of draughts, besides being easy of access to everyone. The staging is erected on the principle of providing the exhibits with the maximum of comfort and visitors with the minimum of discomfort. Every section is kept distinct by itself, so that visitors have no difficulty in getting from one section to another without the necessity of travelling the whole length of the hall. This said staging is all erected under the personal supervision of that keen fancier, Mr. David Kinlayside, and this alone is ample guarantee that everything possible is done to ensure the well-being of the birds. Visitors and exhibitors alike unite in voicing their appreciation of the manner in which this work is performed.

Of the management of the show one cannot possibly speak too highly, for, as is usual here, everything was practically perfect, all the details being carried out with most methodical precision under the careful supervision of the genial secretary, Mr. James Winter. The abilities of this gentleman cannot well be over-estimated. He is without a doubt one of the most efficient secretaries we have ever met, and during the whole time of our visit we found him ever courteous and obliging, always ready to attend to anyone who required his services. We especially noticed that he treated everyone alike, all fanciers, whatever their position in the Fancy, high or humble, receiving the same prompt attention, and to this fact, no doubt, Mr. Winter owes his great popularity and much of his success. The assistant secretary, Mr. R. T. Jack, also deserves a special word of praise, he, too, being most attentive and courteous, while the manner in which he helped Mr. Winter in the discharge of his duties makes him an assistant greatly to be desired.

And what a grand body of fanciers they had behind them! From the President downwards everyone seemed to have his whole heart in the success of the show. And the services of the genial president, Mr. A. C. Dandie, and vice-presidents, Mr. J. F. Dewar, Mr. L. J. Arrighi, and Mr. R. Craig, were continually in demand, and always freely given. They, in turn, were ably backed up (and, in our opinion, this is the secret of success), by a very hard-working committee, consisting of Messrs. T. Tod, W. Holton, S. Buglass, W. F. Arrighi, D. Kinlayside, J. Smeaton, W. R. Dunn, W. R. Finnie, W. Carson, J. W. Buist, W. M. Millar, R. McKay, J. Hutchison, R. L. Spence, J. Gourlay, W. B. Smart, A. Rodger, D. Morris, T. Nisbet, T. May, and J. Easter. All are earnest fanciers of the right stamp.

Three Unfortunate Incidents.

Entries showed a slight decrease, though totalling about 1,800, but this was amply compensated for by the magnificence of the exhibits staged, every section containing birds from the best strains in the kingdom. Norwich Plainheads came up well, and were quite one of the features of the show, 316 in 19 classes, an average of nearly 17 per class.

We regret to have to record two very unfortunate incidents in connection with this section, the first being the death of Dr. R. Herd's (Morecambe) variegated buff cock. This bird won the cup for best bird in the section, besides other specials, and its passing away will be a great loss to Dr. Herd, and we feel sure that all fanciers will sympathise with him in being so unfortunate as to lose such a grand specimen. The other incident was the disqualification of the birds of Mr. James Howie (Dundee), for alleged staining. During the Saturday morning some of the Norwich fanciers present noticed that the flights and tails of the said birds were not as, in their opinion, they should have been, and a protest was lodged, with the result that the birds were tested, and alleged staining matter removed. Mr. Howie, we understand, admitted the offence, and, we believe, signed a paper to that effect. The special winners in the Norwich section were:—Cup, best bird, Dr. Herd; best unflighted, G. Mitchell; Scottish P.H. Club medal for best cock, G. Mitchell; ditto for best hen, A. G. Cameron. The Norwich Greens came up splendidly, 64 in four classes, an average of 16 per class, the special for best going to Mr. John Walker's yellow cock.

Crests were only fair in numbers, although the quality was all that could be desired. In this section was found the winner of the Scottish National Shield for best bird in the show, Mr. Robert Armstrong's well-known dark crest, "King of Kings," securing the honour for the second year in succession. This bird was a great centre of attraction to the visitors, especially those who had heard of it but had not seen it. There were some occasions, in fact, when it was quite impossible to get near the Crest section at all. The Crest section, too, we regret to say, provided a case of disqualification, the judge, Mr. Taylor, throwing out a Crested bird belonging to Mr. J. McLay for having an alleged stained crest. Lizards came up poorly, 29 in four classes, just over 7 per class, although they contained some really grand specimens, notably, Mr. John Rukin's broken cap Silver, this bird securing the special for best in the section. Cinnamons had only two classes, and totalled 13, yet the quality was of the very highest, the special for best bird going to Mr. W. Dormer with a yellow cock. The special for most entries in the show went to Mr. L. J. Arrighi.

Borders were a grand collection, many noted winners contesting the premier honours. Mr. J. W. Bruce judged Yell. hens, Buff cks., uneven Yell. cks., uneven Buff hens, even-mkd. Buffs, Yell.-Green hens, Buff Green cks., Yell. Cinn. cks., and foul Yell. ck. or hen, and carefully weighed up their respective points in a manner which left very little to be desired. In this section the winner of the B.F.C. Club medal was found, the foul Yell. cock grandly put down by that well-known exhibitor, Mr. P. McKenzie. Another well-known exhibitor, Mr. Gilchrist, secured the Toronto medal with three nominated birds. The competition in all the classes was keen, but the best in this section was undoubtedly that for foul Yellows, which contained some gems.

Mules made a splendid collection, almost every known cross being on view. The Clear Siskin Mule, shown by Dr. Galloway, was again runner-up for the challenge shield. The variegated class was a hot one, some toppers being out. The darks were a show in themselves, some extra good specimens heading their respective classes. The Hybrids were a study, what with the Bullfinch crosses and the other Hybrids between the British birds. Such a grand lot of Mules and Hybrids has seldom been seen in Edinburgh, in fact, and the task allotted to Mr. Dixon was no light one. He managed, however, to spot the winners in the various classes to the satisfaction of the majority of the exhibitors. After finishing the open classes, he had no less than 33 to judge in the selling class, the quality being so good here that some of the winners realised three times the catalogue price! In Class 83, No. 4, Webster, said to be a "clear Linnet-Canary Mule" (1st at Glasgow and West of Scotland, and 2nd L.C.B.A. Shows) was passed for, we heard, being a Canary, although in the catalogue it was credited with "he." The opinions expressed in regard to this exhibit were of a very varied character.

The British birds were an outstanding feature of the show—an array of gems. The prizes in all the classes were keenly fought for, and although we heard a few comments here and there in regard to the judging, there was very little to be found worthy of serious criticism. The "sensation" of the section was the 2nd prize winner in the Any Variety Bunting class, catalogued as an Ortolan, but pronounced by the majority of British bird experts to be a Rustic Bunting. It was undoubtedly the centre of attraction. The Softbills made a grand array, and the Foreigners were truly gorgeous. It only wanted a Bird-of-Paradise to crown the display. Every clime had its representatives, and the judge was undoubtedly hard taxed to award the various prizes. We were pleased to note the great strides this branch of the Fancy has made in Scotland. One cannot overlook congratulating the ever-obliging steward, Miss Peddie Waddell, who so carefully attended to the wants of the various delicate species.

We understand that the attendance on the first day was not quite all that could be desired, compared with former years, but we are pleased to be able to say that there was a magnificent attendance of the public during the second day, practically a record, and this despite the miserably wet weather. CAGE BIRDS stall, near the doorway, had set out a grand array of everything calculated to interest the fancier, and it proved a source of great attraction to the visitors and exhibitors.

The judges were Messrs. W. Booth and A. Watson, Norwich Plainheads; Crests, T. Taylor; Belgians, J. Elder; Scots, R. Wright and J. Elder; Liz., Yorks, and Greens, J. Robson; Borders, J. Patterson and J. W. Bruce; Mules, J. Dixon; British, J. Goodfellow, J. Dixon, and C. T. Maxwell; Foreign, J. Goodfellow and C. T. Maxwell. They had a heavy task, and came through it with every credit, for we heard very little adverse criticism.

Mr. W. Booth's Classes.

NOR. CL., ETC., YELL. CK. (11): 1, Trengove, rare size, grand col., deep full chest, nice wings, just a trifle too slack behind for the liking of some connoisseurs present; 2, 3, Sandiford, 2nd not quite so deep in chest as winner, grand size and col., good quality, nice full chest, again a wee trifle heavy behind, 3rd chubby, good head and neck, nice col. and quality, good wings and tail; 4, J. GUISBOROUGH.

Guisborough and Dist. Priory C.B.S. held their 2nd annual show on January 1st. The Chaloner Hall, in which the exhibits were staged (kindly lent by Colonel Chaloner), was of capital light (electric by night), roomy, well ventilated, and nicely warmed. Mrs. Chaloner (wife of Colonel Chaloner) acts as president, and Miss Chaloner is vice-president, both of whom, we were told, are greatly interested in the welfare of this society, and assist liberally. The chairman, Mr. J. Cook, and vice chair, Mr. F. Jones, are a couple of genuine officials, who rendered much help. The committee consists of a band of willing fanciers. Every praise is due to the following: Messrs. Atkinson, E. Blackburn, F. Dauncey, Graham, H. Hood, G. Jobling, C. Jackson, A. W. Knaggs, J. Meaburn, W. Starling, J. Taylor, J. T. Wilson, G. Wear, R. White, A. R. Winter, and J. Weeson. Mr. R. Mays, the hon. secretary, although only a "novice at the game," tries hard, and gets through his work in a praiseworthy style. The staging of exhibits was neatly arranged, and every bird could be seen at a glance. Special winners: Colonel Chaloner, Cup for best Canary Mule or Hybrid, Mr. J. Maddison; best Yorkie, Messrs. Shaw Bros.; 2nd best, H. Hood; best Nor., W. Crosling; 2nd, same owner: best Crest or C.B., W. Radley; best Mule, J. Maddison; best Brit. (2), W. Howe and Messrs. Nicholson and Son; best hen, W. Richmond; Sandiford's medal, Mr. R. Mays; best Softbill, W. Howe. Mr. J. C. Barnes (Sheffield) judged, and his awards gave every satisfaction.

BOLTON ROLLER.

The Bolton and Dist. Roller C.S. held their annual open contest under the patronage of the B.R.C.C. at the Joiners Arms Hotel, Deansgate, Bolton, on Dec. 31 and Jan. 1. Entries came up well, numbering 130 in the open classes, and the competition was very keen, not many points dividing the winners. The judges were Messrs. T. W. Walton (Leeds) and A. Foulds (Manchester), and their awards gave every satisfaction. The secretary, Mr. W. Massey, assisted by the committee, had all the arrangements well in hand.

FORFAR.

The thirty-ninth annual show of the Forfar C.B., Etc., Association was held on January 1st and 3rd in the Reid Hall, an ideal place for such a show, the hall being nicely heated, and free from draughts. The entry was not what it might have been, considering the classification. The number of shows held at this time of the year probably accounts for this. As it was, the entry was about the same as last year's, whilst the quality of the birds staged was of a very high order. The judges in many of the classes must have had a difficult job. The show is run by a most excellent body of fanciers, and everything was done to make the venture attractive and successful. Mr. E. Grant, the esteemed president, who is a keen and practical fancier, was hard at work, his kindly word inspiring all who came in contact with him; and his efforts were ably seconded by the committee, which consists of true fanciers, viz., Messrs. W. Coutts, jun., J. Bowman, A. B. Reid, and W. Warden, vice-presidents; Messrs. J. Cable, J. Stirling, A. Low, J. Low, J. Duncan, D. Cable, G. Cable, D. Kennedy, D. Falconer, G. Blyth, and W. Grewer, committee. Mr. J. M. Findlay makes a very capable and courteous hon. secretary, and deserves great credit for the manner in which things were carried out. Mr. W. Hampton (Brechin) placed the awards in the Norwich section, Mr. W. Mossie (Annbank) in the Border Fancy section, and Mr. W. Sharp (Bathgate) in the Mule, British and Foreign bird sections, and their awards gave every satisfaction.

OVER, WINSFORD.

The Over, etc., F.A. held their eleventh annual show in the large Assembly Room of the Black Bear Hotel on Dec. 27, and the cage bird section was a great success, the entries averaging about 15 per class, which is a record for this show. Quality was evident throughout. Goldfinches led the way with a fine entry of 22, and not a poor one in the lot. The second was a local bird, and had the distinction of winning special honours for best members' cage bird and best members' bird in the urban district. Bullfinches were also good, and the winner was said to have now won for three or four years at this show. Linnets were very fine, and the A.O.S. British contained an entry of 20. Yorkshires and Norwich kept up their good name here for quality, and the Hybrids were good and well led by a pretty clear Goldfinch-Canary. A fine list of specials helped to make competition more keen and attractive. The officials are a fine set of fellows, and got through their work in a real business-like way, and the hon. secretary, Mr. W. Brereton, and hon. treasurer, Mr. F. Wigley lent special services. The light was good and judging was got through, cards were up, and the public were admitted in good time. Mr. Chas. Houlton judged, and his awards were well received.

The Critique.

BRIT. GOLDFINCH (22): Rare class; 1, Tams and Son, really fine all-round Finch, one of the right stamp, blaze, tan, moons, bars, gloss, and condition all there; 2, Weedall Bros., another gem, runs hard for 1st, grand blaze and moons; 3, Bennett, larger bird, grand big blaze, just beaten in tightness to-day; r, Jones, very neat; vhc, Such and Noden; hc, Taylor and Robinson; c, Gillet. BULLFINCH (14): Good level lot; 1, hc, Wigley, leader fine bold bird, well moulted, good condition; 2, Taylor and Robinson, fine cap, wings and tail, good back and breast col; 3, E. Perry, much like 2nd, nice col., good shape, fine feather, etc.; r, Cooper, also good in col. and shape; vhc, Taylor and Robinson; hc, Weedall Bros.; c, Davies. LINNET (21): 1, 2, Tams and Son, 1st real fine rich bird, good shape, nice markings and condition, 2nd grand markings, col. and condition, shade smaller only; 3, Joynson, large, nice markings, etc., good one; r, Jones, very neat, good quality and markings, nice size and shape; vhc, Hemmings and Siddall; hc, Weedall Bros. "CAGE BIRDS ANNUAL" for 1910.

Advertisements close January 18th, 1910.

Every advertiser in this standard work of reference reaps a rich reward. Year after year the same breeders and traders are represented in its pages proving its unparalleled value for advertising purposes.

gives you a whole year's publicity at the smallest possible cost. This will make the eighth year of issue, and every year's production is pronounced to be a long way ahead of its predecessors.

Every prominent breeder and exhibitor should make certain of seeing his name and address in this Annual. How often do you as a breeder want to know another breeder's address, and without the Annual what a trouble it is to find it! The list of fanciers annually advertising themselves in this valuable handbook is no small index to its usefulness. If hitherto your advertisement has not appeared in it, make up your mind at once to place an order right away in it.

The breeding season for 1910 promises to be an exceptionally successful one. Special efforts will be made to extend the sale of the Annual amongst novices and contemplating purchasers.
